Unpaid Taxes Hit New Low In Bedford County

While the State Auditor has not yet sent out his report showing the percentage of taxes returned delinquent for the year 1941 by the county, town and city treasurers of Virginia, Treasurer Philip P. Burks, of Bedford county state this week that the per centage of delinquents for that year was the lowest in the history of Bedford and he was confident the county will rank among the top half dozen counties in that respect. On June 30th, end of the fiscal year when all uncollected taxes for the previous year must be returned delinquent, only three and seven-tenths percent of Bedford county taxes remained unpaid, Treasurer Burks said, which beat the record of the previous year of five and three-tenths per cent delinquent.

In the low percentage of delinquent taxes for the year 1940, Bedford ranked eighth among the 101 counties of Virginia, and the big improvement in collection of 1941 taxes should, Mr. Burks says, give Bedford county a still better rankling. Only three or four years ago the amount of taxes returned delinquent ran to the neighborhood of $20,000 a year, while for last year the amount was just a little above $8,000. Naturally the treasurer uses all legal means to collect the taxes returned delinquent, and the records of the Bedford county office disclose that during the past three years the actual amount of uncollected taxes for that period is only three and a half per cent of the levy.

Awarded Prizes at Halloween Party

Ann Green Morgan won first prize for the best costume in town or county at the Hallowe'en party sponsored by the American Legion Saturday night. The Bedford band and fire company assisted with the party which was held at the high school after a parade led by the band from the court house. The prizes were War Savings stamps, of $1.00 each except for the grand prize won by Miss Morgan which was for $2.00 and that won by R. Q. Owen as best costumed member of the band, this also being for $2.00.

Other prizes were as follows: Fannie Parrish, under 12, for best costume from county; John Bonner, under 12, best costume from town; Joan Ayres, over 12, costume from county; Mildred Davidson, over 12, best costume from town.

Florence Marshall, under 12, best stunt from county; Bobby Phillips, under 12, best stunt from town; Janet Gee and Charlotte Rowlett, over 12 best stunt from county; Marie Parrish, over 12, best stunt from town.

Carlton Walker won the prize for the best Jack-O-Lantern from the county, and G. E. Murray, Jr., the best from town. Jack Lee Coleman was the winner in the cracker-eating contest.

Surgical Bandage Schedule Resumed

The change in the hours for making surgical dressings has proven unsatisfactory, according to an announcement from Mrs. W. F. Kropff, chairman, and the former schedule will be resumed. Beginning next week, the following hours will be in effect:

Tuesday morning 9:30 to 12:00; Tuesday night, 7:30 to 10:00; Wednesday, all-day (bring lunches), 9:30 to 4:00; Wednesday night, 7:30 to 10:00; Friday morning, 9:30 to 12:00.

The material for the combined October and November quota of 51,000 dressings has just been received and additional workers are still urgently needed, Mrs. Kropff stated. She said that she hoped that women volunteering could plan to attend several of the sessions during the week as this facilitated their learning how to make the bandages and after that they could do much faster work.

These surgical dressings are used by our armed forces throughout the world on every fighting front. It is a very necessary work since the commercial concerns who ordinarily supply the army with surgical materials now have more orders on hand than they can handle of the type which cannot be made by hand. The only way in which surgical dressings of the type made through the Red Cross can be supplied now is through the volunteer efforts of American women all over the country.

German Line Broken By British 8th Army

Many Thousands of Prisoners Taken and Retreat is Becoming a Rout

The British Eighth Army, under command of General Montgomery, has inflicted a crushing defeat upon the Axis African Corps commanded by Marshal Rommell, according to late reports from British headquarters in Cairo, Egypt, the victory following practically two weeks of unending pressure against the Axis desert positions. After penetrating through sixteen miles of German defenses, the British army finally broke through the last fortifications, and this was followed almost immediately by a crumbling of enemy resistance all along the 40-mile front stretching from the Mediterranean to the Quatara deppression.

Rommell, who had been holding his armored divisions in reserve, threw them into action and brought all the artillery he could muster to try to stop the British push Tuesday, but they proved not good enough, and yesterday the retreat from Egypt began. This was not a voluntary move and probably Marshal Rommel did not give the order to abandon positions and fall back. The British attack, when full pressure was applied in the first days of this week, was simply irresistible, the Axis lines broke because they could not be held, and the disordered retreat began because there was no other course open.

The British in the early days of the battle directed their main assault against the Northern, or Mediterranean, end of the German line. The battle was fought on a plan not previously used by either side in the war so far as the records go. It was opened by heavy artillery which pounded the German fortifications for hours and then the infantry made their initial attack at night, taking and holding the ground where the artillery had demolished the German positions. This system was followed throughout, pounding by the big guns during the day and infantry advances at night, and as the ground gained was cleared of enemy mine fields and traps the tanks and artillery moved up to new positions. At no time were the armored divisions used for assault purposes and, in fact, they were not brought in action until the German system of defense had been penetrated and Rommell threw in his tanks to try to avert disaster.

The main line of German retreat is along the coastal road leading back to Libya and the retreating army of Germans and Italians is being pounded unceasingly from land batteries, tanks and bombing planes. Thouands of the enemy force surrendered when further fighting became hopeless and retreat even more hazardous. British Headquarters late Wednesday reported that more than 10,000 of the enemy had been captured, approximately 300 of his tanks and nearly as many big guns destroyed or captured, while his loss in planes ran to more than 600. General Alexander, command-in-chief of all British forces in the near east, yesterday ordered every plane that could be brought into service to harrass the German retreat and for the full power of all branches of the Eighth Army to press the pursuit to prevent Rommell from getting time to reform his shattered army for another stand. Twice before the British had complete victory in Africa in their hands, but made the mistake of not chasing the enemy clear out of Africa, and this time they appear determined to complete the job if possible.

The War On Other Fronts

The week was given a bad start in the announcement that another American aircraft carrier had been lost in the Pacific, name not disclosed, which was sunk on the same day the destroyer Porter was lost. Officially, the American navy had only seven carriers at the outbreak of the war and four of these have been sunk by enemy action in the Pacific, but this does not necessarily mean the navy has only three carriers left. Thirteen vessels of this class were under construction months ago and probably some of these have been completed, and in addition a number of vessels started as heavy cruisers have been converted to carriers and in due time the country will have a crushing superiority. Then it should not be overlooked that Japan has suffered heavily in this respect, four of her carriers being lost in the battle of Midway alone.

The alarming feature about late news from the Solomons lies in the fact that the Japs appear to be able to land men on Guadalcanal any time and in the further fact that the latest landings were made on the island east of the American positions, while up to that time the enemy had held only the western and southern parts of the island. This means that the Americans

Rev. W. M. Compton's Son Dies in Crash

Lieutenant Lloyd Grayson Compton, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Compton, of Bedford, was one of three men killed in the crash of an army bomber at Briggs Field, Texas, at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, his parents receiving notice of his death yesterday. Six others were injured in the accident.

Lieutenant Compton entered the service in August, 1941, and at the time of enlistment was in his senior year at Randolph-Macon College, Ashland. He was stationed first at Orlando Field, Texas, and during his training period saw service at six flying fields throughout the country and was commissioned lieutenant at Albequerque, New Mexico, in August, this year, just prior to his last visit to his parents in Bedford. Lieutenant Compton was graduated from White Surphur Spring high school and completed his junior year at college before enlisting. He was the youngest of seven children.

He is survived by his parents and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. John Mulford, of Philadelphia, S. M. Compton of Uppen Tract, W. Va., A. P. Compton, of Hilton Village, Denny Compton, of Wilmington, Del., W. M. Compton, Jr., and Francis Compton, of Newport News.

Lieutenant Compton will be brought to Bedford for burial, but his parents last night had not been advised when the body of their son will reach here. In their great and sudden sorrow, Rev. and Mrs. Compton have the deepest sympathy of the people of Bedford.

Moneta Boy Reported Better After Crash

Technical Sergeant J. K. Nance, injured when his plane fell into the bay at San Francisco several weeks ago, has advised his parents at Moneta that he is improving in a hospital in the California city. In the accident he suffered the loss of the index finger on his right hand and one of his legs was badly crushed, but from reports received regarding his condition he will suffer no permanent disability.

Packages For Boys In Services Overseas

While the time-limit for sending Christmas packages to the boys overseas expired last Saturday, packages are still being accepted at the local postoffice but there is no guarantee of delivery in time for Christmas presents.

Sweeping Gains Are Made by Republicans

Tuesday's Election Adds to Their Membership in Both Senate and House

Sweeping Republican gains throughout the country marked the election Tuesday, and while the opposition party did not gain control of Congress, it will have greater strength in both houses than at any time in the last ten years. Straw votes and polls had forecast increased Republican voting, but all these fell short of the tremendous change in public sentiment as demonstrated by the returns. Republicans replaced Democrats as governors in five or six States, the Republican membership of the House of Representatives was increased by more than forty, and the Republicans gained at least eight seats in the Senate.

High lighting the Republican sweep was the victory of Thomas E. Dewey over his Democratic opponent in the contest for the Governorship in New York. Dewey won by a majority of more than 600,000 votes and has the distinction of being the first Republican Governor elected in that State in the past twenty years. His victory will make him a formidable candidate for the Republican nomination for President two years from now, an honor he lost to Wendle Willkie in 1940. The result in eight House districts is still in doubt, and the present count shows the Democrats have elected 218 members and the Republicans 205. If all the eight districts in doubt should elect Republicans the Democrats would be left with a majority of only one in the House.

A peculiar phenomena of the election is that in practically every instance where candidates had been more or less violently isolationist in their sentiments before Pearl Harbor were re-elected despite their records of pre-war days. Most noteable of these was Hamilton Fish, Republican, who represents President Roosevelt's home district in Congress, who was re-elected, though by a greatly reduced majority.

Political commentators are almost unanimous in the opinion that Republican gains resulted from dissatisfaction of millions of independent voters with the way in which the war is being managed and with the adminis-

Tire Records Must Be Filed Nov. 12-14

Cannot Get Gasoline Without New Forms Attached to Ration Book

In order to retain their right to use their gasoline ration books already issued to the passenger car and motorcycle owners in Bedford county must file with their local War Price and Rationing board the new application for and tire record inspection record on November 12, 13 and 14, J. T. Clark, chairman of the board, declared today. These new applications are similar to the old forms except that they furnish space for listing serial numbers of the five tires allotted to each automobile, and can be obtained at the following tire inspection stations in addition to the local rationing office:

Elk Service Station, Peoples Garage, Auto Service and Electric Corporation, Bridge Street Esso Station, Bedford; B. W. Dinwiddie, Moneta; J. R. Ashwell, Huddleston; DuVal Motor Co., Forest; Griggs Garage, Big Island; Buford's Garage, Montvale; E. T. Ferguson, Stewartsville; F. S. Hodges, Goodview; Cash Bargain House, Cifax.

These application must be filled in both sides of Part A and mailed to War Price and Rationing Board No. 10 in Bedford where they will be checked against the original applications and if correct, part B of the form will be returned to the applicant by mail. "It is not necessary," Mr. Clark said, "for the applicant to call at the rationing board office to deliver the completed form. These may be mailed to the board."

"Local car and motorcycle owners will continue to use the coupon books already in their possession," the rationing board chairman said, but they need to turn in the new forms anyhow, in order to give us a record of the tire serial numbers and get for themselves a tire inspection record to be used for the periodic tire inspections.

"Those who fail to turn in one of the new forms will be subject to a call from the board after November 22 to explain why he hasn't done so, and he may have his ration book revoked.

"The form is simple. Most of the information can be obtained from the motor vehicle registration card. The most important information needed to fill out the application, however, is the list of serial numbers on every tire which you or any relative living in your house, own for that vehicle."

The serial numbers, Mr. Clark warned, are the indented numbers on the tire walls. These are not to be confused with any raised numbers appearing on the tires. In case the serial numbers have been obliterated, only the brand name of the tire need be listed. The car owners must certify as to ration books now in their possession; that their car is now in use; that the tires on the vehicle will be kept in serviceable condition by repair and will not be operatted beyond the recapping point; that they will not drive in excess of 35 miles per hour and that no passenger car tires in excess of five per vehicle are owned by them.

All autoists must dispose of any tires they own in excess of the permissible five per car before December 12 in order to retain their right to hold mileage rations, Mr. Clark stated. "We urgently request that these excess tires be turned over to the Government at once," he said. "But in any event owners must get rid of them by December 12. Any vehicle operator without a tire inspection record on that date will be in violations of the mileage regulations."

All excess tires, even scrap tires, must be disposed of. Under the Government's Idle Tire Purchase Plan, the local office of the Railway Express Agency will collect all serviceable tires and leave a receipt. The government will send a check later covering the price of the tire, or tires. Tires beyond repair should be disposed of through a local scrap dealer or salvage committee.

Negro Selectees Go To Camp Today

In response to the November call under the selective service law, the following Negro men of Bedford county assembled at the court house this morning and, following a brief program presented by the Howard E. Board Post, American Legion, left for the induction center in Roanoke: Thomas Anderson Holt, Loyd Preston Coles, Willie Starks, William Nelson Evans, Earl Westley Staples, Hugh Bolden Roach, Joseph Scott Thorpe, Jack Waldron, Richard Franklin Roach, Thomas Marshall Smith, Jessie Laurs Roach, Loyd Reed Williams, Dolphus Burrell, Arthur Lloyd Howard, Roy Anderson Hall, Charlie Thomas Brawley, Charlie Londee Quarles, Charlie Lewis Bond, James Edward Qualres, Charlie Edward Jefferson, John Engle Saunders, Joseph Enostus Wood, Temple Luther Jefferson, John Edmond Harrell, Emory Herman Johnson, Willie Fisher Parker, Morman Harris, James Willard Hurt, Walter Lloyd Goode, John Irvan Starky and Odell English.

New Workers Added T. B. Association

Several new worker have agreed to aid in the tuberculosis seal sale campaign this fall in addition to those published several weeks ago, Miss M. L. Richardson, executive secretary, announced this week the appointment having been made by O. T. Bonner, president: of Miss Judy Connell will serve as chairman of Central district taking the place of Mrs. R. J. Owen who resigned recently as chairman but who will continue to assist on the committee. Other members of this committee are Mrs. J. M. Davidson, Mrs. LaGarde Thompson, Mrs. Berkelep Grayp and Mrs. T. J. Grayp. Mrs. Berkeley Gray will have charge of the seal sale in the Bedford industries and Mrs. T. J. Gray in the Calvary section outside of the town.

Miss Geraldine Burkholder has been appointed to the Chamblissburg district to take care of the section between Thaxton and Stewartsville. Mrs. Shelbourne Dearing is chairman of his district and has on her committee in addition to Miss Burkholder, Mrs. Gilbert Johnson and Mrs. Mrs. E. G. Saunders.

In the Bellevue district, Mrs. Robert Overstreet has volunteered to assist Mrs. J. S. McCauley, chairman, and Mrs. Charles A. H. Leys, Lynchburg, Route 4, has been appointed to take charge of the campaign in the Boonsboro-Peakland section of Forest district. Mrs. Clarence White is chairman in this district. In the Staunton district of which Mrs. H. E. Nance, Moneta, is chairman, Mrs. J. D. Saunders was recently added to the committee, and in Lisbon district Mrs. E. W. Hamm, of Montvale, will assist Mrs. W. O. McCabe, chairman, and Mrs. B. M. Epps.

Miss Richardson also announced that Mrs Charlie Green has been appointed chairman of the school committee. Other members of her committee are Miss Virginia Rucker, Mrs. H. R. Hartwell, Mrs. J. T. Davidson, Jr., and Mrs W. G. Cowlbeck. This is a particularly important committee this year since the association is planning to hold clinics in the high school in January at which all high school pupils and teachers will be X-rayed. The tuberculosis educational program in the school prior to the clinic will, therefore, have more than usual significance. Mrs. Susie Gibson chairman of the Negro auxiliary, will have charge of the program in the Negro schools.

No changes have been made in the Charlemont and Otter districts since the committees were announced following a meeting of the association in September. Miss Virginia Foster is chairman of Charlemont, with Miss Jeanne DeWitt and Mrs. W. H. Brydges on her committee. In Otter, Miss Mallie Laughon is chairman, with Mrs. Wyatt H. Walton.

Only Two Turn in Extra Tires Here

To date only two persons have sold their extra tires in compliance with the government's request, according to the Railway Express Agency here. One man turned in three and another four tires. Shipped to a public warehouse in Roanoke, the tires will be assessed by an inspector and the owner paid in savings stamps, bonds or by check.

Recently the government asked motorists owning more than five tires for one car to sell or give the additional tires to the government. With compulsory tire inspection, the date for which has not yet been announced, no one will be allowed to have more than five tires and gasoline rations will be issued only to those who comply with this regulation. To date, however, turning in excess tires has not been made compulsory.

To give or sell your extra tires (anything over five) to the government telephone or write to the nearest Railway Express Agency office and a truck will pick them up. You will be given a receipt and will receive your check or war bonds and stamps, if you prefer, shortly after the tire has been inspected at the warehouse for official determination of its value.

Senator Glass to Return to Work

Senator Carter Glass issued a statement following his election by an overwhelming majority Tuesday, that he had been a "very sick man for several weeks, but I am recovering slowly and expect to return to my senatorial duties in Washington before long."

He stated that he was "very much gratified" by the support of his constituents in his re-election to the Senate, "especially since, comparatively speaking, there was so little general interest throughout the state in the contest."

The Postoffice and "Armistice Day"

Next Wednesday, November 11th, is "Armistice Day" and both banks will be closed for the occasion. At the postoffice regular hours and deliveries in town will be made, but there will be no mail going out on the rural routes.

Intensive Salvage Campaign Planned

Be Patient; Truck Will Eventually Call For Your Scrap Metal

Quite a number of people in the county have written to the chairman of the local salvage committee complaining that no trucks have yet called for their scrap. As they were so urgently requested to get it together and have it ready against the time when it would be called for, the rural residents, of course, had reason to think it would be picked up immediately, and naturally they are wondering why the collectors have not appeared.

Be patient, for the trucks will call at your place in due time. Gathering up tons of metal, much of it difficult to handle, is not an easy job, and the number of trucks and men available to cover Bedford county are too few to get the big job finished in a hurry. Your scrap is wanted. In fact, it is urgently needed, and it will be called for at the earliest date possible. Incidentally, not everybody in the county who has scrap metal on their premises has notified the chairman. If you are among these and want to doyour bit, gather up what you have and notify Mrs. J. K. Walker, Bedford, and the truck will call for it.

War Bond Quota For Bedford Increased

State headquarters have raised the Bedford county war bond quota again, it was announced this week by Committee Chairman A. G. Cummings, the call for November being $54,000,, or approximate $9,000 above the October quota of $46,000. Mr. Cummings said that in both September and October the sales of these war securities were slightly above the quotas for those months, and he said he wase confident the county would measure up again this month despite the sizeable increase. A number of committees are handling particular phases of the sales campaign, but the general idea each committee is trying to get over is that systematic, regular investment in War Bonds by as many people are possible is necessary for financing the nation's war effort.

Auto Owners Must Plan to Share Cars

Supplemental Rations to be Granted only When Cars Carry 3 Other Persons

Autoists who expect to apply for supplemental rations to enable them to drive to and from work should make plans now to share rides with others needing transportation to their jobs, J. T. Clark, chairman of the local War Price and Rationing Board, declared this week.

"Car sharing has been made an integral part of the mileage rationing program because it is the most effective means of providing essential transportation on a minimum amount of rubber," said Mr. Clark. "To get more than the basic A ration a car owner must form a car-sharing club to carry at least three other persons to and from work, or prove that he cannot do so."

The rationing board chairman suggested that car owners get together with their neighbors on some car sharing plan, or with fellow employees at the plant or office. If two or more cars are to be used in the club, members may divide up the use of those cars to suit their convenience. Supplemental rations will then be issued each vehicle for mileage to meet its obligations.

The club must be formed before the application for a supplemental ration is submitted to the board. In fact, signatures of all members must appear on the application, and applicants must certify that they will carry through their part in the car club agreement.

Supplemental applications, Mr. Clark emphasized, are not to be presented registrars at school houses on November 9, 10, and 11. These registrars will be authorized to issue only the basic ration books—A book for passenger car owners, and D books for motorcyclists.

However, vehicle operators who feel they will need more mileage than the basic books provide may ask the registrar for a supplemental application. This is to be filled out later and sent to a local War Price and Rationing Board.

The basic books will provide mileage for 240 miles a month. If the person to whom the ration is issued in-

Organization Being Perfected in Bedford

To Meet War Needs, Wide Variety of Articles Being Called For

Plans for intensified scrap collection efforts during the winter months in rural areas are taking form throughout the nation, as State and local salvage committees survey the results of past campaigns and prepare for future activities, it was stated this week by Mrs. J. K. Walker, chairman of the Bedford county committee. "War production board officials, in em emphasizing the necessity for continued undiminished efforts in the rural sections," Mrs. Walker said, "stress the fact that our agricultural areas are second only to the industral centers as a source of scrap iron and steel, and if the steel mills are to operate at capacity throughout the coming months, large tonnages of rural scrap must continue to flow into the nation's scrap yards.

Winter, they say, cannot be permitted to halt scrap collections any more than it will be allowed to interfere with naval and military operations on all fronts. The men in the fighting forces, it is pointed out, will carry on despite rain, snow, ice and mud, defense industries will continue to operate regardless of weather, and scrap collection must keep pace with both.

Farm equipment dealers at their annual state conventions this fall are expected to emphasize this new phase of the scrap campaign. The implement men have played an important in the National Scrap Harvest, which has been responsible for moving large tonnage of farm scrap into productive channels, and they plan to continue their efforts throughout the winter months.

Winter scrap collection is no picnic, said Eric H. Marks, head of the Farm Scrap Unit of the General Salvage Section in Washington, but neither is the job of the seamen who man the ships of North Atlantic convoys in bitter weather. We civilians, Marks said, must do our jobs with the same fortitude and disregard for personal comfort that is characteristic of the men in the armed forces.

