| Anecdotal Information | This house shows several indications of having been designed by Edward G. Frye, one of Lynchburg's most prolific architects from this period. Examples of Frye's work can be seen throughout the Rivermont Avenue neighborhood. He showed a particular affinity for the Queen Anne style, of which this house is a notable example. According to the Lynchburg City Directory, from 1938-1948 chiropractor Ethel A. McLuhan lived here. |
