Anecdotal Information

House was built in 1906 for C. S. Adams, and was designed by J. M. B. Lewis. One of the earlier examples of Virginian Georgian-style on Rivermont Avenue. From 1995 to 2010 the property served as dormitory space for the Virginia School of the Arts. When Martin and Donna Donovan purchased the house, they restored it to a single-family residence, which is continues to serve as. For June 22, 2010 interview with former resident Muriel Casey, please see "Rivermont Memories" under "About Us."