Definite plans for the winter scrap campaign will be announced by all our county and local salvage chairmen before the present phase of the National Scrap Harvest is completed, Mrs. Walker said.

In addition to scrap iron, steel and other metals, the salvage committees throughout the nation are being asked to collect a wide variety of other articles which are needed for war purpose, and the local committee held a meeting yesterday to take up this new and additional phase of salvage work. Mrs. Walker, acting under authority of the Defense Council, is forming a central committee to serve for duration of the war, for until victory is reached the need will continue for salvaging every kind of waste that can be used either for war or civilian purposes.

The Parerent-Tteacher Association, of which Mrs. Mitchell Bower is president, has assumed the job of running the campaign for the salvaging of worn out silk and Nylon stockings and other fabrics needed for war purposes. Silk and Nylon, in particular are badly needed for the production of powder bags and for other war materials and the people of Bedford county are

Chief Reports on Fire Prevention Week

In connection with Fire Prevention Week October 4 to 10, we distributed 250 home inspection blanks to the high school students in Bedford. The purpose of this was to try to get as many people as possible to clean out fire hazards, both in and around their homes.

The merchants of the town donated ten dollars in Defense Stamps which we offered as prizes for the best three home defense blanks turned in. We got a total of forty-two blanks, nineteen of which were from the county, which we think showed a distinct lack of interest on the part of the boys and girls from town. However, we hope they all cleaned up the fire hazards if they did not participate in the contest.

Approximately fifteen homes were examined and the prizes were awarded at the Hallowe'en Party on last Saturday night, as follows:

1st prize, J. D. Smith, Jr., score 100.

3rd prize, Mary Stewart Gills, score 95.

The score was based as follows: answering and complying with all answers, 50; neatness of paper, 25; premises showing the appearance of having been cleaned and inspected, 25.

Meditation

From one of our Soldier Boys

I'm a soldier, so they tell me,
Here's a uniform to show,
And a gun with full equipment,
Pack and all.
I have drilled from morn till night
Putting enemies to flight
And have memorized each note of bugle call.

I'm a soldier, so they tell me
I've been schooled in gunnery,
And I've walked my share of guard and cossack post.
I've been toughened up to key,
Stood retreat and reveille
And have weathered every tempest
With a boast.

I'm a soldier, so they tell me,
I'm hard and tough and tanned;
I've soldiered far and wide where'ere we roam.
But way down deep inside, I know those people lied
Cause my heart is always back with those at home.

I'm a soldier, so they tell me,
But when the "chips" are down
And fellows talk of home (as fellows do,)
I feel a lump inside
And a yearning hard to hide
And I long for those old places I once knew.

So I guess I'm not a soldier
Cause underneath it all,
When you strip away the glitter and the chrome;
I'm marking off each day
As time goes on its way
Just waiting for the time when I'll go home.

EVINGTON, ROUTE 2

Well has the author expressed in words "What is so rare as a day in June?" but what words can one find to describe an autumn day with the landscape dotted here an yon with its multi-colored leaves floating in the air, covering the earth with a canopy befitting that of a king?

The Hallowe'en party given Saturday night at N. L. A. was largely attended with everyone expressing a happy time.

Rev. J. R. Andrews has been returned to serve on the Bedford Springs circuit. We wish for him much success.

Mrs. Evelyn Mitchell, with a group of friends, spent Saturday sight-seeing in various historical sections of Virginia. The group reports a very happy and interesting trip.

Briarfield, the Jones' home has recently been painted, with an additional large front porch erected. Other homes have also undergone similar repairs, which show in ways of trying to keep the "Home fires Burning" in these strenuous days.

Cameron Sweeney, who has resided in the community for several years has decided to sell-out and locate elsewhere. We wish him success wherever he may go.

Mr. W. N. Kelly, whose illness has previously been mentioned, is improving and able to walk about in the house.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Chenault and family of Roanoke, were recent visitors in the home of Mrs. J. W. Cochran and Mrs. M. A. Mitchell.

S. D. Hicks, Misses Susie and Mary Hicks were Sunday visitors in Lynchburg.

We were glad to read Mrs. B. Franklin's humorous items last week. We had begun to think she had joined the WAVES?

Qute a Bit at That.

"He boasts that he runs things in his house."

"He does—the lawn mower, the vacuum cleaner, the washing machine, and the errands.

Gold That Hitler Missed Is 85 Feet Below New York

The loot that Hitler's legions missed in their sack of Europe—more than $2,000,000,000 in solid gold bars—is now stored away for the duration in a moated steel fortress 85 feet below the streets of downtown New York.

Along with several hundred million dollars' with of gold sent here for safekeeping by nonbelligerent countries the huge hoard is frozen in the impenetrable vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York until the central banks which own it are in a position to reassert their claim.

Second Biggest Pile of Gold

Apart from the American-owned gold stored in Fort Knox, Ky., this foreign stockpile is probably the largest single gold concentration in the world, and the bank is taking no chance of losing even a grain of it.

The bank building itself is guarded by every known automatic protective device, backed up by a private force of heavily armed police.

Gaining admission to the vaults, which go down five floors below the street level, would be a feat for any cracksman. Getting out again with any of the billions in gold, currency and securities stored there would be practically impossible.

The gold itself is stored on bedrock at the bottom of building in the heart of a maze of steel-lined corridors blocked by closely spaced, barred doors that reach from floor to ceiling. Guards armed with sub-machine-guns patrol the outer corridors.

Labeled with code symbols identifying the owners, the storage cages—which can be opened only in the presence of three bank officers—hold varying amounts of gold ranging up to more than $250,000,000. Some of it is the coppery-colored metal intended for coinage, more is the brassy-yellow of virgin metal.

One cage contained $40,000,000 worth of British gold sovereigns and half-sovereigns which have been out of circulation in England since the World War I; another held hundreds of sacks filled with gold 20-mark pieces of the German Reich.

Run Through U-Boat Lanes

All of the metal belongs to foreign central banks, much of it obviously run through the Nazi submarine lanes after the fall of the Low Countries. But the bank insists that the names of the foreign nations involved be kept secret.

Sixty-five feet below sea level, the vault rests directly on bedrock, and water backing up from the nearby East River forms a natural moat around all four of its 8½-foot steel and concrete walls.

The entrance door itself. a 90-ton barrier set in a 143--ton steel frame, is made of 10 feet of tool-resisting steel set on a turntable that is slightly countersunk when locked.

WAUGH

The winds and rains have stripped the trees of their leaves and sent them flying like exiles. There are still varied tints of autumn colors scattered through the woods that looks as if a paint box had been spilled among the leaves.

"On the crown of the hill for all to see God planted a scarlet maple tree."

Mrs. Jim Tolley has returned to her home in Roanoke after spending two weeks with her son Moses Tolley of this place.

Miss Edna Oliver spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. L. C. Witt, in Lynchburg.

Miss Helen Turpin spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. D. L. Hensley, near Boonsboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lancaster, of Roanoke, were recent guests at Mrs. Moses Tolley's.

Miss Frances Pryor was the recent guest of Miss Marie Day.

MEMORIAL

In remembrance of our dear mother, Mrs. Annie Wilson Newcombe, who left us seven years ago today, November 3, 1935:

Today brings sad memories,
Of our loved one gone to rest,
And we think of her each day—
We who loved her best.

Oh, if we had you back again,
Just for a little while,
Only to see your face again,
Only to see you smile.

We can't forget you, dear mother,
While in this world we stay.
God only knows our feelings
Since you have passed away.

When we leave this world of changes
When we leave this world of care,
We will find our darling loved one
In our Father's mansion fair.

Peaceful be thy rest dear mother,
'Tis sweet to breath thy name,
In life we loved you dearly
In death we do the same.
—Sadly missed by her Children

Hell Hath No Fury . . .

"See here," said the missionary to the African chief, "it is wrong to have more than one wife. Tell all your wives except one that they can no longer look upon you as their husband."

After a moment's reflection, the chief replied, "You tell them."

DATA CONCERNING MEAT RATIONING

The following is a list of answers to questions which have recently been raised concerning the "Share the Meat" program:

Q. Does the 2½ pound allotment include luncheon meats?

A. Yes.

Q. Are coupons going to be used?

A. Not at present. When ration books have been printed and distributed and meat placed on a rationing basis, coupons will be used.

Q. How is the amount purchased now going to be controlled?

A. On a purely voluntary and patriotic basis.

Q. Will families consisting of only two adults be able to buy large sized roasts?

A. Yes, but if its weight is five pounds or more they will not be able to eat any other kind of meat during the week.

Q. Will prices be controlled?

A. Yes. They have been controlled since last spring.

Q. Does the ration allowance include dinner guests?

A. No. Dinner guests are expected to deduct what they eat at your home from their personal allowances.

Q. How much will invalids get?

A. Whatever the doctor has prescribed, whether the amount is above or below 2½ pounds weekly.

Q. How much will children get?

A. Children below six years of age are entitled to ¾ of a pound weekly. Children between six and twelve may receive 1½ pounds. All above that age, including adults, are entitled to the weekly 2½ pounds.

Q. Are light meat eaters entitled to get meat?

A. They are expected, of course, to stay within their share.

Q. Does the 2½ pounds include fats and bones?

A. Yes.

Q. Does the Share-the-Meat program call for 2½ pounds weekly of each kind of meat or of all meats?

A. All beef, veal, lamb, mutton taken from the dressed carcass.

Q. Can a person get the kinds of meats he wants or must he take whatever is left over?

A. He can order the kind of meat he wants and if the butcher has it, he will receive it. It is suggested that women working in war plants place orders ahead of time so that they will be sure to receive the kind of cuts they desire.

Q. Can one buy a large amount of meat from farmers and keep it?

A. Yes, but they are expected to limit themselves to their fair weekly share of 2½ pounds.

Q. Are those who raise their own meat supply also expected to "share-the meat?"

A. Yes.

Q. What are the regulations in regard to eating meat in restaurants?

A. Restaurant menus will indicate the weight of the meat portion served and the patron will accordingly deduct this from his weekly allowance.

Q. Will chicken be shared under the 2½ pound allowance?

A. No.

Q. Will fish be shared under the 2½ pound allowance?

A. No.

GOING AWAY PARTY FOR BOB MEADOR

A party was given to Bob Meador at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mitchell Wednesday night, October 28th, as he has to leave for the camp the following day. Those present were Clarine Mayhew, Wallace Ayers, Lois Lynch, Clarence Byrd, Edna Mayhew, Earlie Bobbitt, Vergie Mayhew, Randolph Ayers, Gracie Brown, Buford Tuck, Lucille Mayhew, Ray Brown, Barbara Bennett, Herbert Lynch, Bob Meador, Horace Fergerson, Warren Maxey, Clyde Perdue, Ray Pasley, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mayhew, and Mrs Annie Mayhew.

Music was made by Clyde Perdue, Ray Pasley, Earlie Bobbitt, Harry Mayhew and R. L. Martin. The party seemed to be enjoyed by everyone.

His Own Fault

"Guv'nor," said the dusty traveller, "how far is it to Gloucester?"

"Bout a mile and a half," replied the farmer.

"Can I ride with you?"

"Certainly. Climb in!"

At the end of three-quarters of an hour the traveller asked: "How far are we from Gloucester now?"

"Bout four miles and a half."

"Great haystacks! Why didn't you tell me we were going away from Gloucester?"

"Why didn't you tell me you wanted to go there."

Experience keeps a dear shop, but fools will learn at no other.

SUPPOSE YOU FLICKED THIS SWITCH

and nothing happened!

CLICK! . . . Over and over between dusk and dawn—hundreds of times a month—your fingertips repeat that simple, automatic motion.

But suppose you let yourself in late some night and flick the switch—and nothing happens! No light anywhere! Annoyance gives way to confusion, concern and fear. Something's seriously wrong when the lights won't work!

The very fact that you do take electric service for granted is a tribute to the men and women who supply it. They've made it dependable—and they've made it cheap. The average American family gets twice as much electricity for its money as it did 10 to 15 years ago—and has many more appliances to make life pleasant.

The big job now is powering industry—the roaring factories that are making tanks, planes, ships and guns. That job, too, the electric companies have done so well that Uncle Sam is far more power-full than all the Axis countries combined.

This power is possible—and this war will be won—for the same reason—the American tradition of freedom. Freedom of business management under Government regulation—freedom to live our own lives—freedom to invent, invest and produce for everybody's benefit. . . . That is the American Way—the absolute opposite to the Hitler system of political management and state slavery.

America's strength today shows that the American Way has worked. It proves that practical business management is meeting the needs of this way of life.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Richmond, Nov. 4—A game of checkers he never got to play is credited with saving the life of John Daniels Robinson, Richmonder and member of the crew of illfated Wasp aircraft carrier of the Pacific fleet lost in action of the Solomons. Robinson was a member of a repair party detailed in the bow of the ship, where losses were among the heaviest when the first torpedo crashed through the side plates. Two minutes before the attack, Robinson left the repair party station with a checker board to play with a shipmate in the forecastle. He escaped with his life but without playing the game of checkers. The wheel of fortune certainly ordained with his move was to be a lucky one.

It's going to be a dark Christmas for many Virginia towns if they heed the request of J. H. Wyse, State defense co-ordinator who has urged municipalities of the Old Dominion to go easy with outdoor illumination this year. Outdoor Christmas lights will be prohibited in coastal areas of the State and inland residents are asked to keep their holiday lighting at a minimum. Where dimout regulations are not in effect, there will be no objection to decorative street lighting but co-ordinator Wyse has requesteded that such lighing be installed so that it can be turned off quickly.

John Lewis, 69-year-old Negro "lifer" recently pardoned by Governor Darden after serving a total of almost 40 years as an inmate of the penal institutions of the Old Dominion has asked for his old job back at the State Fam. Lewis who has heard various judges pass out sentences aggregating two lives and 23 years has found treatment outside the prison walls not to be as good as that within. Then too, habit plays many strange tricks on the human mind.

He was a small dog of the "Airplane" design, half Airdale and the other half "just plain dog" but chivalry to the opposite sex, and particularly to a mother carrying her baby made this bum of the alleys a true gentleman in the eyes of Richmonders one day last week. With his tail curled high and trotting grandly by the side of his charges, he convoyed a mother cat with her kitten in her mouth across Broad street during one of the busiest hours of the day. After guiding his wards safely across the thoroughfare, he returned to his own side of the street and resumed his quest for a handout from the Restaurant garbage pails in the alleys of the Capital City.

"Hava hunka gum Chum!" is being heard less frequently these days as chicle is rapidly joining the ranks of coffee and is being governed by the laws of diminishing supply due to transportation facilities from our neighbors in South America. Then too this "war of nerves" may be the result of an increase of almost 50 per cent in the demand for this confection. One chain drug store in downtown Richmond received 14 cases of chewing gum at noontime and was completely sold out by closing time the same day. Some chain stores are limiting customers to three packages. One wholesaler recently received an order for 10,000 boxes of gum from a nearby Army camp. At this rate gum-chewers will have to get more mileage per stick for the duration!

Virginia, the leading rayon-producing state in the country will have a large part in the drama of tire production and the rubber shortage. Already involved in the heated Congressional debate on the relative merits of rayon and cotton as cord material for tires, the Old Dominion is running its seven major rayon producing plants at top speed to further the war effort. With rayon cloth taking the place of woolen materials and with Nylon and rayon being used in the manufacture of parachutes in increasing proportions, Virginia is rapidly adding its rayon industry to the ranks of its defense installations.

Approximately 100 trucks now owned by the State Highway Department are destined to go back to war. It's true! They're all veterans of World War 1. Bought from the Government at the close of hostilities in the first big scrap, these trucks have labored these many years in helping to build the road system for the Commonwealth. Now reaching the end of the trail, these veterans will go back to the wars to do their bit for Uncle Sam, this time they will be hurled at the enemy instead of hauling troops, guns and supplies up to the front. Into the melting pots they will go as more "Scrap to Slap the Jap."

A Winchester auctioneer really was jarred while auctioning off some fruit jars among the effects of the estate of the late Sylvester Pearson. As he offered a collection of glass jars for sale, he hesitated when he noticed something that looked like money in one of the jars. It was money, $1,890 in bills and coins. That particular jar was turned over to the administrator of the estate and a "No Sale" was recorded.

Virginians will shiver this winter unless they do something to offset their heat losses due to lack of insulation, Dr. C. Hart Schaaf, State Rationing administrator has announced.

Residents of the Old Dominion are urged to weather-strip and insulate their homes in order to remain comfortable this winter under the restrictions of the fuel-oil rationing program. A high percentage of the consumption of fuel oil throughout Virginia last winter was out of line when compared to figures of other Southern states, Schaaf said.

GOD'S MINUTE

"Beloved is peace."

Receive us, O Lord, unto Thy heart and deliver us unto Thy haven as Thou didst deliver Noah from the flood and as Thou didst deliver Abraham from Ur of the Chaldeans. Deliver us, O Lord, as Thou didst deliver Job from his sufferings and as Thou didst deliver Isaac from being sacrificed by the hand of his father Abraham. Deliver us, O Lord, as Thou didst deliver Lot from Sodom and from the flame of fire. Deliver us as Thou didst deliver Moses from the hands of Pharoah, King of the Egyptians. Deliver us as Thou didst deliver Daniel from the lions den and as Thou didst deliver David from the hand of King Saul and from the hand of Goliath. Deliver us, O Lord, as Thou didst deliver the three children from the burning firey furnace and from the hand of a wicked king and as Thou didst deliver Susanna from a false accusation. Through Jesus Christ. Amen.

Copying Dad

It was early morning, very quiet and the soldier on sentry was enjoying a pipe.

He spotted the colonel in the distance and put the pipe in his pocket.

"Didn't I see you smoking?" asked the colonel when he came up. "Let me look at your pipe."

The sentry pulled a pipe from his pocket and handed it over.

It was cold. The colonel was satisfied.

When he had gone the sentry pulled a still glowing pipe from the other pocket.

"My old dad knew a thing or two when he advised me to have two of everything," he said to himself.

One would think that, having been denied rubber girdles, the feminine sex would breathe easier.

FUNNY how you could think of so much in so short a space of time. Yet the whole conversation ran through Emery Folsom's mind in the seconds before the ball spiralled down, plumped against his chest, and he was away.

Folsom could hear the two voices even now. "Oh, sure," the first voice had said. "Oh, sure, Folsom's good all right. He'd be a star half back if he could take it."

"You mean," said the second voice, "that he's yellow?"

"It'd be more kind to say the kid's cautious." The first voice broke into a short laugh. "Yeah, cautious. Afraid he'll spoil the looks of his pan. There's a girl they say."

"Folsom's away!" The shout came echoing down from the stands in a thunderous roar. But Emery didn't hear it. He had too much else to occupy his mind. There were two men in the field ahead. The Allenton safety man and another, Mac Piper, the half back. Emery was charging at Mac like a freight train.

Funny how you thought of things at times like this. Yellow, eh? They thought he was afraid of getting bunged up because his girl wouldn't like his looks? They thought he had the makings of a great star if he weren't yellow.

Yellow! You couldn't say anything much worse about a man. And Emery was prideful and sensitive, too. This was his first year on the varsity. And reaching the varsity had been the culmination of years of dreaming and hoping and making himself fit. And now that he was there they thought him yellow!

Did they think he was afraid of being bunged up because his girl then wouldn't like his looks?

They all thought it. You could see it in their faces when they looked at him. They were too decent—or afraid, to accuse him openly. But despite the fact they thought him yellow they admitted he was fairly good. That's why Coach Murray kept him on the squad.

Mac Piper swung in from the right. Emery veered. Mac's arm tried to encircle his thigh. Emery's right hand shot out and Mac fell away, rolling over and over. Emery was away again, cutting toward the sideline in a race to beat the safety man.

Next year, he was thinking, next year there'll be someone to take my place. I won't even be allowed on the varsity, because they think I'm yellow—unless I prove that I'm not."

The safety man was going to beat Emery to the sidelines. He could see that at a glance. Anyhow the sideline was too dangerous a place to risk a fracas. He might be thrown out of bounds.

Emery stopped in his tracks, swung toward midfield. The safety man was taken wholly by surprise. Emery had gained a few feet before the Allenton back could shift his course. Even so, Emery knew he couldn't get by.

The stands were wild. Were they calling him yellow for trying to avoid contact with the safety man? Well, contact was inevitable. For they weren't two feet apart now. The safety man was coming at him from the left.

Too late Emery remembered that he shouldn't have permitted an attack from his left. Too late. The safety man had hold of his left arm. Emery winced and wanted to scream. But he didn't. He kept moving. Three steps, dragging the safety man along with his left arm. Sharp pains were shooting up into his shoulder. Specks were dancing before his eyes. No use. He was going to faint.

Vaguely he knew that he was falling. The ground came up and knocked the remaining consciousness from his brain. He lay there, with the safety man sprawled out beside him, still clutching his left arm. And above the thunder of an insane mob of fans the starter's gun boomed a denouement to the drama.

When Emery finally regained consciousness, he found himself lying on a table in the locker room. He was partly undressed, and a trainer was rubbing his legs. Coach Murray was standing on one side of the table, and Ernie Little, the Morrow captain, on the other side.

"You played a great game, Folsom," the coach was saying. "I'm proud to have you on the squad, for a fact."

"We're all proud, Folsom," Ernie Little grinned. "How d'yuh feel?"

Emery smiled faintly. Why couldn't they be honest? Why couldn't they tell him they thought him yellow, and be done with it?

"Can't blame you chaps for being a little sore," he said. "Losing the game like I did."

"Losing hell!" Ernie Little exploded. "You were across the line when Piper dragged you down."

Emery grinned. That was a little better. He said: "Well, that's fine. Glad we won." Pause. "Listen, Coach, I been thinking about next year. Is there going to be a chance for me?"

Coach Murray seemed a little startled. He saw an anxious, pathetic look in Emery's eyes and swallowed hard. "Chance for you? Say, I'm counting on you for next year more than any three men in the squad. I guess you're still a little goofy from that fall, Folsom."

Emery wet his lips. "Well—then you chaps don't think I'm yellow any more?"

"Yellow?" Coach Murray and Ernie Little suddenly exchanged looks. "Say, who's been talking to you? Who told you that?"

"Why—why no one. That is, I overheard some—"

Coach Murray swore. "And you fell for that! Say, Folsom, you're green. That's an old gag. Some of the boys sized you up, decided you had a lot of pride and a lot more potential ability than you were showing on the field. They framed that talk, fixed it so you'd overhear 'em and get mad. They wanted you to get out there in this last game of the season and show folks you weren't yellow. Probably they had some money up."

Framed. A trick! Emery tried to grasp it and couldn't. Yet somehow, despite the excruciating pain in his shoulder, he felt suddenly happy. The trainer was tugging at his jersey. Emery let out a yelp of pain. He couldn't help it.

Coach Murray came around the table, brushed the trainer aside, and took hold of Emery's arm. He looked up, and Emery couldn't remember having seen such a look on a man's face. His words were flat and cold and hard.

"When did this happen, Folsom?"

Emery had difficulty in talking. He thought he was going to faint again. "Third—quarter. It—it didn't hurt much—then."

Coach Murray swore horribly. And there was a sudden stillness in the locker room. Ernie Little's face was white. Finally he said, awed, "And the kid had an idea they thought he was yellow. So he played through a quarter and a half and made that last run with a broken arm!"

He stopped and involuntarily shuddered. He was thinking how it must have felt when Piper pulled Folsom down. And then he glanced savagely toward the table. But Emery had slipped once more into unconsciousness, and there was a smile on his lips.

Many Theories as to Origin of Bock Beer

Not many German words are better known to the American public than bock, meaning goat. This is due to the fact that the bock beer sign, decorated with the picture of a goat, has been for many years (forgetting the 13 black years) a mildly festive feature of the American spring. Baltimoreans have been pleasantly aware of this seasonal brew for some days now, although there used to be a local tradition that it wasn't to be served until Good Friday.

There are authorities who pretend to trace the origin of bock beer back to the 11th century, but nobody really knows much about it. There is even some disagreement as to what it is. A vast amount of space would be required merely to review the various opinions handed down by respectable historians and brewmasters, while to review the speculations of dreamers and folklorists would be a lifelong task.

There are those, among them J. P. Arnold, the author of "The Origin and History of Beer and Brewing," who hold to the Einbeck theory, to wit, that bock originated in the ancient south German town of that name, and that it was first called einbeck, which became shortened to beck and eventually changed to bock. If this is true, then it was the name that suggested the goat as a symbol. Contrariwise, another account relates how, during a famous outdoor drinking bout between brewmasters near Munich, one of the contestants was bowled over by a runaway goat, to the merriment of the spectators, who thereafter always referred to the strong brew he was drinking as bock.

Wanted to Be Mayor

U. S. Grant was our 17th President, but what he really wanted to be was mayor of Galena, Ill. The Peoria (Ill.) Transcript of January 20, 1864, disclosed that some of the general's friends suggested to him that he allow his name to go before the national convention as a candidate for President. Grant replied that he aspired to only one office: When the war was over he wished to return to Galena, run for mayor, and if elected see that the sidewalk running from his home to the railroad station was repaired and kept in good order.

Weekly Sermonette

"SCRAP AND SWORDS"

Text: Joel 3:10: "Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruninghooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong."

I want to say at the beginning that comparatively few people know that this text is to be found in the Bible. I have quoted it many times, and invariably people have expressed surprise of its existence. In Isaiah 2:4 and Micah 4:3 are texts which are familiar to most Christians. They are alike, and read thus: "And He (the Lord) shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." One of the common indictments of the Bible is that "It is full of contradictions and errors." I have never yet found an error or a contradiction in that Holy Book. Neither do these texts contradict one another. More of that later.

Recently in Paducah, Ky., a citywide drive was on to collect scrap metal for the manufacture of implements of war. No doubt many plowshares and pruninghooks and other tools of agriculture were collected in that drive, and in a short time that metal will be used by our armed forces against our enemies in various parts of the world. In a large measure we are seeing the literal fulfillment of my text of Joel 3:10. When Joel wrote his prophecy probably during the reign of King Joash of Judah, about 800 B. C., he expected a literal fulfillment of his words; it was not figurative language to him.

But how can we reconcile the words of Joel in the text with the prophecy of Isiah 2:4 and Micah 4.3? It will be seen by the Bible student that Isaiah and Micah were speaking of a different period of time in the history of the world than that described by Joel. There is no reason why we should not look for a literal fulfillment of Isaiah's and Micah's prophecies, a period described by the prophet Habakkuk 2:14, saying, "For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea." A glorious picture indeed. Let everyone understand that eventually the righteousness of God in the earth will triumph over the works of the Devil and all his followers. If this is not true, why support the church,or why worship God? Is the devil more mighty than God? By no means. He, like many of his emissaries at the head of Axis governments today, will in time be defeated. But many things will transpire before that church, or why worship God? Is the that glorious victory is achieved.

Let us turn to no less an authority than Jesus Himself for a description of the spiritual and military status of the end of this age in which we live. In answering the question of the disciples, "Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of Thy coming, and of the end of the world (age)? Jesus replied, "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet, (for the following is going to happen.) For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places." Matt. 24. I am not saying this is the end of the age. It might be near, and it might be a long way off. But the disciples asked for a sign of the end, and this description was the Lord's answer. Therefore every individual should prepare to meet the Savior, for He said, "Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." Matt. 24:44. The words of Joel 3:10 will have their fulfillment in the larger sense at the end of this age, but who knows but what some of the scrap collected in Paducah, Ky., and the scrap now being collected throughout the United States will be converted into "swords and spears" for the contest of which Joel and Jesus were speaking? Yes, we are seeing some prophecy fulfilled.

Now what did Jesus say of the spiritual state of the world at the time of His Second Coming? Listen. "And as it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man. They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and the flood came, and destroyed them all. Likewise also as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded. But the same day that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all." Then to emphasize what He was telling them, Jesus added these words: "Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." Luke 17:26-30. Is not this an accurate description of the age in which we are living?

Now let us notice how the Apostle Paul describes the spiritual state of the end of this age. "This know also, that in the last days (last days of this age) perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof; from such turn away." 2-Timothy 3:1-5. He here says, "having a form of godliness." Yes, we will have church services, some with beautiful ritual and some without while many of the so-called worshippers go through with a mockery of religion. What will happen to that class of mockers is well described by St. Paul in 2-Thessalonians 1:7-10.

Then shall we look for a literal fulfillment of Isaiah 2:4 and Micah 4.3? By all means. Righteousness of God will eventually triumph over the evil of men. When the evil doers are destroyed as memtioned in 2-Thessalonians 1:7-10, and after the Battle of Armageddon, mentioned in the third chapter of Joel, then the God of Heaven will set up His rule of righteousness on the earth. Then "they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Isaiah 2:4. What a blessed future is in store for this old sin-sick earth, and what a glorious millennium. Halfelujah. Amen.—Rev. W. F. Smith.

Blowing Business

He was a thrity fellow and came from Aberdeen. One day he was told by a friend that instead of putting a shilling in the gas meter much the same effect could be obtained by blowing smartly into the slot. He tried the experiment with gratifying results.

At length an official from the gas company called to inspect the meter. He was obviously puzzled by his investigations.

"What's the matter?" asked the householder.

"Man," said the official, "I canna understand it at all. The company appears to owe ye 30 shillings."

Facts About County Sheriffs

As there was a query in regard to the sheriffs of Bedford county Frank W. Burks compiled the following:

Peter L. Huddleston was elected and took over the office July 1, 1891, giving bond in the sum of $25,000 with nine citizens as security. He held the office until his death, and J. P. Marshall was appointed on September 18, 1923, to fill out the term, giving bond for $5,000 with a Fidelity Company as surety. He has been successively re-elected to the office.

ALL-OUT SUPPORT FOR FIGHTING MEN

CUSTOMERS of this company in rural areas have responded patriotically to our request that they read their own meters. The cheerful compliance and intelligent response of people busy with their usual activities and added war duties evidences their willingness to make sacrifices for victory.

And this cooperation which may seem small individually is in the mass a vital help in the conservation program because manpower and time—equipment, gasoline and rubber are thus conserved and made available where they are most needed to support fighting men.

tends to use his car for driving to work, or in connection with his work, he will be expected to consider 150 miles a month of his ration available for such driving. The remaining 90 miles a month be reserved for such essential family travel as driving children to school, or sick persons to the doctor, etc.

Applicants for supplemental rations will first need to prove that they need more than the 150 miles of occupational driving provided in the A book. Secondly they will need to show that they have formed a car club. If they do not form such a club they must prove they cannot do so, and that alternative means of transportation are indequte.

"All applicants for supplemental ration will use the same form," Mr. Clark pointed out. "The board will decide whether the ration granted should be in the form of a 'B' or a 'C' book. The 'B' book, in addition to the A book provides for a maximum of 470 miles of occupational driving a month. Mileage for more than 470 miles a month requires a C book. But only drivers performing services regarded as essential to the war effort or the public welfare will be eligible for C rations."

Those drivers entitled to perferred mileage through C rations must meet the car sharing requirements, the same as other applicants for supplemental rations, Mr. Clark said.

After November 21, 1942 operators of trucks, buses and taxis must have their Certificates of War Necessity before applying to the local War Price and Rationing Board for their mileage rations, J. T. Clark, chairman of the board, declared today.

"The Certificates of War Necessity, issued by the Office of Defense Transportation, form the basis for our issuance of transport rations to these commercial vehicles," said Mr. Clark. "When applicants come to the board they must bring with them these certificates, together with properly executed application for a mileage ration."

Each war necessity certificate states the number of miles the vehicle for which the certificate is issued will be allowed to travel during a three-month period. The certificate also states the number of gallons of gasoline needed to cover this mileage.

The OPA rationing board will determine the amount of transport rations to be issued for the vehicle on the basis of the mileage allowed on the certificate. In no case is the board permitted to allow more gasoline than is stipulated on the certificate.

In the Eastern gasoline rationed area the transport (T) rations take the place of the service (S) rations. All outstanding S coupons will become invalid at 12:01 a. m. November 21. The T books will be tailored to the allowable mileage by tearing out coupons.

Regarding Ration Books.

Use of war ration books by others is a violation of the regulations. A man or woman entering the military service must turn in his war ration book to his local war price and rationing board.

Regulations require that the ration books be returned to the boards not only int he case of persons entering the armed services, but also by civilians, such as Red Cross workers or representatives of Government agencies, or others who leave the United States for more than thirty days. The ration books of persons who have died also must be returned to local boards. These provisions of the regulation must be observed. Many have neglected their duty through ignorance of the regulations.

Because of the press of office work in connection with new rationing programs covering fuel oil and gasoline, the Bedford office of War Price and Rationing Board will close at 4:00 p. m. each afternoon until further notice.

Registration of Fuel Oil Dealers

The registration of fuel oil dealers is now taking place. Suppliers of fuel oil including sellers of kerosene must register with their local War Price and Rationing Board on OPA Form 1116.

Local distributors will assist in getting these forms to their dealer customers through their tank wagon drivers, however, dealers who can do so should secure the necessary forms from the local ration board and must complete and file them at once.

Consumers of fuel oil, including kerosene, must apply for a ration on the proper form. These forms can be had from the fuel oil or kerosene dealer. When completed they should be mailed to the local rationing board.

Axis African Army Beaen and in Retreat

must now fight on three fronts, or, in other words, they are surrounded except on the front facing the sea. Washington had warned against too much optimism after the Jap fleet retired, stating that the enemy would certainly return to renew the fight, and this warning was timely, the Japs making the new landing the day after it was given.

The bright part of the picture is to be found in the defeat of all land attacks by the Japs, the superiority of the American air force in all respects, and the open sea lanes by which reinforcements and supplies can be sent in. The Japs have lost approximately 500 planes in the Solomons fighting and their losses at sea have been far heavier than those of the Americans. In the naval engagement on October 26th in which the American carrier was lost, the Japanese fleet suffered heavily, though none of its ships were known to have been sunk. Two carriers, one battleship, five cruisers were badly damaged by direct bomb and torpedo hits and probably put out of action for months.

In addition, the Japanese have suffered heavily at sea from bombing raids made by General MacArthur's army airmen based on Austrialia, which have been helping in the Solomons engagements. Playing a strong supporting role to the Marines on Guadalcanal, these air fighters carried the war to the enemy's ships and bases on 23 of the 31 days in October and a summing up of their work for the month shows the following: Japanese warships sunk, five; damaged or believed to be damaged, nine; believed hit, three; possibly hit, two; total 19. Japanese transports and supply ships believed sunk, four; set afire or damaged, twelve; believed hit or damaged, ten; grand total, forty-five. Included in the list were one carrier, one battleship, and two cruisers.

Australian troops from MacArthur's command continue their offensive in New Guinea and this week captured the principal enemy base on the north side of the mountain range between the mountains and the coast. The Allied troops are now entering the lowlands of the north coast of the island, definitely removing any danger to the base at Port Moresby, but it is doubtful if an attempt will be made now to drive the enemy off the island entirely, as he has entrenched himself in considerable strength on the north coast.

While the Germans are still pressing their assaults upon Stalingrad with unabated fury, their main attack appears to have been shifted to the south where a new offensive has been opened with the Russian military highway over the Caucasus mountains as the goal. Halted at Stalingrad and in the drive for the Grozny oil fields, the Germans are striking hard in the foothills of the Caucasus and the Red army was forced back. Weather conditions in that area are better for winter campaigning than on other fronts in Russia, but the invaders can hardly expect to get over the high mountains this year. Snow has already filled the high passes and the road above referred to is about the only one of any importance over the range, and the Germans are probably trying to get set for renewing the battle for the big oil fields at Baku next spring.

Completes Eleven Year as Pastor

Rev. C. M. Roberson completed his 11th year as pastor of the Thaxton Baptist church last Saturday, October 31. He and Mrs. Robertson have been married seven years this Thursday. In recognition of these two anniversaries the Sunday school and church on the fourth Sunday presented to Mr. and Mrs. Roberson a gift of $50.00. Mr. J. H. Rusher, in his words of presentation, gave some statistics showing the growth of the church during these years. They have a net gain in membership of 161 and contributions to the entire church budget have increased 330 per cent.

Walton Brown as a Squirrel Hunter

Walton Brown, who lives on Route 1, Thaxton, is some squirrel hunter and boasts of his shooting. This fall he and a neighbor were out hunting and Walton said he could knock the teeth out of a squirrel at 150 feet. The friend doubted it. Walton banged away at a squirrel and said he hit the squirrel in the teeth. The friend said he didn't. Anyway, the squirrel got away. To prove his assertion, Walton and his friend went next day to the woods and lay in hiding until the squirrel came out of his hole. Then Walton proved his statement—the the squirrel went to cracking nuts with a rock.

TREES NATION'S WAY TO PREVENT LAND EROSION

Long recognized as excellent weapons for fighting erosion, trees have now become weapons of war, C. E. Bass, Assistant Conservationist, of the Blue Ridge soil conservation district said this week.

"According to one agricultural authority, forests are supplying five trees for each man in the American armed forces. However, even larger amounts of wood will be required after the war is over, since normal uses of wood are not being supplied at the present," Mr. Bass went on to predict.

For that reason the conservationist is urging farmers to practice selective cutting to keep woodlands intact. This will keep a supply of trees coming along all the time, Mr. Bass says. Besides guaranteering a permanent supply of timber for future use it also provides lumber, posts, and fuel wood for immediate sale, and maintains cover for the conservation of soil, water, and wildfire.

As a result of the present demand for lumber some farmers may be tempted to cut their woods clean. However, as the conservationist pointed out, a constant supply of wood cannot be maintained nor the maximum benefit secured by the owner if young trees are removed as soon as they have a low market value.

Farmers who would like advice with their woodland problems can get information from the conservationist or from County Agent S. S. Hylton. Either will be glad to explain the woodland management plan recommended by the soil conservation district, Mr. Bass said.

The family of E. W. Thaxton wishes to express appreciation to friends for flowers, the use of cars and many other acts of sympathy and kindness shown them during the ir recent bereavement.

Exhausting Profession

A lawyer was cross-examining a hapless witness. "Are you a teetotaler?"

"No," the man replied.

"Are you a moderate drinker?"

No answer.

"Am I right in calling you a heavy drinker, then?"

"That's my business."

"Any other business?" asked the lawyer.

Reseat or Receipe.

Bustling into his tailor's, the customer haded him a pair of pants. "Here's that last pair of trousers you made for me," he said. "I want them reseated. You know, I sit a lot."

The tailor looked at him dejectedly. "I had hoped,' he replied mournfully, "that you had brought the bill to be receipted. You know I've stood a lot."

Very Simple

Discovering yet another mistake in a letter, the Boston employer summoned his new typist.

"You came here with good testimonials, Miss Smith," he shouted, "and do you mean to tell me you don't know the King's English?"

"Of course I know it," she replied, indignantly. "Otherwise he wouldn't be on the throne."

OBITUARY

C. W. Mitchell

Cort W. Mitchell, 69, a farmer, near Boonsboro, died on Oct. 29th in the Memorial Hospital in Lynchburg, after a short illness.

Son of Bolling Mitchell and Mrs. Mollie Reynolds Mitchell, Mr. Mitchell was born in Amherst County. He lived on Boonsboro road, where he had a farm.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Miss Celestia Leftwich; three brothers, Dan Mitchell, of Salem, Sidney Mitchell, of Montvale, P. P. Mitchell, of Naola, and Charles Mitchell, of Roanoke; five sisters, Mrs. M. M. Hicks and Mrs. Sallie Hudson, of Roanoke; Mrs. Estelle Tanner and Mrs. S. M. Tomlinson, of Big Island, and Mrs. H. W. Thomas, of Lynchburg.

Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon at Fauber's Chapel by Rev. John E. White. Burial was in Spring Hill Cemetery. Mrs. Frank Jackson played and a quartet sang several hymns.

Honorary pallbearers were C. C. Farris, S. O. Goodman, Reed Phillips, Dr. Carlton Moorman, Clayton Bailey, Charles Nickerson, E. B. Hogan, V. W. Tomlinson, A. T. Tomlinson, P. H. Mitchell, E. N. Leftwich, Clyde Thomas and L. M. Morris.

Active pallbearers were Roy Shelton, Owen Franklin, Roy Plymale, Jeter and Everette Howell and Paul Mitchell.

Flowerbearers were Mrs. Laura Parker, Mrs. Everette Howell, Mrs. Eva Mitchell, Mrs. Morris oHwell, Misses Gladys Myers, Nancy and Ethel Plymale, Vivian Payne, Virginia Mitchell, Gertrude Shelton; Messrs. Otis Howell, Ralph and William Johnson and Adolph Payne.

Mrs. Ed Donald

Mrs. Ossie Ann Donald, 52, wife of Ed Donald, died on November 3 at her home near Blue Ridge.

Surviving besides her husband are a son, Herbert Donald, of Grundy, and six daughters: Mrs. Ruth Thomas, Newport News; Mrs. Rena Ball, Mrs. Alpha Thomas and Mrs. Verna Sweeney, Roanoke; Mrs. Edna Allen, Bedford county; Miss Rachel Donald, Blue Ridge; a brother and two sisters: Elmer St. Clair, Ohio; Mrs. Ripple St. Clair, Page, W. Va., and Mrs. Hetty Lawhorn, of Bedford county

Mrs. J. G. Richardson

Mrs. Delia Hodges Allen Richardson, 76, widow of John G. Richardson, died on November 2 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. R. Bell, in Baltimore.

Born in Bedford county May 3, 1866, she was the daughter of Thomas Hodges and Mrs. Sarah Cheek Hodges. Her first husband was the late Thomas A. Allen.

Surviving besides Mrs. Bell are three other daughters, Mrs. H. N. Thomas, of Lynchburg, Mrs. Charles TTucker, of Baltimore , and Mrs. Norman Fairbairne, of Milwaukee, Wis.; two brothers, Newton Hodges, of Bluefield and Hezekiah Hodges, of Roanoke; two sisters, Mrs. Emma Wine, of Washington, and Mrs. Talbot Tucker of Evington, and several grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. N. Thomas, in Lynchburg, and burial was in Spring Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Hunter Miller

Following an illness of several years, Mrs. Hunter Miller, a former resident of Bedford, died Friday in Richmond, where she had made her home for a number of years. Her condition had been critical for some time and her many friends here were not greatly surprised when news of her passing was received.

Mrs. Miller was born in Baltimore, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Jones, and came to Bedford about forty years ago. In 1903 she was married to Hunter Miller, Bedford attorney, and they made their home here until 1935, when Mr. Miller was appointed by Governor Peery to membership on the A. B. C. Board, and he and Mrs. Miller went to Richmond to live, though she always regarded Bedford as her home.

During her long residence in Bedford Mrs. Miller was active in the religious, social and civic life of the town, and her hundreds of friends here have for a long time been deeply concerned over her continued ill health and received the news of her death with a feeling of grievous personal loss. She was a member of the Bedford Baptist church, and freely gave of her time, talents and means in the promotion and upbuilding of all phases of its work. In church, Sunday School and missionary society she gave inspiring leadership and the officers and members of that congregation feel deeply the loss resulting from her death.

Mrs. Miller is survived by her husband, Hunter Miller; one sister, Mrs. J. G. Gardner, of Daytona Beach, Fla., and two brothers, Howard C. Jones, of Alexandria, and E. T. Jones, of Baltimore.

Funeral services were conducted from a funeral home in Richmond Sunday afternoon, and the body was taken to Madison, Va., former home of Mr. Miller, for burial.

G. R. Thomason

George R. Thomason, 47, a resident of Bedford for the past twelve years, died at his home on South street last Wednesday night, following a long period of failing health. He was a retired employee of the Norfolk and Western Railway and resided in Bluefield prior to taking up his residence here. He was a member of the Methodist church.

Mr. Thomason is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sadie Albert Thomason, and three children, Mrs. Bernard Holland, Miss Betty Thomason and Billy Thomason, all of Bedford. Surviving also are three grandchildren and the following brothers and sisters: W. W. Thomason and O. W. Thomason, of Williamson, W. Va., Mrs. J. L. Bondurant, of Roanoke, Mrs. Carrie Linkous, of Merrimac, and Mrs. Bessie Albert, Mrs. Harvey Taylor and Mrs. Nannie Long, of Ironto.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. J. B. Douglas, Rev. A. W. Potts and Dr. J. H. Grey, were held at the home Friday afternoon at 4:00 and burial was in Oakwood. Active pallbearers were Adron Albert, Warren Dooley, Lewis Albert, Jack Albert, S. E. Updike and W. L. Terry. Honorary pallbearers and flowerbearers were Dr. J. A. Rucker, M. E. Patterson, Dr. R. H. Caudle, Dr. M. P. Rucker, T. L. Carwile, Joe McGhee, Peter Carr, Walter Bell, W. L. Lyle, Moorman Bowyer, Benny Key, Ashby Elliott, Bernard Overstreet, Earl Gray, Billy Shields, Marvin Alls, Jesse Alls, Leonard Gallion and Mr. Arthur.

Mrs. E. W. Harman.

Mrs. E. W. Harman, 56, died Friday afternoon at her home on Peak street, following an illness of long duration. A native of Bedford county, she was a daughter of the late James R. and Parmelia Lyle Donald, and her entire life was spent in Bedford. Surviving are her husband, E. W. Harman, and two children, Donald E. Harman and Mrs. Harold Landrus; and two sisters, Mrs. C. W. Carter and Miss Nealie Donald, all of Bedford. Mrs. Harman was a member of the Presbyterian church and an estimable Christian woman.

Funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Dr. J. H. Grey assisted by Rev. A. W. Potts, at the home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and burial was in Oakwood. Active pallbearers were T. O. Magann, L. C. Arthur, J. L. Calhoun, Claude Witt, W. E. Bush and J. K. Walker. Honorary pallbearers were William McKenney, George Woodford, C. Cousart, Dr. J. A. Rucker, Adrian Overstreet, H. L. Landrus, J. J. Cooper, John Wright, Joe McGhee and M. F. Gibbs. The floral tributes were borne by Mrs. Clara Scott, Mrs. Henry Lodge, Mrs. W. H. Powers, Mrs. H. A. Gills, Mrs. Robert Morris, Mrs. Landrus, Miss Verdie Dean, Miss Alva Mitchell, Mrs. Mason Preas, Mrs. C. Cousart, Mrs. George Woodford, Mrs. O. P. Foster, Mrs. R. J. Richards, Mrs J. W. Jeter and Mrs. Mary Yates.

George W. Quarles

George W. Quarles, 69, died at his home near Blue Ridge, Monday afternoon.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Quarles, and one brother, William Quarles, of Vinton.

Funeral services were conducted at the Blue Ridge Brethren church Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Rev. M. G. Wilson.

Miss Annie Connelly

Miss Annie Connelly died on October 31st at the home of a brother, John B. Connelly, at Gladys.

Surviving besides the brother mentioned are W. B. Connelly of Creedmore, N. C., Rev. H. W. Connelly, of Clifton Forge, and Rev. A. W. Connelly, of Thaxton.

Mrs. J. T. Wade

(Contributed)

Mrs. Burley Frances Wade, 76, widow of J. T. Wade, died Tuesday morning, October 27th, at her home in Vinton, after two weeks illness. Mrs. Wade was a native of Bedford county, being reared near Calvary, but had lived in Vinton for the past 40 years.

Mrs. Wade professed faith in Christ many years ago and was a devoted and humble follower of the Master. She was a member of the Thrasher Memorial Methodist church.

Surviving is one daughter, Mrs. R. E. Peters, three brothers, Dan, Walter and Homer Hogan, also two grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church, Vinton, Thursday at 3 p. m., conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. J. Groah, assisted by Rev. C. H. Dooley and Rev. J. E. Kraus. The following hymns were used in the service: "Asleep in Jesus," Jesus, Lover of My Soul,' and "Sweet By and By.' Interment was in Mountain View cemetery.

Active pallbearers were J. F. Brown, C. E. Wade, H. E. St. Clair, John Wade, Emmett Heptinstall and Ed Wade. Honorary pallbearers were J. B. Poole, Wesley Hillsman, Willard Hamill, Arthur Turner, Dr. Garthright, James Gish, Ray Saunders, Doc Edmonston, Thomas Delong, Linwood Saunders, Robert Fralin, J. W. Stevens, Ferris Saunders, W. W. Funk, Richard Coon, Marvin Craig, B. O. Stiff, O. W. Scott, L. D. Hogan, Other Stiff, R. L. Meadow and Bill Charlton.

Forget you dear mother we could never,
It would be in vain for us to try.
We'll think of you forever and love you till we die.
But in that land of peace and life,
The land beyond death's darksome sea,
No storms arise; no death, no pain, no strife,
But, love and home—O, blest eternity.

Judy Layne Maxey.

(Contributed)

Little Judy Layne Maxey, 5-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Maxey, died on October 27th, at 4 o'clock a. m., in the Guggenheimer Memorial hospital, Lynchburg, from an attack of pnuemonia. Her death was a great shock to the family. Dear little Judy has gone to rest, where never a sin can stain her breast. She was too pure and sweet for this world of trouble, so God sent an angel to call her home. Weep not, dear mother and father, for little Judy Layne is not dead—only sleeping, to awake in a happier land. She cannot come back to us, but we can go to her, so let us try to live the life to meet our dear little Judy in a happy home on the resurrection morn. We cannot understand why she was taken, but God knew best and some day we will understand.

The funeral service was held at Mentow Baptist church, near Huddleston, by Rev. E. P. Roberson, with burial in the church cemetery.

The little white casket was carried to the grave on the arms of undertaker Buford Updike. The grave was covered with beautiful flowers.

Flowerbearers were Misses Shirley May St. John, Frances, Rachel, Mary and Betty Maxey.

In the graveyard sweetly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly,
In her cold and silent grave.

—Written by her grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Maxey.

urged to donate all worn and discarded washed women's and misses' silk and nylon hosiery in the following classifications: All silk, all nylon, mixture of silk and nylon, mixture of silk and rayon, mixture of nylon and rayon, mixture of silk and cotton, mixture of nylon and cotton. A national campaign for salvaging the above opens on November 16th and those who have silk or nylon they can give are requested to have it ready for delivery on or after that date.

The salvage campaign, however, covers a great many articles not listed under the headings of metal, silk and nylon. The demand for old rubber is just as urgent as ever, and besides this commodity and everything containing metal, the salvage committees are calling for the following under the heading of fabrics: Old vegetable sacks, cotton underwear, wool underwear, old sheets, old pillowcases, old bedspreads, old towels, old wash cloths, old handkerchiefs, old table cloths, old men's shirts, old cotton dresses, old cotton curtains, old wool dresses, old suits, old coats, dust cloths, draperies. Hemp is also needed and the committee will be glad to get old rope, clotheslines, curtain cords, hemp rugs, car seat covers, old burlap bags, and anything else you can find made of metal, rubber, cloth or hemp and for which you have no further use.

Salvaging all kinds of waste materials is going to play a big role in winning the war, and anything the people can donate will be used for victory.

No Fuss.

In Aberdeen a doctor who was conducting an ambulance class asked one of his pupils what he would do if he came upon a man lying unconscious in the road.

"Give him a glass of whisky," came the reply.

"But if he coundn't swallow a glass of whisky, what then?"

"Well, I wouldna fash wi' him ony more. If he's an Aberdeenian and canna swallow a glass of whisky—he's dead.'

tration's handling of affairs on the home front.

In Virginia, of course, all Democratic candidates were elected by sweeping majorities. Seven of the nine Congressmen had no Republican opposition and Senator Carter Glass was opposed only by a Communist and a Socialist, the vote of the two combined being negligible. Judge Clifton A. Woodrum, Democratic candidate in the Sixth district, was opposed by a Socialist only and polled practically all the votes cast. The Virginia Delegation in Congress is marked by its conservative attitude toward public problems and the records of the members were so satisfactory to even the Republicans that except in two districts the decision of Republican leaders was not to put up opposition candidates.

Locally, the election aroused very little interest as it was taken for granted that Glass and Woodrum would win easily. Sixteen of the thirty-two precincts in the county which reported yesterday polled a total of 760 votes, about half of these being cast at the two town precincts, North and South Liberty. Of these Judge Woodrum received 717 and his opponent 43. Senator Glass was also given 717 votes, his Socialist opponent getting 28 and the Communist candidate 5. At North Liberty 251 votes were cast and South Liberty polled about half that number, or 125. The largest vote in the county outside Bedford was polled at Montvale, where 69 voters went to the polls, the only opposition votes registered there being three cast for the Socialist candidate for the Senate.

Tells How Japs Belie Truce Flag.

Stories of Jap treachery, one telling how 28 out 30 Marines paid with their lives for honoring a Jap flag of truce, has been reported by Solomon Island evacuees who reached a Naval base hospital.

Private Raymond Paul Nunley of Lancaster, Ohio, nursing a leg wound received by the early Solomons fighting, told of the massacres of the marine truce mission. Nunley said:

"A Jap officer carrying a white flag came riding into a marine camp one day and told the commanding officer a bunch of Japs across a nearbly inlet were isolated and wanted to surrender.

Taken at Word

"Our C. O. (commanding officer) took him at his word and 30 marine officers and men piled into a tank lighter and crossed five miles of water to the point where the Japs were located.

"Only two of those marines are alive today. As the tank lighter approach the beach a few Japs were observed, and sure enough one of them was waving a white flag. As the boat scraped onto the beach, the marines let down the ramp and started to go ashore.

"Without warning they were met by a terrific burst from several machine guns hidden in the underbrush. They were mowed down like stalks of corn, except for two who escaped and swam to safety."

Another Trick

Another time, Private Nunley said, two men of his company on patrol duty saw a Jap on horseback moving along the fringe of the jungle waving a white flag. The sergeant in charge walked out to make the Jap a prisoner. Nunley said:

"He got within five feet of the Jap and was shot and killed. This sergeant was a mighty popular guy and later that day several of his pals went out to avenge him. How many Japs they killed with their bayonets I don't know. They wouldn't talk about it when they returned."

Almost Fooled

Platoon Sergeant Harry W. Schiller of Napa, Cal., who is recovering from a knee wound, was himself a near victim of the white flag trick. He was in one of several marine landing boats, entering a cove on Florida Island, when a large white flag was seen waving from a tree on shore. Schiller relates:

"We decided to investigate. We got to about 500 yards from shore and they opened up on us. Fortunately, we were ready and we blasted them right back."

Sergeant Barton S. Hill, of Minelo, Texas, summed it up this way:

"If all-out treachery decides battles, the Japs would have licked us hands down.

Got Feel of Things

"They worked the 'dead dog' trick, set booby traps, pulled fake surrenders and tried to give us orders in English during night actions. We had been warned to expect these tactics and after a few missteps we got the feel of the thing and their funny business back-fired on them."

Sergeant Hill, who was hit by a Jap sniper's bullet while going to the rescue of a wounded comrade, told how the enemy used their own dead in setting booby traps. The usual form of a booby trap is a weapon, pocketbook, cooking utensil or similar article apparently discarded but in reality attached to a grenade which explodes when the object is picked up or moved. Hill said:

"It's pretty hard to fool a marine on one of these traps.

"We'd heard too much about how they were used against marines and other forces in the Philipines. But leave it to the Japs to think up the devilish idea of baiting booby traps with their own dead!"

Pvt. Laren E. Krause of Yakima, Wash., described another Jap stratagem that backfired after costing the life of a marine sentry.

"Ten Japs somehow had stolen one of our landing boats and a couple of U. S. Navy uniforms.

"They approached a marine outpost on the beach, under cover of darkness. The sentry saw two figures coming toward him, and although he could not see them clearly, he recognized the naval uniforms.

"He asked them to give a pass word and, of course, they didn't know it. Sizing up the situation, the marine gave the alarm and opened fire with his pistol, killing one of the Japs. The sentry was shot a few seconds before our machine guns along the beach went into action, blowing the Japs right into the sea."

MARRIAGES

Higginbotham—Fellers

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Fellers have announced the marriage of their daughter, Bertie Ellen, to Clarence Wilton Higginbotham, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Higginbotham, all of the Cifax community, which took place Saturday morning, October 31. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. Boleyn of the Methodist church, pastor of the bride and groom, at his home near Bellevue.

The bride was attired in cruise-blue with black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Higginbotham left immediately after the ceremony on a short trip and on their return they will make their home at Goode.

Overstreet—Parker

Robert Burks Overstreet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Overstreet, and Carrie Gaynelle Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Parker, all of the Thaxton community, were married on Saturday, October 31, Dr. J. H. Grey performing the ceremony at the Presbyterian Manse.

THREE CHEERS FOR MY BROTHERS

I have no sons to give,
I do have ten fine brothers,
It's for them I live,
Altho I admire all others.
Three have gone their country to serve,
They have gained rank and station.
All they have gained they deserve
Without any exaggeration.
God, I surrender to you each day,
Each hour each dear brother,
And then I pray,
Dear God, bless our mother.
I have two sisters, too,
Our part we cannot tell;
Whatever service we're called to do,
I pray we will do it well.
Then there is our Father
Who works so hard each day,
Giving up his sons is harder—
Give him courage I pray.

Three Brothers In The Armed Services

Word has been received of the safe arrival in England of Sgt. John W. Dean. He was a corporal of Co. F. 116th Infantry, and on February 23, 1941 was made a sergeant, stationed at Fort George G. Meade, Md., and on December 2, 1941 was advanced to 1st sergeant and on Sept. 9, 1942, was made a master sergeant.

Ward A. Dean was drafted into service in October, 1941 and sent to Camp Wheeler, Ga., and in February, 1942, 1942, was made a corporal. Then he was transferred to the officer Candidate Training School regiment, Tank Destroyer School, Camp Hood, Texas, and is now nearing his goal for a lieutenant's commission.

Halsey A. Dean volunteered for the Navy August 5, 1942, and was rated as Technical Specialist, second class. He is now rated as Academic Instructor in Service schools and hopes to be promoted to Chief Technical Specialist soon. He was a graduate of V. M. I.

The three Dean boys are sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dean, of Route 3, Bedford.

HUMANS AND HOGS

Hogs put their feet in the feeding trough and go at the job of filling their bellies without the slightest regard for how other members of the herd are faring. That's the hog's nature. Nobody expects a hog to behave any other way.

Humans, though, are supposed to be different. True, their nature originally was about on a par with that of swine. But they were endowed with intellect, the power to reason and think. That distinguishes man from the brute creation, at least it is supposed to. And then mankind has enjoyed the benefits and blessings of Christian civilization for nearly two thousand years, and this experience should have purged his nature of still more of its natural dross. One would think that man, with his heritage of culture and education, plus Christian training, would by now have advanced to a height well above his original parity with swine, but observation and experience fails to bear out the generally accepted theory that we have entirely gotten away from our brute instincts. A lot of us still display the tendency to get our feet in the trough, shove our neighbor aside at least until we have all we want.

The immediate provocation for these observations is the rush and scramble of a lot of people to hoard coffee and other foods prior to the date when they will be placed on the list of rationed commodities. The press reports that even before it was positively known that coffee would be rationed, the heads of households throughout America made a rush for the grocery store. The dealers had already limited the amount each customer could buy, but this was no bar to those whose only thought was to look after their own wants and desires without any thought for others. Thev made the rounds of all the stores they could reach and bought at each all the merchant would sell, and probably felt very proud of themselves for staving off the evil day when sales would be further limited. As a result of this greed, many thousands of Americans whose conscience, respect for the welfare of others, and patriotic regard for their country cried out against such reversion to hoggish instincts, will go on short rations unnecessarily.

The picture thus presented is not a pleasant one to look at. It creates fears and misgivings as to present and future; fosters the belief that we of the United States have forsaken the principle which lived so strongly in the minds and hearts and spirits of our forbears that they gladly sacrificed everything, life itself in thousands of instances, to bring into being a nation dedicated to freedom from oppression, tyranny, fear and want. We question the right of a man to live under a free government if his conception of citizenship rises no higher than a desire, as expressed in hoarding, of faring better than his neighbors, particularly during a period of national peril. It is bad enough at any time to witness the sorry spectacle of a citizen of this country playing the role of a swine. Such practice becomes alarming and disgusting when it is seen at a time when only sacrifice upon the part of the whole population can save us from disaster.

Hoarding, squabbling over prices and rates of pay, organized minorities trying to profit at the expense of the nation as a whole, evidence strongly that in the minds of those who practice these things there is almost total absence of any sense of personal responsibility or obligation on their part to subordinate self and selfish, greedy desires to the common good. Any man or woman, regardless of their station in life or the social plane on which they move or their religious pretensions, who by so much as a jot or tittle conduct themselves in a manner which in the smallest possible degree retards America in her war effort, is guilty of treason and should be publicly branded as such and given the punishment that treason demands.

Sodom, according to Biblical account, was utterly destroyed because within its walls not even ten rightous people could be found. Notwithstanding so much evidence to the contrary, America could probably meet this condition, but it would not be by a wide percentage margin if judgment is to be formed on the basis of the widespread policy of trying to get personal gain out of our country's struggle for the preservation of freedom in our own land and throughout the lands of other liberty-loving peoples.

THE SOLOMONS CAMPAIGN

Because the campaign against the Japs in the Solomon Islands has not been marked by an unbroken chain of smashing victories, considerable criticism is being heard in the land about the way the war is being managed in general, and this one offensive venture in particular. The American people apparently are still deluding themselves with the idea that Japan is a push-over. With their usual optimism, they expected the Marines, once they landed, to chase the Japs out and get the entire situation under control within a week or two, and when this didn't happen they became restive and worried and began to indulge in criticism of the whole campaign. When the enemy came back in force to chase the Americans out, if he could, and inflicted considerable losses on our Pacific fleet, talk was heard that a huge mistake had been made in launching an offensive in that group of islands.

These criticisms did not originate in a fear that defeat was imminent for the American cause throughout the Pacific, but appears to have sprung from the belief that the Solomons are not worth what it cost to take them and what it is costing to hold hem. The whole siuation was made still worse by evidences of bad leadership and bad judgment on the part of naval officers in command and by the policy of the Navy Department in withholding bad news over a period of months and then dumping it all on the public at once. That the naval operations were not what they should have been was disclosed when a change in command was announced, and a lot of misunderstanding and resulting criticism could have been avoided if the department had informed the people why the campaign in the Solomons was undertaken, and made it plain in the beginning that it was likely to be costly, but worth the price if it was successful. Naturally it would be unwise to give out reports of operations that might be useful to the enemy, but the practice of holding back bad news for weeks and months is calculated to depress public morale rather than raise it.

So far as our observation goes, neither the command in the Pacific nor the departments in Washington made any attempt to inform the public about the strategic importance of the Solomons, and had this been done there would be a better understanding of why the offensive there was decided upon. If the United Nations are to hold Australia, and it is vitally necessary that they do hold it, the supply lines between the United States and this island continent must be kept open and as free from attack as possible. To insure a maximum of safety for the ships which carry men and supplies from America to Australia, the Solomon islands had to be taken and they must be held, not only because they are dangerously close to the shipping lanes, but because in enemy hands they furnished a jumping off place to attack other islands farther south and still closer to our communication lines. That it was imperative for the United Nations to seize and hold the Solomons is made clear by a glance at a map of the Southern Pacific, and it was a mistake to attack there only if the Allied forces available for the operation were insufficient in number to give reasonable assurance that the islands could be seized and held against any force the enemy might be able to muster for a counterattack.

It is foolish to harbor the fear that in planning the campaign due study and thought were not given to every eventuality. It can be taken for granted that the attacking force was large enough to accomplish the purpose of making the landings, and there can be no doubt that the plans called for such reinforcements and supplies as might be required to hold against enemy attempts to retake the islands. Considerable losses were suffered in the landing operations and further heavy losses have resulted from Japanese counterattacks, but a war cannot be fought without losses and if these islands can be permanently held their strategic value makes them worth the cost. That plans made for the operation have not fallen short of requirements is evidenced by the fact that all enemy attempts to drive the Americans out have so far been defeated and the Marines and units of the army now hold more ground than they did when the Japs made their bid for victory late in October by attacking on land and sea and in the air.

Our military and naval leaders are not open to criticism for deciding on the campaign against the enemy in the Solomons, but there is some justice in the public's criticism of the government for its failure to give information as to the reasons why it was necessary to occupy and hold the islands, and of the policy of Washington in withholding news of what is going on when no good purpose can be served thereby.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

FARM HANDS ARE ESSENTIAL

The Senate's recognition of farm hands as skilled laborers, essential to the war effort, is the first step in assuring the United Nations armed forces and the workers in the American arsenal that food supplies will be maintained. The second step necessary must be to adjust the farm wage scale to that of the war industries—and this may in the end mean more subsidies. It is time farming was recognized as an essential industry.

Properly, very few voices were raised against Senator Tyding's amendment to the 18-to-20 draft bill to defer farm workers. Had the Selective Service system operated as the public expected it to operate—classifying all men according to skills and placing them where they could best serve their country—thousands of farm boys would not have left the plow for the glamour and glory of uniformed service or for shipyards and plane plants.

For farming is not "common labor;" it requires a technical skill, training and experience that no ordinary city laborer needs to qualify for his job. Moreover, volunteer labor, transient labor, child labor cannot prepare the soil, put in the crops and cultivate them, while milking the cows and properly tending and feeding meat animals for the market. What does a city person know, for example, about the intricacies of harrowing or adjusting a grain drill?

If the drafting of lads of 18 and 19 is to release older men, as the Army chiefs imply, farm hands should be the first ones sent home—and some guaranty of better wages should follow, if it is hoped to keep them on the farm.—Christian Science Monitor.

MACARTHUR'S DENIAL

Every right-thinking American will accept at its face value General MacArthur's denial that he has any "political ambitions whatsoever." A commander in the field would be derelict in his duty to the men under him and the Nation at large if he were not single-minded in his command. There would have been no need for the denial but for the foolish and irresponsible boom which some of his admirers—or, should we say, some of Mr. Roosevelt's detractors—started some months ago in several anti-Administration newspapers. It is incredible that the Administration should have taken the agitation seriously to the extent of allowing it to govern war policy. Yet this is the allegation of the Washington correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor whose report to that effect is responsible for the MacArthur statement. "Political Washington," says this correspondent, who has lately been in Australia, "was largely responsible for the establishment of two separate commands in the Pacific, partly because of the conservative opposition which launched the MacArthur-for-President campaign."

The report cannot be dismissed as newspaper gossip. It tallies with too many circumstances about our war in the Pacific to be treated as mere speculation. The division of command in the Pacific never made any sense except as a maneuver to squeeze out General MacArthur, if not for political, then for professional, reasons.—Washington Post.

ENGLAND 56; AMERICA 43

The British Information Service is authority for the statement that many workers in Britain have been working between sixty and seventy hours a week, and though efforts have been made to curb excessive hours, the average today, with overtime ,is fifty-six hours a week. It is instructive to contrast this with the latest availiable American figure, which is an average working week of less than forty-three hours. In industry we are working on the average, in other words, thirteen hours a week less than the British. It is possible that the average British working week is longer than one that would combine maximum productivity with the maintenance of health; it is certain that the American working week is shorter. The contrast, in any case, is that between the spirit of all-out war and the political fetish of the standard forty-four week.—The New York Times.

FORGOTTEN MAN

The esteemed Charlotte Observer laments that it is the "man of the middle class" otherwise known as the white collar worker, who is being ground to economic pieces between rising living costs and high taxes on the one hand and stationary income on the other. It is true that this class of Americans receives precious little attention from presidents and potentates, that Congressmen are not known to wax lyrical over the plight of clerks or bookkeepers. For all that, it is some slight consolation, in this day of blocs and pressure groups, for a fellow to be able to stand on his hind legs and take the gaff unaided—to know that he does not have to be begged, coaxed or cajoled into coming across for Uncle Sam.—Montgomery Advertiser.

RELIGION

Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones, Detroit clergyman is quoted in Sunshine magazine as follows: "Get religion like a Methodist. Experience it like a Baptist. Be sure of it like a Disciple. Stick to it like a Lutheran. Pay for it like a Presbyterian. Conciliate it like a Congregationalist. Glorify it like a Jew. Be proud of it like an Episcopalian. Practice it like a Christian Scientist. Propogate it like a Roman Catholic. Work for it like a Salvation Army lassie. And enjoy it like a colored man."—Alabama Baptist.

BEYOND EVEN EXPERTS

New Guinea natives are great head hunters and shrinkers. We'd like to see them work on the head of the Reich, but think they would have to put in more than a 40 hours week to get it back to normalcy.—Greensboro Daily News.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I have just received a letter from the Bulletin printer whom we lost to the army in September. He is a sergeant in the ordnance corps and has been sent to Camp Young, California, for his basic training. I was reminded of a time some years ago when he went to camp with the National Guard and wrote back a description of same. Definitely a realist, he never minces words regarding his surroundings, and the famed and beautiful California seems to hold no allure for him. The letter follows:

"Dear Printer's Devil:

"I have not the information whether or not you have been fortunate enough to see this wonderful desert in California. It is no prize and for my part it can be taken away anytime. The sooner, the better. But, since we are here for our basic training it is necessary to stay, liking it or not. When one gets accustomed to being dusty as a country road in the summer and working under this terrific California sunshine, all can go along very well. Two things you can rely on: no rain storm is apt to get you wet and no one has to strain their eyes to look up at the tall trees. No, because it rains probably a few times only in the winter and the tallest trees here are just about 4 feet. I reckon they get discouraged along about this time and quit growing. The sun shines to run the temperature up to about 110-115 degrees most of the time in winter and in August it gets much higher. One soldier here who is in the Armored Division and does most of his work in a battle tank says that it frequently gets to 150 in the tank. Only way for anyone to realize how a person stands this much heat is to think of it affecting you in a different way than does the heat back east. Out here you can work hard enough to sweat—but you do not. We have to look after our salt content though and take salt tablets regularly to keep from losing energy.

Lots of questions were asked me pertaining to printing in the classification booth at New Cumberland. They hold my records on that score now and if I do not make good at my gunsmith work, it is possible I will wind up in Washington, D. C., in the government printing office. Needless to say, I am much more determined to be a gunsmith than a printer just now and am confident no change will be made.

The men of this company are no lazy bunch of boys. Most are in their 30's and some over 46, but they are on the go and really are anxious to start. The people in Virginia can well anticipate big things from this company along the lines of its work and all that we need is a little information on what to do and where. A good thing is that we are all of Virginia and carry on the Virginia ways of life out here—yes, even in the middle of a desert. So watch out for us."

FRANK H. MILES

The address given on the letter is Sergeant Frank H. Miles, 530 Ordnance Co. (HM) (TK), Desert Training Center, Camp Young, California. I give this information for his friends to whom he has not yet had an opportunity to write and from whom he will be delighted to hear, I'm sure. Up until now, he has not been able to give an address as he has been moved from place to place. However, he will be at Camp Young until he finishes his basic training, so there will be ample time for letters to reach him.

Yours truly,
PRINTER'S DEVIL

A Dream And an Interpretation

Dear Editor:

Of course we believe in dreams, so far at least as the Bible warrants our doing so, as timely warnings, and as revelations of the Lord's will. We have an impressive and familiar example of each in the New Testament, that of Joseph (Matt. 1:20), and that of Pilate's wife (Matt. 27:19.) Just a short while ago, while carefully reading and reflecting on a part of Paul's second letter to Timothy, this assertion gripped me, "The time of my departure is at hand." Quite soon after this experience there followed the most remarkable and realistic dream of my long life. Didn't Peter preach on the Day of Pentecost that "in the last days," among other things, the "old men would dream dreams"? Why and for what? Surely for some righteous purpose. Now, so far as I would venture an interpretation of my remarkable dream, let me plainly affirm that I got the startling impression that when my departure becomes a settled fact, as indeed it may very soon, I would have my good friends give, instead of flowers, useful equivalents to the Red Cross, in my Savior's name, and for His sake. Let flowers in greater abundance go into homes and hospitals where there is so much sorrow and suffering in poor living human bodies.

Now, my dear brother, if the above seems to you to be a product of superstition or old age imbecility, please say, in its stead, that an old retired Baptist minister, in his 88th year, requests you to say that he much prefers his dear friends giving to the Red Cross for the poor suffering yet alive than flowers for his grave.

Cordially and fraternally yours,
JOHN R. FIZER

"Tell your mother," he answered, "to be sure and have my favorite crepe suzette for dessert and say I'll show up at 7 sharp."

Naval Men Under Many Hardships.

With U. S. Naval Forces in a United Kingdom Port, (Delayed)—Americans who are fighting the battle of supplying Russia and her armies through the dread "bomber lane" of the Arctic take their ordeals of fire ing the battle of supplying Russia through the dread "bomber lane" of the Arctic take their ordeals of fire and frigid waters in workaday stride.

U. S. Navy gunners and merchant seamen interviewed in this nerve center of convoy control were all survivors of attacks by U-boats that hunt in packs and torpedo bombers that swarm like bees—but they have but one theme: To fight through to victory, whatever the odds.

Among more than 100 naval personnel survivors brought here after their ships were shot out from under them were William Harkins, of Gloucester, N. J., and Albert D. Friday, of West Point, Miss., U. S. navy gunners on a merchantman.

Grim and Heroic

Theirs was typical of the grim and heroic stories told without fuss or feathers.

Their vessel was dive-bombed, then attacked by a level bomber and finally sprayed with incendiary bullets by a strafiing plane. When she could stand no more, her crew and gun crews took lifeboats.

They sailed and rowed for ten days before reaching sanctuary in Russia 350 miles away. They were two months in a Soviet hospital under treatment for frozen feet. Then they returned to Britain over the same submarine-ridden route.

And of their ten days in an open boat with 21 other men in Arctic waters so cold a man's flesh would turn dead white in mere minutes, Friday only said, quitely:

"It wasn't so bad, except for those two days it snowed."

This calm tale of heroism under torturous conditions can be matched a thousand times by the U. S. navy gun crews and merchant seamen who risk death constantly from bombs, bullets and ice to deliver armaments and supplies to the hard-pressed Russian armies.

Some Paid Heavy Price

Some convoys have had to pay a price for the attempt to get through, while recent ones have had notable successes against the German air force and submarines.

But almost to a man the survivors of bombings and sinkings in the Arctic expressed a warm desire to continue the battle—there or in whatever other ocean an assignment took them.

The most blood-chilling story from the convoy survivors came from Ensign William Roy Kirby, of Coffeyville, Kansas, in relating his experience of September 13, when German torpedo bombers made a mass attack.

"We were the leading ship in the convoy's starboard column," he said. "The leading ship in another column blew up with flames shooting up about 300 feet—and then we got it. A torpedo hit in the hatch where we were carrying ammunition."

Two more torpedoes crashed into the vessel, which went down in three minutes. All had to take to the water and swim for it for only one liferaft was launched.

n Freezing Water. I

"I dived for that one," Kirby said, "but when I came up it wasn't there. I remember thinking I might become too numb to tie a knot, so I wrapped a line they threw me about my wrist about eight times. I felt a pressure on the rope, and then I don't remember more."

By that time he had been in the water, estimated to have been about 28 degrees for 40 minutes.

In a merchantman torpedoed and sunk just a few minutes after that of Kirby and his crew were Ensign Charles H. Gibbs, of Charleston, S. C., and his crew of 12 gunners.

"There had been a bit of lackadaisical bombing from high level during the morning," Gibbs recalled, "but things had been comparatively quiet until we looked up and saw the torpedo bombers coming toward us. They looked like a swarm of bumblebees.

"I counted 37 of them and there were still more to be counted—but I didn't have time to count 'em.

Planes Flew Low

"We were in an exposed position on the outside column of the convoy. (Part censored) torpedoes were coming at us from both sides. Some of the planes flew in so low that I was looking down at them from my position over the bridge.

"Guns on our boat were throwing stuff at them in every direction. We got smoke and flame out of three of them but we were all too busy to see if they hit the sea or escaped over the horizon. Those babies had a long way to get home after the attack and a lot of them did not get home that day."

Gibbs and his crew all saw action under fire for the first time then.

TOO BUSY CHASING JAPS

By airmail from Quadalcanal comes the following letter with an enclosed check to Collector of Internal Revenue N. B. Early, Jr., in Richmond:

"Sorry to have kept you all waiting on the instalment payments on my income tax. Enclosed $2.40 which I hope makes payments in full, also for postage collect. Have been busy chasing Japs.

SGT. JAS. F. BERNARD, USMAC"

Our first reaction to the foregoing is that Sergeant Bernard has a completely satisfactory explanation for his tardiness in remitting the instalment on his income tax, and we hope and expect that Collector Early will see it in the same light. Any Marine who is busy chasing Japs over yonder in the Solomons has a right to expect Uncle Sam to exercise a little patience these days. After all, a fountain pen and a check-book are not part of the equipment usually carried by the Marines when thhey go hunting for Japs. —Roanoke Times.

SPEEDING ARRESTS IN STATE ARE DECREASING

State police reported today that 626 motorists were arrested in Virginia during the seven-day period ending October 23 for violation of the 35-mile speed limit. This compared with 796 arrests in the preceding seven-day period, the first of the enforcement of the new limit.

During the week ending October 3 State police tagged 862 motorists for violation of the 40-mile speed limit and obtained convictions in 820 cases.

Major C. W. Woodson, Jr., superintendent of State police, said the fines in most instances ranged from $5 and costs to $25 and costs with some flagrant violators being assessed fines as high as $250.

The drive against violations of the new speed limit will be continued, Major Woodson said.

SAVE SUGAR

Not a grain of sugar goes into the ingredients that result in the apple corn muffins basking in the basket. Honey is the sweetener that blends deliciously with crunchy raw apple while baking powder makes sure of no aftertaste that is the bane of the usual sugarless recipe. Trot out your muffin tins without ado—here's what you do to make 'em:

Apple Corn Muffins

¾ cup sifted flour
1/3 cup cornmeal
3 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons melted shortening
¼ cup sliced raw apple
1 egg, well beaten
1/3 cup milk
¼ cup honey

Sift together flour, cornmeal, baking powder and salt. Wash, pare and cut apple into eighths. Remove core and cut crosswise in very thin slices. Combine egg, milk and honey. Add to dry ingredients, stirring only enough to dampen well. Stir in melted shortening. Fold in apple. Fill well-greased muffin tins 2/3 full and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

Variations

Pear Corn Muffins: Substitute ¼ cup sliced, raw pear for apple in above recipe. Prepare same as for apple.

Fruit Corn Muffins: Substitute ¼ cup chopped dried fruit for sliced apple in above recipe.

Apple Butter

20 lbs. apples
10 lbs. sugar
1 pint vinegar

Pare and core apples, add sugar and vinegar and let stand over night. Place on back of stove in morning and cook slowly for three to four hours. Too off, stir and put in jars. Seal with paraffin.

Pepper Relish

12 green sweet peppers
12 red sweet peppers
12 or 6 onions

Grind up and scald for 10 minutes. Scald again, let boil, then drain dry. Add two cups sugar, 1 qt. vinegar, 2 tablespoons of salt, 1 hot red pepper, ½ tablespoon mustard seed. Boil 15 minutes and seal.

Coffee or Tea Milk for Children

Pecan Tea Cakes

1 cup light brown sugar
2 eggs, separated
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped pecans

Beat together sugar and well-beaten egg yolks. Add sifted dry ingredients, mix thoroughly. Add vanilla and nuts, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into small well-greased muffin tins, bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees, about 15 minutes. Makes about 12.

Menu for Sunday

Cream of Tomato Soup
Roast Chicken. Special Dressing
Cranberry Sauce
Baked Potatoes Buttered Asparagus
Hot Rolls or Biscuits
Raw Spinach Salad. Chive Dressing
Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream
Coffee or Tea Milk for Children

Special Dressing

Stuff the body of the chicken with your favorite stuffing. Use this special dressing to stuff between the skin and the breast, for extra flavor.

1 cup finely chopped cooked chestnuts or other nuts.
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons chopped celery
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Stuff chicken. If desired, onion and celery may be sauted lightly in butter before mixing, but this is not necessary.

Chocolate Chip Cookies

½ cup butter
½ cup honey
1 small egg
1 cup sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla
½ cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
¼ cup nut meats chopped

Cream butter and honey until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Sift flour, baking powder and salt twice. Add flour mixture to butter mixture; then add vanilla and blend all well. Fold in chocolate chips and nuts. Chill and drop by teaspoons on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 minutes.

Everyday Cookies

These are called "Everyday Cookies," because once you try them, you'll have to make them almost every day! It's a chewy cooky, and has a special flavor all it own.

½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
½ cup honey
1 egg
1 cup flour
½ tsp. soda
½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup quick-cooking oats
1 cup shredded cocoanut
1 tsp. vanilla
½ cup chopped nutmeats

Cream butter, sugar and honey together until light and fluffy. Add well-beaten egg; blend together. Sift flour with dry ingredients. Stir well Add oats cocoanut and vanilla. Add nutmeats. Spread on greased baking sheets; bake in moderate oven (350 deg.) for about 12 to 15 minutes. Cut in bars.

Virginia Ham Loaf

One pound smoked ham, chopped, 1 cup crumbs, ¼ cup chopped celery, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, 1 tablespoon minced onion, ½ cup milk, 1 egg or 2 yolks, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika. Mix ingredients and press into buttered loaf pan. Bake 40 minutes in moderate oven. Spread with topping.

Topping—1 cup brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1/3 cup crushed pineapple. Mix ingredients and spread over the ham loaf. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm or cold.

Southern Spoon Bread

One cup cornmeal, 1½ cups boiling water, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon sugar, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 egg yolks, 1 cup milk, 3 egg whites beaten. Add salt to boiling water. Add cornmeal and cook 10 minutes in double boiler, stirring frequently. Add remaining ingredients, mixing lightly. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake 40 minutes in moderatel slow oven. Serve hot with butter.

Oyster Rabbit

One tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, ½ cup tomato pulp, 1 cup oysters, ¾ pound mild cheese, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, well beaten, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce.

Melt butter and cheese in top of double boiler. Add other ingredients except oysters and cook slowly till hot and well blended. Heat oysters in their own liquor till edges curl, and place on slices of toast. Pour over the cheese mixture and serve at once. Makes 6 portions.

Women Taking War Work Seriously

Women are taking their part in the armed services very seriously, according to Jeane Hofmann, who studied the situation and wrote the following article in the Washington Times-Herald last week.

Women in uniform in this war are doing more than rolling up their sleeves. The peaceful housewives of yesteryear, whose main proficiency was rolling hair curlers into a well-kept coiffure, have pitched in with a fervor to do their part. This may be a man's world, but it's not his war alone.

They're serious about it. Listen today to Lieut. Col. Joan Kennedy, head of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. "left-tenant,' and the CWAC's are known as "Quacks.")

"We aren't trying to be soldiers. We haven't an exaggerated idea of what women can do, but we do know that whenever and wherever they can replace a fighting man, that is where Army women will be."

Pert and Precise

Pert and Precise, the "little Colonel" who corresponds to the WAAC's Major Oveta Culp Hobby, epitomizes the general feeling of women war leaders. They are serious about their jobs, and the big job to be done. But even though military stripes have replaced shirred waistlines and hair is two inches above the collar they're still women, and doing women's jobs. They aren't trying to be men.

Dry-humored Lieut.Comd. Mildred McAfee, head of the American WAVES, declared:

"It should be made plain that women are doing their part because there's a job to be done. They aren't trying to assert their equality by wearing uniforms!"

The "old man" of the drydocked sailor ladies—who do not go to sea—confided the difficulties attached to the name "WAVES."

"I heard the other day," she said, "that they're translating it—'Women are very essential—sometimes.' Well, if they're going to pun, we can come right back at them. After all, Navy rests on the WAVES."

"Post-Debs" Now

Major Julia Stimson, a big, hearty woman who represents 16,000 Army nurses, complained good-naturedly that nurses were the forgotten battalion of this war. But she wasn't shedding any tears about it.

"Milly McAfee's girls and the WAAC's said Major Stimson, "deserve all the credit they can get. We're post-debs by now, having joined the Army back in 1901.

"Nobody's interested in lacy doodads. When you get down in the swamps of Bataan, you haven't time for that stuff."

While Major Stimson stated that the U. S. needed 31,000 more nurses, Lieut. Col. E. L. Smellie, matron in chief of the Canadian Nurse Corps, declared that not only have the maple leaf legions never had to recruit, but that there is a long waiting list.

From England, the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service exported Superintendent Joan Carpenter to organize the Canadian Wrens.

Spirit Praised

"They ordered a 'mother Wren,' " smiled the boyish-bobbed chief, who wore a modified admirals hat. "I don't know why they sent me, but I want to say that I have found the Canadian women and the Americans have same boundless spirit as the British. No glamour, just plain work." Miss Carpenter drove a transport for the 1914 Wrens.

There are others on the job, including lovely Lieut. Helen Woods, of the WAAC's, who is the mother of three sons in the armed forces; Royal Canadian Air Force Squadron Leader Kathleen Walker, first Canadian woman to hold the king's commission in Empire forces; Mrs. Dwight Davis, national director of the W. D. V. S. Red Cross, and Mrs. Winthrop Aldich, of the Civilian Defense Office.

Middle age is that period in a man's life when he'd rather not have a good time than have to get over it.

"Share-the-Meat" Voluntary Campaign.

Note: The following articles, released in connection with the voluntary "share-the-meat" campaign, deals with meat rationing overseas—in Axis and Axis-held territory as well as in the lands of our Allies.

The average American under the voluntary meat sharing plan feasts on meat by contrast with the strict rationing of meat products overseas—in both friendly and enemy countries.

The adult American, under the meat sharing program, is asked to consume no more than 2½ pounds weekly of the retail cuts and canned meats made from beef, pork, veal, lamb and mutton carcasses. The 2½ pounds do not include the "variety" meats—hearts, kidneys, livers, sweetbreads—the meats made from the heads, the tails and the feet, and scrapple and souse made from carcass trimmings and other materials. Nor do the voluntary restrictions apply to fish and poultry. The individual British consumer gets a basic ration of meat which varies according to his need and is able to supplement this to a limited degree by various means.

However, the average adult Briton, at present, gets slightly under 2 pounds weekly of the meats limited in the United States—31 ounces as against the 40 ounces called for in our voluntary meat sharing program.

But the joker in the 31-ounce figure is that this amount constitutes just about all the meat—of any sort whatever—that the average Briton can buy. The so-called "variety" meats—liver, sweetbreads, etc.—unrestricted in the United States—are not available in Britain for these reasons—(1) The low rate of animal slaughter in the British Isles, where practically all meats must be imported, and (2) the fact that the meats which are not restricted in the United States do not ship well and consequently are not exported to Britain.

While Americans are free to supplement their consumption of the limited meats with fish and poultry, these products are highly limited in Britain. Fish, once an important item in British diet, is at present 70 percent below the pre-war level. Poultry, never a large item of diet in Britain, is one-third below prewar level.

Moreover the supply of important alternate foods for meat is also limited in Britain. Inasmuch as Britain's former substantial imports of shell eggs have disappeared entirely and with home products one-third below peace-time levels, the average Britain is expected to receive only one egg a month this winter. The supply of cheese, however, is somewhat above the pre-war level.

While meats are not rationed in Canada, the supply is limited through restriction of the supplies for domestic use. Making hugh sacrifices to aid the Mother Country, Canada is shipping large quantities of food to Britain, including its entire supply of canned salmon and canned beef, while a two-year voluntary rationing program is being carried out on ham and bacon.

In Germany, which largely is feeding herself by theft of supplies from conquered territory, the normal consumer is limited to 12½ ounces per week of the types of meats restricted in the United States.

In urban centers of unoocupied France the average adult is limited to 8.8 ounces weekly, while peasants in the rural districts are restricted to 6.3 ounces—less than a half-pound. Occupied France is believed to have a slightly higher meat ration than the unoccupied territory but definite figures are not available.

The ration in Italy varies from 3½ to 5½ ounces weekly, plus 1½ ounces of sausage.

In Russia, meat is rationed in the cities but not in the villages. The ration in Moscow is 8.8 ounces per week, a standard believed similar to the ration in other Russian cities.

The ration for Norway is listed at 7.1 ounces a week, but actually, in view of the meat shortage, the Norwegian considers himself lucky if he gets half that. The same is true in other German-conquered lands. In the Netherlands, to cite another instance, the weekly ration is posted at 10.6 ounces, but if a Hollander gets a third of that in any one week he is fortunate. The ration for Belgium is 4.9 ounces a week.

Greece has no regular distribution of meat. While meat sale officially is regulated to one day weekly, reports from Greece indicate that the only meat available is what can be obtained in the "black market." Nothing is known about the meat situation in Poland—except that the Poles starve. The ration of Neutral Sweden is 5½ ounces weekly, while Bulgaria's is 7.-ounces, Croatia's 5.3 ounces and Serbia's 4.4 ounces. The Slovakian ration is 14.2 ounces. Slovakia raises slaughter cattle and transportation difficulties in the country may curtail shipments to other areas. Hungary has two meatless days every week. On three days of each week no pork is sold, while on four days the butcher is forbidden to sell veal and mutton.

The Japanese normally consume little meat.

Some of the most successful men in the country attribute their success to what they have learned from their failures.

4-H Club Achievement Day a Success

The annual 4-H Avhievement Day program was held at Liberty Academy on Saturday, October 31st. Fifteen out of seventeen clubs were represented with an attendance of approximately eighty-five members, parents and leaders.

The meeting was called to order by Margaret Turpin, president of the County 4-H Council. The invocation was given by S. S. Hylton, county agent. The group then said the pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and sang "God Bless America."

There was a roll call of all Junior and Senior 4-H clubs and a representative from each club gave a report on the club activities for the year. Between reports there was special and group singing.

The Huddleston Senior 4-H club presented a monologue entitled "A Mother Speaks." The music was furnished by Miss Martha Frances McKee of Huddleston.

Reports were given on camps as follows: Senior District Camp at Holladay Lake, Kenneth Crouch: Junior District Camp at Holladay Lake, Virginia Turpin; and the Wildlife Conservation Camp, Mrs. Lelia Calfee Atkinson, county H. D. agent as no delegates were present.

Mrs. Atkinson and Frank L. Overstreet, gave a report on club work in the county for 1942.

Awards were made by Mrs. Atkinson and Mr. Overstreet to club members and leaders who had done outstanding club work. Mrs. J. H. Kern was awarded a beautiful engraved certificate as having been leader of the Bunker Hill club for sixteen years. This award was donated by Mr. T. A. Erickson, former State 4-H Club Leader in Minnesota and now affiliated with General Mills, Inc. To all club members and leaders working with a garden project were presented with Victory Garden pins. The Danforth Award was presented to Nancy Wells and Kenneth Crouch for outstanding leadership and club work during the year. Special recognition was given members who had been in club work five and three years, respectively.

Frank L. Overstreet gave a report in the pig contests in this county last year. The winners for the western part of the county were Jimmy Hicks, Moneta; James Johnson, Stewartsville; and W. J. Johnson, Moneta. The winners in the eastern section were Roy Kern, Bunker Hill; Thomas Bulis, Big Island; and Winston Woodford, Huddleston. In a pig contest including Bedford, Franklin and Roanoke counties, Ray Turner of the Huddleston club was awarded first prize for his pen of four pigs and second grand prize at the entire show.

The club members and leaders were given reduced tickets to the Liberty Theatre in the afternoon.

CONCERN OVER FARM LABOR SHORTAGE VOICED BY SENATOR BYRD

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23—Senator Byrd has communicated with Brigadier General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of the Selective Service System, and Hon. Paul V. McNutt, Chairman of the War Manpower Commission, with respect to the serious problem confronting the farmers in the shortage of farm labor.

Senator Byrd today expressed much concern over the apparent plan of those in charge of the distribution of manpower during this emergency of first drafting experienced farm labor and then, when the shortage of labor becomes most critical, attempting to draft men inexperienced in farming to place on the farms.

Mr. Byrd said this was handling the problem backwards, and that, if there is a real shortage of farm labor, as there is, some means should be found to give to essential skilled farm labor the same deferment that is now given to skilled industrial labor, and, likewise, to prevent the enticement of farm labor to war industries. Senator Byrd's letter, in part, follows:

Brigadier General Lewis B. Hershey and
The Honorable Paul V. McNutt
Dear Sirs:

America, in this world war, must be not only an arsenal for democracy but must be the bread basket for democracy. Farm labor has been drafted from the farms without giving individual consideration to the need and indispensability of those drafted. To my personal knowledge, farm owners, operators and skilled farm hands have been drafted, which is resulting in a loss of food production. But worse than that, the Government itself has been paying such high wages for Government work and for work in defense plants that the farms have been drained of labor essential to maintain the standard of food production so vital for our success in winning the war.

It is imperative, I think, that prompt and firm action be taken to remedy this situation, but let me emphasize that only those familiar with farm work can render efficient service on the farm. It would be the height of folly to continue to draft experienced form hands, and then later, to draft for farm work those who are not familiar with the work of farming, in an attempt to replace the experienced farmers already drafted. The farmer cannot continue to do his part in winning the war and have his labor drafted on one hand and, on the other, have his labor enticed to other activities by high government wages.

If you believe, as you must, that the production of food is absolutely essential to winning this war, then the time has come when action can no longer be delayed, and something effective and prompt must be done to avoid any further depletion of farm labor. In fact, this depletion has gone so far that action is necessary now to replace the labor that has already been taken from the farm by the high prices paid in war industries, and by the draft.

Cordially yours,
HARRY F. BYRD,
U. S. Senator

Ameliorating Circumstances

An old farmer was moodily regarding the ravages of the flood.

"Hiram," yelled a neighbor, "your pigs were all washed down the creek."

"How about Flahertys pigs?" asked the farmer.

"They're gone, too."

"And Larsen's?"

"Yes."

"Humph!" ejaculated the farmer, cheering up. "Tain't as bad as I thought."

Ready and Willing.

She had gone to the fortune teller and had listned with increasing interest to the sketch of her life, past and future, as portrayed in the lines of her palm.

"Madam," said the palmist in his most impressive manner, "you should be very, very happy. A nobler man than your husband you have yet to meet."

"How absolutely thrilling," gushed the woman. "But when?"

No Other Noise?

An elderly woman had been to hear her nephew preach for the first time, and she thought it a very poor sermon.

Later that day she asked: "James why did you enter the ministry?"

"Because I was called," he answered.

"James," said the aunt, looking solemnly at him, "are you sure it wasn't some other noise you heard?"

Material Conserving Style for Patriotic Women . .

VELVET PARTY FROCK as worn in Hollywood by Rose Anne Stevens

Attractive Screen Actress

This week's frock is the kind to be selected for one's "best" and worn to special occasions—to go dancing or to any informal, yet dress-up, affair.

The skirt was just made for dancing—it's so full it will twirl delightfully whether it's a rhumba or a waltz. A sash belt ties in front and it's from under this that the gathered skirt fullness is released. The bodice is alive with many new style details. The sloping lines of the yoke from which the darts emanate, form a diamond shape neckline with center closing. Three attractive dark, pearl-like buttons complete this fashion first. The material is a lush, crease-resistant velvet in two rich colors . . . green or black.

Serviceable Gifts for Service Men

NO matter what branch of the service "he" is in, or even if he is still available on the home front, chill wintry blasts require woolens for warmth—and knitted scarfs, gloves and socks will surely make welcome gifts. If you have knitted them yourself, they will be doubly appreciated because a gift which has been "specially made" by you will have a special appeal for him. Use sturdy knitting worsted because it is serviceable, smart, comfortable and warm. The smooth fitting scarf is strategically ribbed to eliminate any bulkiness at the neck. Directions for knitting these designs may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper, specifying design No. S-107.

FOREST AND VICINITY

Sunday school next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and preaching service at 12 o'clock at the Baptist church; all members come and bring your friends.

Miss Alice Yancey, of Philadelphia, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Blanch Yancey, and sister, Miss Carrie Yancey. Mrs. Yancey is some better, we are glad to say; we hope she continues to improve.

Robbie Trent, of Roanoke, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Trent.

Mrs. George Layne and three children, of Lowry, visited Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Campbell and sons and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. White last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Mayberry and Mr and Mrs. M. A. Dearing, of Lynchburg, visited Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Dearing last Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hanel and children, of Lynchburg, visited his mother, Mrs. B. Hanel, and sister, Mrs. Lena Leiss, last Sunday, in the village.

B. B. Dearing and D. E. Davis called on their friend, T. H. Campbell, last Sunday who is still in bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hargis and three sons, from near New London, visited Mr. and Mrs. M. E. McIvor and children last Sunday.

Rev. J. B. Thurman preached at the West Lynchburg Baptist church last Sunday morning; Dr. P. T. Harmon was in Richmond.

A daughter, Ann Adams Hatfield, was born to Mrs. Hatfield last week; her husband is in the army.

Messrs. Wyatt and Scott May, of Roanoke, visited Relatives in this community last Saturday night and Sunday.

Lawrence Sprouse was greeting old friends in this community last Saturday evening.

Miss Betty Walker is working in Richmond; has been for quite a while.

Mrs. Alice Cline has returned home from Roanoke where she visited her daughter.

Miss Frances Lindsay, of the Amherst school faculty, spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lindsay.

Mr. G. H. Sexton had the misfortune to get hurt last week and is laid up in bed; we hope he will soon be all right and able to do his work.

Mrs. Lessie Brown spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lazenby, near Bedford, who celebrated their 66th wedding anniversary on that day.

HUDDLESTON, ROUTE 2

Mrs. John Hackworth, who has been very ill for the past few weeks, is now on the road to recovery her friends are glad to hear, for she has been missed from her church very much.

Rev. M. O. Harrell filled his appointment here Sunday morning, to a not so large but attentive congregation who enjoyed his sermon.

The farmers are busy sowing wheat, getting in firewood, etc., while the ladies, whose "work is never done," still find a few hours for visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walton visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Wood, Sunday. Other visitors at the Wood home were Mrs. J. J. Coffey and daughter, Elsie, Sidney Wood and son Jene, Miss Peggy Johnson, Mr. Dickerson and Mr. and Mrs. Loving, of Altavista; and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Burnett, of Lynch's Station.

H. I. Wood is "all smiles"—he sold a fine "veal" hog on the Lynchburg market last week. On the trip Mrs. Wood was promenading around the hat shops, anticipating on buying a new headpiece this season. She generally makes her own hats and is considered a "style setter" in the community but she has decided to "splurge' this season and get a "boughten" hat.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Angel recently were her mother, Mrs. N. B. Warner, of Roanoke, and her niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Johnson and two children of Pulaski.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Goode were bedtime callers at H. I. Wood's one night recently.

Everette Wood, working in Altavista all the week, is worried about his week-ends—he has to act as chauffer for his mother, look after his lady friends, help his Dad on the farm. But he is a cheerful boy and does his best.

Mrs. N. B. Warner, of Roanoke; Mrs. James B. Angel, of Huddleston; and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Johnson, of Pulaski, were sight-seeing in Altavista last Friday.

Mrs. Kelly Guthrie and Mrs. Clara Driskill and daughter, Frances, called at H. I. Wood's one evening last week.

We were sorry to see Melvin Wood, as well as other boys leave for camp, but they have our best wishes and prayers for their safe return.

While you are pondering over what to send the boys who have gone to camp, include the Bedford Bulletin. One soldier was heard to say, he never cared to much about reading the Bulletin, until he left home, and his mother sent him as a present the Bedford Bulletin, and now he says she couldn't have sent him anything he enjoyed more than the good Ole Bulletin. PUNCH & JUDY

FAIRVIEW

The farmers are quite busy this week trying to get some wheat sowed, even though it is quite late for sowing whaeat.

Col. and Mrs. A. H. Camden, of Chatham, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Huddleston one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Saunders and son, of Covington, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Overstreet and daughter, were week-end guests of their mother, Mrs. Emma Overstreet.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Luck and daughter were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nance.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Thomas, of Radford, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Redman, of Roanoke, Mrs. Allen Huddleston and Miss Margaret Hopkins, of Bedford, and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McDaniel visited at Frank Huddleston's Sunday.

Mrs. Richard Carter and daughters, Misses Rachel and Ruth Carter, of Lynchburg and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Snead and children, of Roanoke, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Sam McDaniel.

Mrs. J. T. Woodford visited Mrs. Frank Huddleston one day last week.

Mrs. J. A. Smith and son, Willie have moved to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, near town. We wish them success in their new home.

Mr. Harry Smith, who has been quite ill, is slowly improving at his home here.

Asks for Check Of Gems in U. S.

Diamonds Needed to Give Precision Required in Modern War Engines.

WASHINGTON.—Modern war has made the diamond more precious than ever.

Throughout history diamonds have figured in romance, assassinations and adventure. But it remained for the current time to see them used as a tool without which America would find it hard to produce its fighting material.

Enemy countries also need diamonds for war. And if the United States can keep them from getting them, it will handicap them almost as much as though they were cut off from steel or oil.

This is why the War Production board is calling upon all Americans having title to 10 carats or more of rough diamonds to report their holdings.

At present the order applies only to rough diamonds. But a call may eventually be expected for an inventory of all stocks of the precious stone.

Help War Drive.

Meanwhile, purchasers of engagement stones and other decorative diamonds are helping the war effort. For industrial diamonds would be five or six times as costly if they were not a by-product of the mining and cutting of more valuable gems.

The importance of this may be judged from the fact that just one war production plant in Detroit uses industrial diamonds at the rate of $2,000,000 worth annually.

Only the diamond has the hardness necessary to repeat the same precision operation over and over again, with never a variation. Since precision is an essential of assembly line production, war factories without the diamond would have to fall back on the old hit-and-miss methods of hand work.

Chief uses of the diamond in war industry are to true super-hard abrasive tools, turn delicate machine parts, draw wire to precise thickness, and to grind lenses for bomb-sights, range-finders and navigation instruments.

Fortunately this country has an abundance of gems. Between 1934 and 1941 United States dealers imported $42,753,517 worth of industrial diamonds alone. In addition, the Union of South Africa, one of our allies, produces 95 per cent of all diamonds.

Other Sources Available.

Even should this source be cut off, however, Brazil is a large source of diamonds and diamonds of good industrial quality have been found in Arkansas.

Output of Africa was shut off to Axis powers three years ago. As a result the Axis powers are so hard pressed for industrial diamonds that they are said to be using cut stones in their factories.

The Japs also, reportedly short of diamonds when they entered the war, may have their eye on the immense treasure chests of Indian rajahs.

Incidentally, the Germans greatly augmented this country's diamond supply without intending to. When the Nazis invaded Belgium and Holland, they had planned to seize the huge stock of diamonds in Antwerp and Amsterdam, centers of the world diamond cutting industry. But the diamond cutters, two jumps ahead, got their stocks aboard British warships which had been lying by for that purpose. On the ships also fled some of the world's most famous diamond cutters.

Some of these cutters went to London; others are now in the United States and have established Americanized "streamlined" diamond-cutting establishments on West Forty-seventh street, New York city, the new center of America's diamond trade.

War May Cause Return of Old-Fashioned Nightshirt

WASHINGTON. — The war may bring about a revival of the old-fashioned nightshirt, or its 1942-model cousin.

One of the proposals for cloth conservation advanced at a meeting of men's pajama makers with the War Production board was a collarless sleepcoat—described by WPB as "a sort of nightgown."

Other suggestions, which may be embodied in a forthcoming order, included the shortening of trousers and coats on ordinary pajamas; the elimination of collars, lapels, cuffs, pockets and belts; the use of only a few specified fabrics, and the manufacture of perhaps not more than three pajama styles.

Canned Fish to Vanish Soon From Store Shelves

WASHINGTON.—The chances are, Mrs. Housewife, that in a few months you won't be able to buy a can of salmon or sardines.

Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson of the interior department's fish and wildlife service has told the senate appropriations committee that demands of the army, navy and lend-lease agency would eliminate canned fish from civilian menus for the war's duration.

Fat Kine or Lean

By E. L. HALL
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.)

NOON hour was on at the lunch-counter of the All-American Bus terminal, and Mr. Otto Semberkind was busy. Not that Otto was not busy every noon hour—no; but that today he was much busier than usual. He was contemplating, nay, was bent on doing a momentous thing.

Ordinarily, his business was "san'wiches 'n' cawfy." Today, in a large measure, it was Miss Gertie Weinkoop; one of the All-American ticket-sellers—the lean one with straight hair and slim legs, third from last window on the right. Gertie had come to his section for luncheon. More than this, Gertie had been coming to his section for luncheon every day, now, these past three weeks.

To put his present case in his own expressive words, Otto was "nuts on Gertie." His cardiac exciter was demanding of him that he propose marriage to her not later than ten thirty that evening.

Now had Otto only stopped to think about it; there was a slight obstacle to the consummation of his desire. It was this: A first Mrs. Otto Semberkind was still very much in the flesh—some hundred and eighty-nine pounds of it—wandering about somewhere up in the Pennsylvania sticks, wondering where her dapper husband had gone.

Otto Semberkind was a fugitive from matrimony. Understand this. Not from matrimony as he had dreamed of it in adolescence; was now dreaming of it—a hybrid sort of conjugal union with an ideal. But from the real thing—the common garden variety of union with excess weight and too much tongue.

A year ago—back in his pre-war New York days—Otto had suddenly decided that he could and would no longer endure those twin evils—weight and words. They just spoil any wife, no matter how many kilowatt-hours of love she may be capable of generating.

People used to wonder at them, he knew, whenever Mrs. Otto came—and she came often—to eat the Star Quick Lunch up in Peaville, Pennsylvania, where Otto worked.

So Otto had lit out. Now, dead to the old life (for never a bus from Peaville, Pennsylvania, finds its way to his All-American), he had risen fast in the new. Already he had forgotten how hick towns look. Also, he had forgotten other women and was concentrating on lean Gertie Weinkoop. No more fat ones for Mr. Otto Semberkind, he would tell the world. He could take his pick yet-a-while. "Don't look a day over twenty-three."

And he did not, although he was actually ten days beyond his three-and-thirty mark. His straw-colored locks were strong and full. His eyes held the lure of youth in their azure depths. Only a silly round chin-dimple kept him from looking quite a man.

But he need not worry a whit about his chin-dimple, since Gertie Weinkoop was showing him favor. She was the sort to stand by through thick and thin. Even now her big hazel eyes were gazing wistfully at him over the rim of her three-decker. Big hazel eyes with the light in them.

And he was crooning to her; making his voice sound something like Rudy's, only with the necessary business interludes of course—"

"Speaking of faces, kid, strange we never see one we know in all this crowd. But we should worry as long as . . . What's that, kid? Someone lookin' at me? Where, kid? Right back of me . . . at the other counter? Keeps lookin' hard, does she? I should worry when I have you . . ."

"Ot-toe . . . dee'ar . . ."

The words came to him as if across the void of memory. There was no mistaking the voice that had uttered them. He had heard it a thousand times—calling his name that way. He could not look around—simply could not. But how had she found him?

"What made yuh run away, dovie? Did yuh git tired of me? Bertie Tinkham told me where you was."

Terrible—that tongue—that dovey—everything! Should he run from it? Make a break for liberty out of the side door. Would Gertie run with him? Could they lose themselves in love and the Bronx—or in love and Hoboken, perhaps? Should he? Would she?

He cast one imploring glance at his ideal—and saw the answer to his riddle. Gertie Weinkoop was eyeing him coldly. The face he lived for looked as if its teeth had just bitten into a bad dog. And there was that other woman—clinging to him like a leech—

"Won't yuh come back home, Otto? I'm so lonesome . . . and everybody misses yuh. Come with me, Otto . . . Back to Peaville on the bus. I'll pay the fares, dovey."

Otto Semberkind slowly took off his white apron; got his hat and coat; and turned sadly to Mrs. Otto—as rejected lovers sometimes turn to Death. For lean Gertie Weinkoop had thumbed her nose at him; had gone, tittering, back to her ticket window; and had not paid for her three-decker-toasted and her malted milk.

Just as Bad.

A visitor going over a coutnry church one day saw a group of men near the pulpit talking about repairs that were needed. Going up to them he said:

"What is wrong? Have you got dry rot in the pulpit?"

"No, there's no dry rot in the pulpit, but there are worms in the pews.'

In the whole history of man no substitute has been found for brains.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES.

By S. S. HYLTON.

NEW FARM MACHINERY PRACTICALLY EXHAUSTED

The War Production Board has just announced that the manufacture of new farm machinery and equipment for 1943 will be approximately 20 per cent of the average production in 1940 and 1941. Beginning November 1, a permanent rationing program went into effect, and very few machines are available for purchase. The following shows the amount of machines manufactured in 1942 and the amount that will be manufactured in 1943. Disk harrows, 78,000 against 30,000; 1-row, 2-horse cultivators, $15,000 against 3300; horse-drawn mowers, 45,000 against 14,000 in 1943; drills, 25,400 as against 6,700 in 1943; and tractors, 170,000 as against 37,000.

Farmers should very carefully conserve their farm equipment, keeping it under shelter and keeping it well oiled and greased against rust. All weak parts should be repaired or replaced.

NO PERMITS NECESSARY TO BUTCHER FARM HOGS

The county agent has heard of rumors throughtout Bedford County that farmers must have a permit before they can butcher their hog meat supply. This is just a rumor that is not backed up by facts. When the time comes for issuing permits for hog slaughter farm people will be notified through normal channels of disseminating information.

The country is full of rumors today. Lots of these rumors are weapons of the enemy who tries to weaken morale and confuse the people. When rumors of this kind make their appearance farm people should contact the office of civilian defense and the county agent's office or other government agencies who are carrying out defense work in the county for facts of the case.

Notice to Soybean Growers

Farmers who are producing soybeans for oil purposes are advised by the Triple A office that they should secure at least $1.60 per bushel for soybeans grading No. 2 or better for the green and yellow varieties. These beans can be stored and loans secured for approximately this amount. Every effort is being made by the county Triple A office and county agent to complete arrangements for storing or for sale by the time the beans are combined.

Nothing Missed

"Mr. Chairman," said the orator who was being severely heckled, "I must appeal on a point of order. I have been speaking now for over a quarter of an hour, but there are so many interruptions and so must ribaldry from all parts of the hall that I can scarcely hear myself speaking."

"Cheer up!" exclaimed someone. "You're not missing much."

Iife Job.

Two Germans met in Paris. Carl said to Fritz: "Have you a good job here?"

"Yes, I have a very good job. I sit on the Eiffel Tower and watch for the English to wave the white flag," said Fritz.

"Is it good pay?"

"Not much, but it's for life."

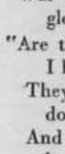
One Objection.

Employer (to new typist)— Er—I don't approve of smoking in my office. Surely your last employer didn't allow it?"

Typist"Well, only for the first few days. Then he objected to the ashes falling on his suit.'

LIBERTY LIMERICKS

"War Bonds," said an angler named Wade,
"Are the sportingest catch I have made—
They'll save us our freedom
And then, when we need 'em,
They're good for more cash than we paid!"



Help sink those Japanese "fishermen"! Put a full ten percent of your income into War Bonds or Stamps, every pay day. It's VITAL.

MEMORIAL.

In sad but loving remembrance of our loving husband and father, Robert V. Angle, who departed this life Nov. 6th, 1931:

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
Our eyes shed many a tear;
Only God knows how we miss you,
At the end of eleven sad years.

He has left this old world of sorrow,
No more will he know aches or pains.
We pray that some day we'll greet him—
Our loss is only his gain.

American Legion Has Armistice Day Program

"If there was any fault in the last armistice, it was the fault of the people who wrote it and not the fault of the men who fought," declared Past State Chaplain Arthur Warner, of Lynchburg, in opening his Armistice Day talk at the court house last night on a program sponsored by the Howard E. Board Post, American Legion, and Auxiliary. The spirit of the soldier was not put into the armistice, but rather the pretty words of politicians, he continued, and it was due to this that it failed.

The speaker cautioned against putting down "surface emotions" when the time comes to make another peace. We must think the thing through and make this a lasting peace, he declared. Enlarging on this theme he pointed out the necessity for "united action with faith in one another." There must be an international understanding, he said. In concluding, he pointed out that we want a "righteous, universal, perpetual peace," and that such a peace would be the biggest thing this world every dreamed of. America, he said, has what it takes to make this world happy; to help these diseased nations shake off hate and malice and replace it with love for all mankind.

Central Committee To Handle Salvage

National Silk Stocking Campaign to Begin November 16th

In order to form a permanent central salvage committee to take care of all salvage problems which will arise for the duration of the war, the town has been divided into four sections with a captain for each section, Mrs. J. K. Walker, chairman of the local salvage committee announced this week. These captains are Mrs. Dooley Leininger, Mrs. S. M. Painter, Mrs. R. A. Scott and Mrs. W. L. Lyle. The dividing lines are the railroad and Bridge street In addition to these four captains and Mrs. Walker, the following have been appointed to serve on the central committee: Mrs. Mitchell Bowyer, president of the Bedford Parent-Teacher Association; Mrs. E. A. Scott, graded school supervisor for Bedford county; Mrs. Claud Harrison and Miss M. L. Richardson.

Each captain will select a number of lieutenants, who will, in turn, have assistants, when needed, to work in her district. All phases of salvage work will be handled through this new organization, including the silk stocking campaign which begins nationally on November 16. Mrs. Walker emphasized, however, that new campaigns did not mean that the conservation and collection of old materials which are needed should cease.

Beginning Monday with the opening of the national silk stocking drive, Bedford stores will have containers for the collection of old hosiery, Mrs. Walker said. Bedford women are requested to turn in hosiery of the following description: all silk, all nylon, mixture of silk and nylon, silk and rayon, lylon and rayon, silk and cotton and nylon and cotton. All stockigs should be washed before they are deposited at the stores.

The silk will be used in the manufacture of powder bags which are used by the armed services and into which charges of powder are placed for generating the power required to expel a shell from guns of major calibre. They are placed in the breach of the gun. An attached fuse is ignited to cause the explosion that expels the shell. Only silk can be used as it alone burns completely and leaves no hot embers. Nylon is not used for this purpose but is used in making other important war materials. Approximately 1500 pairs of silk or 2300 pairs of nylon stockings are needed to make up a 100 pound case.

Pupils in the Bedford graded schools are already assisting in the collection of silk stockings as well as other fabrics, Mrs. Walker stated. Nearly 400 pounds of rags were collected by them and turned over to the salvage committee during the past week. Room mothers, members of the parent-teacher association which is sponsoring the work in the school, who assisted at the school Friday in weighing the scrap were the following: Mrs. C. W. Venable, Mrs. A. Ward Gillaspie, Mrs. J. S. Tate, Mrs. John Chesson, Mrs. M. R. Marsh, Mrs. G. C. Luck and Mrs. E. L. Smither.

Mrs. Walker will be captain of the industrial section, for the present, and will work in cooperation with the heads of the various plants.

Coffee Rationing Regulations Cited

Stamp No. 27 in Sugar Ration Books First to be Used for Coffee

At midnight Saturday, November 21, 1942, the coffee rationing regulations become effective. At the present time on roasted coffee Mrs. Consumer does not have to register. Beginning November 29, she will be able to buy coffee, using stamp 27, which has been designated as the first roasted coffee stamp. Stamp No. 27 is in the left-hand corner of the War Nation Book Number One, the book that has been used for sugar. The second stamp to be used will be Number 28, the third Number 26 and the fourth Number 25.

From Saturday, November 21, through midnight Saturday, November 28, no sales of roasted coffee at retail to consumer will be permitted. All persons owning War Ration Books whose age is shown as 15 years or more on such books are eligible to buy roasted coffee. By roasted coffee is meant, a pound of either roasted coffee or a pound of any mixture or compound containing coffee. Coffee stamps in books of consumers whose age is shown on their books as 14 years or less are not valid. Such stamps must remain attached until the War Ration Book Number 2 is issued.

If a consumer is still ineligible to receive his War Ration Book on account of having an excess supply of sugar he will receive a book containing only those stamps pertaining to coffee which are numbers 17 through 28.

No green coffee may be sold to any consumer.

Only institutional users, which are, such as hotels, restaurants, drug store, hospitals, etc., will be registered at this time. They will register at the same

Whiskey Rationing To Begin Tomorrow

Richmond, Nov. 9. Virginians will have to get along with only one quart of whiskey a day per person, and get that between the hours of ten in the morning and six in the evening, beginning Friday, November 13th according to an announcement just released by the Alcohol Beverage Control Board.

The new ruling goes into effect at once because of the fast depleting stocks and the inability to secure men to man the stores in varying shifts required to keep the stores open for long hours as in the past. While State liquor stores have had different opening and closing hours, the earliest opening at seven and the latest keeping open until midnight, from now on the opening and closing hours will be uniform throughout the State and only one shift of employees will be needed.

In releasing the new ruling the Board also announced that the total revenues of the State ABC stores for the quarter, ending September 30th was $10,250,000. which was four million dollars greater than during the same period in 1941, or a 66 per cent increase.

Horses Poisoned With Damaged Feed

Information reaching the county agent's office indicates that farmers are already experiencing trouble from forage poisoning in horses. Dr. B. W. Dean, local veterinarian, states that this trouble can be more easily prevented than cured. He suggests that farmers should exercise care in selecting sound feed for their horses, and not give them corn fodder or hay that has molded or has been damaged from weather. Damaged corn should not be fed.

Since horses are more susceptable to forage poisoning than cattle, the very best hay should be fed to them and let the cattle have the off grade roug.hages.

Evelyn Arthur Is Seriously Injured

Miss Evelyn Arthur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Arthur, is seriously ill in Lewis-Gale hospital in Roanoke where she was taken after an automobile wreck at Bonsack Saturday night. Miss Arthur was traveling to Roanoke in a car driven by Nelson Boothe, of Shady Grove, and the automobile apparently skidded when rounding the curve into Bonsack going west and crashed against a telephone post, which struck the side of the car on which Miss Arthur was sitting. She sustained a fractured skull and a broken collar bone and was still unconscious with no improvement in her condition last yesterday.

The accident occured about 10 o'clock at night and it was raining at the time. No other car was involved.

Bedford Boys Receive Honors

Word has been received that Harry Lockard who graduated from the Bedford High School in June 1940 has been awarded the Rhe Chi award for the best first year record last year in the School of Pharmacy in the Medical College of Virginia.

Sherrill Coleman who graduated from Bedford High School in June 1941 also won the scholarship for the best record in the Freshman year at Lynchburg College last year.

Both boys were leading students at Bedford High School when they attended there.

War Stamp Tea November 18th

The Liberty Garden Club will sponsor a War Stamp tea November 18. Holiday dinner-table arrangements will be made by members at their homes and the club and as many others as care to see these arrangements will make a tour of these homes. The tour will begin at the home of Mrs. S. S. Hylton, at 4 p. m. and the purchase of a war savings stamp will be required as an admission fee.

T. B. Association To Meet Saturday

Chairmen to Receive Materials for Seal Sale Campaign November 23

Materials for the tuberculosis 1942 seal sale, which will start on November 23, have been received and will be distributed to workers at a meeting of the Bedford County Tuberculosis Association to be held Saturday morning, November 14, at 10:00 o'clock in the Bedford county court house. Miss M. L. Richardson, executive secretary announced this week. This year's Christmas seal features a red barn and a white farmhouse in the background of a snowy scene. In the foreground is a drift-lined road on which is depicted an old-fashioned swell-front sleigh, drawn by two horses.

Dale Nichols, one of the outstanding younger American artists, designed the 1942 Christmas seal as a means of support to the work of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association during the coming year. His paintings are hung in many museums and private collections, including the Metropolitan Museum in New York, the Art Institute of Chicago and the University of Illinois.

The school committee of which Mrs. Charles E. Green is chairman, has begun work on an educational program to tie in with the high school clinics which the Bedford County Tuberculosis Association will hold January 13-14-15 at which all high school pupils and teachers will be examined. This is a continuation of an educational program on which the association has cooperated with the schools for the past few years. The association supplies material for a unit to be taught in each seventh grade throughout the county. This work is considered particularly important, O. T. Bonner, president of the association stated, in view of the fact that the association plans to hold high school clinics regularly after this year, examining each freshman class as it enters high school. The educational work done in the seventh grade will, therefore, have the effect of laying a foundation for pupils and parents understanding of the clinic the following year.

Mrs. Susie Gibson, who is head of the Negro Auxiliary, has announced the appointment of the following persons who will aid not only in the seal sale, but also in the school program in the Negro schools: Mrs. Martha Jackson, Bedford; Mrs. Lizzie Hancock, Goodview; Mrs. Lizzie Quarles, Bedford, Route; Mrs. Roxie English, Huddleston; Nolan Taylor, Moneta; the Rev. H. D. Clark, Chisolm Kyle and Mrs. Lilly Taylor, Bedford. This list, however, is still incomplete.

Lt. Compton Buried With Military Honors

Soldiers from Camp Pickett were sent by the Army to pay honor to Lieutenant Lloyd Grayson Compton, who was buried here Monday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. Funeral services were held first at the Methodist church by the Rev. E. A. Potts. Lieut. Phillip Shirkey, Dr. Charles E. Green, Lloyd Logwood, J. Henry Wright, Ralph Hardy and G. G. Ballard were pallbearers at the church service. A service with military honors was held at the grave in Oakwood cemetery. Pallbearers at the cemetery were soldiers and a gun salute was fired by a squad of six soldiers from Camp Pickett.

Lt. Compton was one of three men killed in the crash of an army bomber aat Briggs Field, Texas, Wednesday of last week. He was a son of the Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Compton, of Bedford.

Strange C oincidence

Herbert (right) and Grant (left) Yopp, brothers had not seen each other since they went into training with the armed services. Grant was sent to Fort Meade in February 1941 with the National Guard to which he had belonged for three years. Herbert was drafted in January 1942 and sent to a training camp in North Carolina with the observation squadron, army air corps. From Camp Meade, Grant went to Florida as did most of the Company A boys and was there assigned to foreign service. After spending one night aboard ship, he met his brother, Herbert, who had also been assigned to overseas duty and was sent over on the same ship. Neither knew that the other was aboard.

They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Yopp, who formerly lived on Bedford, Route 4, but who left Bedford county about six years ago. Mrs. Grant Yopp and Miss Anna Mae Yopp, the soldiers' sister, visited Mrs. Dave Foutz in Bedford the past week-end. They are living in Washington.

Black-out Ordinance Adopted by Council

At the meeting of the Town Council Tuesday night, two ordinances were adopted, one of them paralleling the State law dealing with black-outs and the other prohibiting the use of streets as football fields and such like. The State has had since the last session of a General Assembly a law specifying in detail what residents shall do in case of blackouts, and this law was simply made a town ordinance in order that the Mayor would have authority to deal with violators.

Numerous complaints have been made in recent weeks about the youth of certain sections using main thoroughfares as playing fields for football and other games, often stopping traffic, not to mention the danger to the players themselves, and the Council adopted a brief ordinance forbidding such practices.

Mayor Gillaspie stated that he had been approached by members of the various garden clubs of the town who suggested that a memorial be erected to the late George F. Laage in Floral Park, and the Council voted to assist the clubs financially in the promotion of this project, though no specific amount was decided upon. The Council also voted to change the name of Floral Park to the Laage Memorial Park, this action being taken at the suggestion of representatives of the Council of Garden Clubs. Mr. Laage promoted the park and it came into being largely from his own labor and sacrifice. In addition, he did much to arouse enthusiasm among Bedford people for beautifying their home premises, and the Council unanimously supported the proposal for honoring him by giving the park his name.

A committee of four was appointed by Mayor Gillaspie, to be known as the Park committee, to have charge of keeping up the park on College street and other points where beautification work has been done on public property. J. L. Davidson and Gordon L. Synan were named to represent the Council and Mrs. J. T. Davidson Sr., and Mrs. A. G. Cummings will represent the garden clubs.

On motion of the chairman of the Finance committee, the Council voted to make the rate for license taxes next year the same as present, and at the request of the Mayor the ordinance fixing a license tax of $10 on certain classes of lunch counters was repealed. This action was recommended because it was in conflict with another ordinance dealing with the same subject.

Small Vote Polled In Sixth District

Virginians in Congress will Have Larger Voice in National Affairs

Official returns in the Sixth district in last week's election show that less than 11,000 votes were cast, or about half of the voting strength of Roanoke city alone. The vote for Senator Glass was 10,179 and for Representative Woodrum 10,500, while the minor party candidates received only a fraction of the total vote cast. Lawrence S. Wilkes, Socialist, received 644 votes in the district, and Mrs. Alice Burke, Communist, received 251. Both were opponents of Senator Glass. Judge Woodrum's opponent, Stephen A. Moore, Socialist, received 724 votes.

The vote in Bedford county was the smallest in years, running just a little above the 1,000 mark. For the Senate, Carter Glass received 989 to 36 for Wilkes and 6 for Burke. In the House race, Judge Woodrum received 987 to 52 for Moore.

As a result of the election, Virginians in Congress will be in position to exercise a larger voice in national affairs. Senator Glass will, of course, remain as chairman of the powerful Senate appropriation committee and Senator Byrd will have the choice of two chairmanships, the rules committee and the civil service committee, but is likely to favor the first named, of which he is now chairman. Woodrum will remain as the ranking member of the House appropriations committee; Burch, of the Fifth district will advance to the chairmanship of the postoffice committee; Drewry, of the Fourth, and Flannagan, of the Ninth, will be ranking members of the Naval Affairs and Agricultural committees respectively and Representative A. Willis Robertson, of the Seventh, will be advanced to sixth place on the House Ways and Means Committee. Representative Smith, of the Eighth, will retain his ranking as third on the powerful Rules committee, and Satterfield, of the Second, will move up one notch on the Judiciary committee.

The latest report on the results of the election show that, with three House seats and one in the Senate still undecided, the Democrats have a membership in the House of 220, or just two more than a majority of the total membership. The Republicans will have 208, the Progressives two, the Farmer-Labor party one ,and Farm-Labor one. In the Senate the Democrats have 56 members to 38 Republicans.

American Forces Land in North Africa

L. L. Davis, Jr., is Awarded Citations

Lieutenant Landon L. Davis, Jr., U. S. navy, son of Major and Mrs. L. L. Davis, formerly of Bedford, and grandson of W. N. Kelly, New London, has received two citations, for "invaluable service" and "material assistance" in the Pacific war theatre, according to information received here Monday by his aunt, Mrs. W. R. Phelps. His parents are now living in Charlottesville.

Lieutenant Davis, who was born at Randolph-Macon Academy in Bedford while his father was a member of the school faculty, graduated at Fishbourne Military School and the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis. He has been in some of the toughtest Pacific fighting since Pearl Harbor.

The first citation, given by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet, is dated October 1, and reads as follows: "The commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet takes pleasure in commending Lt. Landon L. Davis, Jr., United States navy, for service set forth in the following citations: "For material assistance during the successful conduct of an offensive submarine war patrol from——to—— (place names censored) of which nine days was spent in the immediate proximity of the enemy controlled shore. Despite strong enemy anti-submarine measures and many navigational dangers, attacks were pressed home on every favorable attack. The U. S. S. —— (submarine name censored) is credited with sinking, during this period, two—— and seriously damaging a third—— (descriptions censored.) The submarine was the target for depth charge and bombing attacks by the enemy but succeeded in returning to base with only minor damage."

The second citation, dated October 22, reads: "Lt. Landon L. Davis, United States Navy: As officer of the deck of the U. S. S. Growler and as assistant approach officer in a night engagement with a merchant vessel in enemy-controlled waters, you rendered invaluable service; your excellent judgement, coolness and alertness insured destruction of the vessel."

Fire Destroys Home Near Mineral Springs

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Holland Baker near Mineral Springs was completely destroyed by fire last Saturday night. None of the furniture or other possessions of the family were saved. All food stuffs, including 300 cans of fruits and vegetables, staple groceries such as sugar, salt and flour were consumed, and the clothing of the entire family. There are seven children ranging between the ages of 4 and 18.

Neighbors and friends are trying to get a collection to help this family start anew and anyone who cares to contribute clothing, quilts, quilt pieces, furniture, canned fruits, dishes, or anything at all that can be used are requested to leave their donations with Mr. Buford Bryant at Mineral Springs Church. If there are some who would like to help but cannot deliver the articles themselves, call Mr. Bryant, No. 2-3931, or write him.

There is a house nearby that is vacant and the Baker family is considering moving into this if they can secure enough furniture to start to housekeeping again.

Bedford County Girl Qualified W. A. A. C.

Miss Vivian Pauline Wills, of Lynchburg, spent the week of November 2 to 6th in Richmond, taking examinations for the W. A. A. C. Miss Wills, who has been employed in Memorial Hospital, Lynchburg, was the only young lady to be accepted into the W. A. A. C. and was sworn in November 5 at 2:40 p. m. in the presence of Lieutenant Shan, of the W. A. A. C., 1st Office Place and Sergeant Baird, of the U. S. A. Miss Wills returned home November 6th to await her call to report to Des Moines, Iowa, for active duty. She is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wills, of Evington.

Bedford Exceeds October Bond Quota

A. G. Cummings, chairman of the war savings committee, reported this week that according to a statement received by him from the treasurer department covering war bond sales, Bedford county people bought war bonds and stamps amounting to $70,000.50 during the month of October. The quota was only $46,000. It will be remembered that the $25,000 worth of bonds purchased by the town was included during this month, but even with this amount deducted the quota was still exceeded.

The November quota is $54,000, the chairman said.

Seize French Colonies To Block Germany

All Objectives Reached in Armies Surrender Four Days and French

The drama of world war has moved swiftly the past four days and for the first time since the Germans marched into Poland in September, 1939, the people of the United Nations are finding something to cheer about. The defeat of the Axis army in Egypt has become a rout; an American army under Lieutenant-General Dwight D. Eisenhower has landed in North Africa and occupied all of France's vast colonial empire there; the Germans in Russia have made no advance on any front in the past week, and the Japs have suffered defeats on Guadalcanal and New Guinea.

Powerful American expeditionary forces started landing on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts of the French African colonies during the dark hours of early Sunday morning, marking the first offensive move of this country in the second world war. The landing operations were supported by the British fleet and were accompanied by statements from President Roosevelt and General Eisenhower assuring the French people that the United States was making the move to forestall occupation by Germany and the cooperation of French forces was requested. The commanding General stated that his forces would not be the first to fight, but if the French resisted then force would be used to reach the objectives. France was given a solemn promise that when the Axis powers are defeated the colonies will be restored.

The pro-German French government ordered the army in Africa to fight and broke off diplomatic relations with Washington, but the resistance, except at one or two points, amounted to little and by Wednesday all the colonial armies had surrendered. Algiers, largest city in the colonies, surrendered within 24 hours, and the others gave up the fight when Hitler yesterday ordered German troops to march into and take over all of unoccupied France.

General de Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces, appealed to the French in Africa to join the Allies in the fight against Germany, stating that victory was certain, and two other high ranking French officers came over to the Allied side. Admiral Darlan, head of all the armed forces of France, was in Algiers at the time of the American landing and personally ordered the city to surrender and himself was taken into custody. His position remains somewhat obscure, but he has been repudiated by the Vichy government, which would indicate that he has come over to the Allies.

General Giraud, who escaped from a German prison after he was captured two years ago, landed in Africa and appealed to the army there to join in the fight against the Axis powers, and even before that many of the French units had revolted and refused to resist the Americans. The severest fighting took place at Casablanca, big naval base on the Atlantic, where a part of the French fleet joined with land forces in resisting the landings and that was one of the last places to surrender. Both sides suffered casualties there and a French battleship was put out of commission.

Air bases were the first objective of the landing forces and as they were captured American airmen, under command of General Doolittle, moved in to protect future landings and to take care of any attempt by the Axis powers to interfere with operations. Most of the air bases were in American hands when the French finally surrendered.

With the American forces firmly established at all strategic points in the French colonies, President Roosevelt requested the ruler of Tunis, a French protectorate, for permission to cross his country to head off the Axis army fleeing from Egypt across Libya. Reports yesterday stated that Tunis had not surrendered, that Germany was landing parachute troops there, and that American forces were pressing eastward from Algeria to take the country by force if necessary.

Most of the strategic points along the coast, with their air bases, were in American hands by Tuesday, though the French were still making a show of resistance at that time. This, however, disappeared entirely yesterday when Hitler ordered German troops to march into unoccupied France as a counter stroke to the move of the Americans in taking over French Africa. Old Marshal Petain, head of the French government, protested against this move by Hitler, stating it was in violation of the armistice signed when France surrendered two years ago, and when Berlin ignored this protest

"Gamble's Luck" Behind Jap Drives.

Gamblers luck rather than a sinister plot to take over the world are behind the Japanese drive to the South that now threatens Australia and India, according to John Goette, International News Service Correspondent, home after 23 years in Peking, China.

Mr. Goette compares the Japanese people to a hard-working man who takes a turn with the dice one evening and makes a killing. Joyfully he shouts "How long has this been going on," and doubles the stakes.

The easy conquest of Manchuria in 1931, and the bluffing of the great Powers who had signed the Kellogg Peace Pact were Japan's first fling of the dice. After that the gambling fever burned in the blood of the nation.

Today, he said, Japan is like a gambler who has won all bets, and bets, and must go on doubling the fantastic stakes until the inevitable day when the galloping ivories miss the "point," and the fatal seven stands revealed.

Arrested in his quarters as the bombs were falling on Pearl Harbor, Mr. Goette has had the opportunity to study the Japanese Army as few other men have had. Since the Peking "incident" set the soldiers of Nippon off on the seemingly endless road of conquest in 1937, he has travelled over 20,000 miles with Japanese armies in China.

In Baltimore for an address at Goucher College recently, he said:

"Japan's next campaign will be in India. Not only does the troubled political condition of that land offer a possibility of easy conquest, but it is necessary for her to beat Germany into India.

"For if Germany ever reaches the Pacific Japan must fight her. When the Nazi armies were plowing through Russia in 1941, the entire East knew that if they ever reached Siberia, they would face the Japanese army.

"Of all the nations at war, Japan today is the only real winner. They have the Dutch Indies, richest of prizes in the international grab-bag. And Hitler had marked the Indies for his own by right of his conquest over Holland.

"Hitler has fought England for four years, but Japan is the only nation holding English territory todoy Unless these partners in plunder are whipped first by the United Nations, nothing can prevent them meeting in battle.

"Both are gamblers, and should they ever clash, the entire world will be their stake."

How can Japan be beaten?

Mr. Goette has an answer for that one, too. He said:

"Japan can only be beaten in Japan. We must carry the war to her. We must put a blanket of bombers over the paper cities from which the supply lines run like spokes in a giant wheel to the rim of her conquests.

"When we blast out those spokes the wheels will collapse."

The American people do not yet understand the problem that Japan poses to the rest of the world, Mr. Goette insists. He said:

"This is more than a war—it's an exodus of a powerful and virile people, bursting the bonds of the little islands that were their home.

"Had the powers elected to implement the Kellogg Pact in 1931 they might have driven Japan back into her islands, but she would not have stayed there."

The thwarting of Japanese aims in China through the political interference of world powers determined the course of future Japanese conquest, and sent her armies into French Indo-China, and Siam, he said.

Could peace have been maintained in the Pacific? Only at the cost of continuous and ever growing appeasement.

The war against the United States was made inevitable on November 26, 1941, when Secretary of State Cordell Hull warned the Japanese that they must get out of China, Mr. Goette said. He added:

"But no one was more surprised than the Japanese at the success of their war. Pearl Harbor, Hong-kong, Singapore, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, Burma, the Pacific islands —each time the gambler threw and won he was astounded.

"But because he was a gambler he shoved all his winnings on the board, and threw the dice again."

Today the battle for India is ready to break. Suppose they meet the Germans? So what? All over the East the men of Nippon say laughingly:

"The Germans fight almost as bravely as the Japanese."

Two steps to amazing new pep . . . vitality . . . better looks!

1 — Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach

2 — Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

If you are one of those unfortunates who have worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, have been vexed by overtaxing worries, or have suffered with colds, the flu, or other illness . . . yet have no organic trouble or focal infection . . . and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number . . . if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is what should help you!

SSS Tonic is especially designed to build up blood strength when deficient . . . and to promote those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Build Sturdy Health
that the Doctors may better serve our Fighting Forces

Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health —makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. S.S.S. Co.

S.S.S. helps build STURDY HEALTH

Average Life of 75 Years Seen.

The average life span probably will be stretched from the present 65 years to 75 years "in our time," Forris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said.

Fishbein said an increased dissemination of already available medical knowledge is needed to extend the life expectancy of more people to 75 years. He added:

"Most important in prolonging life after 50 are sound rules of diet and personal hygiene and suitable attention to the detection of degenerative diseases at the earliest possible moment.

"A new specialty is growing in medical science called geriatrics, which means the care of the aged. More and more physicians will become interested in genrontology, a study of the problems of the aged.

"The combination of all the various considerations that are now being given to the degenerative diseases to the hygiene of the heart, the liver and the kidneys must yield an improvement in life expectancy to at least 75 years in our time."

Weekly Sermonette

"THE UNRECOGNIZED CHRIST"

Text, John 20-15: "She, supposing Him to be the gardener."

In the 126th Psalm the psalmist said, "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." We see the truth of this passage clearly brought out in the experience of Mary Magdalene on the day of the resurrection of our Lord. Mary had gone forth weeping for the cause of Christ after He had cast seven demons out of her. And she had, through long toil, borne precious seed preaching and living the gospel. And greatest of all, she had gone forth weeping over the death of her Lord, and the subsequent empty grave, when suddenly all of her grief and weeping were turned into joy. Her sheaves was the privilege of first preaching the gospel of the resurrected Lord. In His first appearance to Mary Magdalene she thought the Lord was the gardener. Perhaps hers was a natural mistake, but it is one too often made. How often we with all our background of Christian centuries and revelation, miss the Lord's appearance when He is standing beside us and speaking! Often we suppose Him to be the doctor, the teacher, a friend or the minister, when it is He Himself who so strangely moves our hearts because of His spiritual presence.

On one occasion when the Apostle Paul and 275 companions were shipwrecked and tossed about for 14 days in a storm, death seemed certain. But in the midst of that tumult and confusion a voice spoke out clearly above the din of the waves, saying, "Fear not, Paul; thou must be brought before Caesar; and, lo, God hath given thee all them that sail with thee." Then Paul added his personal testimony and said, "Wherefore, sirs, be of good cheer: for I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me." How calm the Apostle must have been after this assurance of their safety. The fierce winds may continue to blow and the ship drift still further, but they were safe for God had spoken. What a comfort to believe in God in times of war nad tumults.

One of the greatest failures to recognize Christ is in acts of providence. John Knox, the great Scotch Presbyterian, had many enemies. He was in the habit of sitting in a particular chair in his own house, with his back to the window. One evening, while assembling his family, he would neither occupy his accustomed seat nor allow anybody else to do so. That very evening a bullet went through the window with a design to kill him. It grazed the chair he usually occupied, and made a hole in the candlestick. Had not the unseen hand of the ever loving Father held His child back from his accustomed chair on that night, the whole history of the British Isles and America, and the whole world, political, educational, and religious would have been materially different. The Reformer's family, no doubt, though his queer actions to be just a streak of contrariness, but it was Jesus and they knew Him not.

A queer and amusing thing happened to me in March, 1933, the time President Franklin D. Roosevelt closed the banks, and people could not get spending money. My wife found a glass fruit jar containing a $20 bill, and we were able to pay cash for necessities of life during the bank holiday. This money was placed in the jar with several other bills some eight months before. All had been spent but that one and it had been forgotten. Some may suppose that to be just an accident, but I give my Lord Jesus Christ credit for it. Mary saw Jesus and "supposed Him to be the gardener." But she later recognized Him to be the Lord. By an act of providence God cared for me and my family while the banks were closed by executive order of the President.

We fail to recognize Christ sometime in sickness. One time a faithful preacher was lying dangerously ill, and the members of his church were praying earnestly at his bedside that the Lord would raise him up, and preserve him to them. Among their petitions, someone prayed and said, "Lord, thou knowest how he loves Thee." At this the sick man turned to them and said: "Ah, children, do not pray thus. When Mary and Martha sent to Jesus, their message was not, 'Lord, he who loveth Thee,' but , 'Lord, he whom Thou lovest is sick." It is not our imperfect love for Jesus which comforts us, but His perfect love for us. What could be more comforting to a dying Christian than those divinely inspired words from the Apostle Paul: "But God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly."

We fail sometimes to recognize Christ in the Physician or in the Nurse who ministers to us or to our family in times of serious illness. These attendants are not always cold-blooded professional men and women in service, but are often physical instruments in spiritual hands. St. Luke was a Physician and the Apostle Paul used him as his personal Physician on his great missionary journeys which taxed his strength and endurance. Surely Jesus was in St. Luke ministering in a physical way for the preaching of the gospel through St. Paul.

We often fail to see Jesus in one to whom we would give alms, just supposing him to be a beggar. The wirld's outstanding illustration of this point is in that matchless poem, "The Vision of Sir Launfal." Lack of space prevents it being published here. The reader is asked to read it for the closing thoughts of this sermon.—Rev. W. F. Smith.

Politics

The boys were griping about the sons of politicians when a new voice spoke up behind them.

I'm a politician's son, said the voice, and I'm in the Navy just like you ordinary guys.

The gang turned around to see who owned the voice.

Yes, lieutenant, they said.

HAZELWOOD CONTRIBUTES NEWS FROM BEDFORD BOYS IN THE ARMED SERVICES.

Walter R. Hazelwood, formerly of Stewartsville, now living in Roanoke, is in receipt of communications from the following Bedford county boys who are now in active service in the armed forces of our country:

Pvt. Ira J. Austin has arrived safely at his post at an undisclosed destination. He was formerly stationed at Fort Eustis, Va. Seaman, First Class Willie E. Austin is serving with the U. S. Navy in Iceland. He was formerly stationed in New York City. Both of the above named young men are brothers, and are sons of Mrs. Elisha Austin, of Stewartsville.

Corp. Wister L. Morgan, who is attached to a medical batallion at an undisclosed location overseas, informs Mr. Hazelwood that he is well and happy and it enthusiastically interested in his part of the work that is helping the armed forces to conquer the enemy. Corp. Morgan was formerly stationed at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., and is a son of Mr.. and Mrs. Emmett Morgan, of Hardy.

Pvt. Fc. O'Niel Martin writes Mr. Hazelwood that army life is swell, and the morale of the soldiers in wonderful. He further states that the boys in his detachment are doing some grand work and are eager to do their part i ntoday's war. Pfc Martin stationed with a Cost Artilery Company somewhee in Hawaii. He enlisted in the army in August, 1940, and until the outbreak of the war was stationed at Fort Kamehameha, Hawaii. He is a son of Mr. nd Mrs. B. O. Martin, of Salem. They formerly lived at Hardy Lunsford Owen Garrett, Jr., of the U. S. Navy, was one of the nineteen members of the crew of a naval tanker, who were promoted for their heroism in making it possible for the ship to reach port after being torpedoed. Garrett, Seaman First Class, was promoted to Coxswain. He graduated from St. Andrews High School and is a native of Roanoke.

Private W. W. Moorman is serving at an overseas destination undisclosed. Private Moorman was formerlly stationed in Panama Canal Zone area. He is a son of Mrs. F. S. Moorman, of Stewartsville.

Attached to a Navy hospital corps is Albert W. Yost, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Yost, of Roanoke, and formerly of Route 1, Goodview, Va. Albert at one time attended Stewartsville High School. He is a graduate of Jefferson High School. Prior to entering the Navy he was a professional dancer, having appeared in New York and Hollywood. Seaman Yost had a small part in the dancing chorus of the motion picture, "Born to Dance."

Private Thomas D. Coats, who is attached to an engineering corps at an undisclosed destination, informs Mr. Hazlewood that he is enjoying his work fine and thinks army life is swell. Private Coats is a native of Greenfield, Tenn., and corresponded with Mr. Hazlewood for nine years before they met each other in person. They began writing to each other after joining a farm club of a nationally known southern farm publication. Prior to enlisting in the Army, Private Coats was employed with the Dupont Powder Works at Jeffersonville, Ind.

Second Lieutenant J. E. Pettray leaves for his post at an Army camp in Louisiana on November 14. He is in the Railroad Battlaion. Prior to entering the Army, lieutenant Pettrey was a machinist employed in the East End Shops of the N. & W., Roanoke.

All of the above named young men are well known in the Stewartsville area, having on several occasions visited Mr. Hazlewood while he lived there.

MYSTERIOUS MARAUDER

Police of Independnce, Mo, have orders to shoot on sight the impudent blackguard who has been:

Loosening clothespins and then tracking over the fallen wash; breaking holes in shingle roofs; raiding gardens; answering reprimands with a raucous, infuriating sound; and attacking all who molest him.

Women of the neighborhood said the rascal was a pet crow, left by a family that moved away.

"No wonder they moved," said one aggrieved resident.

Farmer Again Battles Beavers.

Farmer W. J. Smith, of Oliver, B. C., and the beavers were fighting over water rights again, and the beavers, as usual, were winning.

Smith took over a dam the beavers had built across a creek on his Okanagan valley fruit farm last year for his irrigation system. He built a water wheel and it pumped water to his trees in the dry season.

From the start, the beavers made it plain they wanted their dam back. They cut good sized trees along the creek's bank, guided them downstream and pushed them between the spokes of the wheel.

Every morning Smith had to get up before dawn and repair his water wheel. He hired an Indian, the most expert trapper in these parts, to catch them alive and take them off, far from his farm. Killing them would have been illegal.

The trapper used all his tricks. The beavers dodged his traps and kept on sabotaging the water wheel.

The beavers gave up only when the rainy season arrived and Smith didn't need to irrigate.

Now the beavers are sabotaging the wheel with poles again.

Smith was praying for the rainy season to come.

Worry never gets you anything but a lot more of the same.

Nope, clothes don't make the man—but, oh, brother, how they do camouflage his faults.

the surrender of the French in Africa followed.

Occupation of the French colonies by the Americans assures the United Nations control of the Mediterranean and blocks German ambition to grab the French colonies as bases for operations against Allied shipping in the Mediterranean and the south Atlantic. This major Allied move, taken in connection with the defeat of Rommell in Egypt, practically assures the United Nations of control of all Africa and checkmates the Axis plans of reaching the Near and Middle East by the Egyptian route.

It likewise increases the peril of Rommell's African Corps, which, following disaster in Egypt, is fleeing westward with the British Eighth Army in hot pursuit. He faces annihilation or surrender, provided the German high command does not try the dangerous expedient of evacuating what is left of the Axis force by sea. Provided Rommell outdistances the British, he will still have to reckon with the American army on its way to Libya along the coast.

The picture given of the battle in Egypt does no credit to the German command. When his defenses began to crumble, Rommell and his Germans and a few Italian mechanized units, sought escape in flight, leaving the Italian infantry stranded on or near the old battle front without food, water or supplies, and these enemy forces are now surrendering as fast as they can find somebody to whom to surrender.

Up to yesterday the number of Axis soldiers killed and captured numbered approximately 60,000, and it is believed that this figure will be swelled to 100,000 or more when mopping operations are completed. It is estimated that Rommell escaped with not more than 20,000 men, and the British report that he lost practically everything in the way of guns, tanks, equipment and supplies of all kinds. To date 500 enemy tanks have been reported knocked out or captured, along with 900 to 1,000 artillery pieces, and hundreds of planes. Dusty stretches of desert and bomb-pitted coastal roads are littered with uncounted other Axis arms and vehicles, damaged or abandoned in the pricipitous flight.

The British are still pressing the pursuit and the remnant of the once powerful African Corps is being mercilessly pounded by American and English planes as it struggles westward into Libya. It is conjectured that Rommell may attempt to hold Tobruk, one of the few good ports on the African coast, and try to escape to Italy by sea. Tobruk, however, is in easy range of Allied bombing planes and, in addition, is only a comparatively short distance from the British naval base at Alexandria. An attempt to escape by sea might prove even more disastrous than continued flight by land to the west.

The significant and important thing about recent events in Africa is that they definitely break German power there. It is also highly significant that Hitler did not reinforce the African Corps when battle was impending, and utterly failed to do anything to break Allied control of the air. The conclusion drawn is that he could not help Rommell without dangerously weakening his position in Europe, and so left one of his favorite commanders to his fate because he could do nothing else.

Two weeks ago the Germans started a new offensive in the Caucasus, with the military road over the high mountain range as the objective, but, following a little initial success during the first days, have since been held without gains by the Red Army. Moscow reports that German attacks at Stalingrad are gradually petering out, that the Russians are gaining ground on the Black Sea coast, and that all along the front the Germans have almost ceased offensive operations. This may merely mean that they are digging in for the winter, but a big part of the explanation, Moscow says, is found in their heavy losses in men and a growing shortage of supplies. In the past two months they have advanced no more than a few miles at any point, but have sacrificed many thousands of men in a vain attempt to knock the Russian army out this before winter comes. Late reports from Turkey say that the Germans are moving many divisions from the Russian front to meet the threat to Southern Europe created by the Allied victory in Egypt and the landing in Africa of an American army.

The Australians and Americans under General MacArthur are still pressing their offensive against the Japs in New Guinea and are now within 30 or 40 miles of the chief enemy base at Buna. It was revealed this week that transport planes are being used to take troops from Australian bases to this front, and it appears now that the campaign is directed at chasing the Japs entirely off that island. New Guinea is the closest of all the Indies to Australia and the latter can never be safe so long as the enemy holds any part of the island.

American forces on Guadalcanal island have been on the offensive to both east and west for the past two weeks, it was reported by the Navy department this week and have shoved the enemy farther back from Henderson field, the vital air base. Secretary Knox stated that the Marines and army units on the island outnumber the Japs now, though the latter succeed in landing additional troops under cover of darkness every few nights.

Since the campaign in the Solomons opened in August, the Japs have suffered large losses, Secretary Knox stated. The American command on the Islands reported that the bodies of more than 5,000 Japanese dead had been counted, and this does not take into account those whose bodies were removed by the Japs, those who have died of wounds, and those killed at sea. The enemy losses in men have been more than five to one, and in ships and planes have likewise far exceeded American losses. More than 500 planes have been shot down in that small area alone in the past three months.

American fliers yesterday reported renewed Jap activity in the Aleutian Islands, the meaning of which is not entirely clear. The airmen said the Japs have apparently reoccupied Attu, most westernly of the islands, which they abandoned several weeks ago. In the raid in which these observations were made, American bombers sunk or damaged two ships in Kiska harbor and shot down seven Jap planes.

Miss Gray Entertained

Miss Charlotte Gray was complimented by a bowling party given in her honor by her fellow workers at the Blue Buckle Overall factory in Lynchburg Saturday night. Miss Gray is leaving the factory to accept a position as bookkeeper with the Old Dominion Box company in the same city. She was presented with a fountain pen and pencil set as a farewell gift.

Those present in addition to the guest of honor were Mr. and Mrs. T. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Montgomery, Mrs. Sadie Litcheford, Misses Lola and Mary Thomason, Mrs. Jack Shelton, Miss Edith Kinggins, Mrs. Wiley Saunders, Miss Jennie Walton, Miss Marie Carter and Miss Dorothy Wilkes.

local Boards where their sugar registration is filed. He will include the same establishments in his registering unit for coffee as he included in his registering unit for sugar. This registration will take effect November 23, 24, 25, 1942.

Institutions take inventory as of midnight November 21, 1942.

The first ration allotment will cover the period from November 22, 1942 through January 31, 1943.

Retailers, wholesalers and roasters will take inventory as of midnight November 21, 1942.

Local Boards will not issue Coffee Purchase Certificates to retailers and wholesalers at the time of institutional registration but such retailer and wholesaler will issue their own purchase warrants which will afford a means of adjusting their inventory.

There are two methods of determining allowable inventories for retailers and wholesalers. One is a single establishment, non-roasting retailer who sold less than 2,000 pounds of roasted coffee during September, 1942. His allowable inventory will be figured for one pound of roasted coffee for each $10.00 of gross sales on all meats, groceries, fruits, vegetables, and similar products during September 1942. Other retail establishments will be allowed one pound of roasted coffee for each pound of roasted coffee he sold during the month of September 1942, and if he is a roaster, he is allowed an additional three pounds of roasted coffee for each pound of roasted coffee that he roasted and sold during September 1942.

A person owning both retail and wholesale establishments shall compute his allowable inventory by considering the two types of establishments separately. Such retailer or wholesaler will issue their own purchase warrants until such time as they have accumulated their allowable inventory. The local Boards will provide the system whereby this may be figured. After this has been reported to the Board, then the Board will begin issuing certificates covering roasted coffee purchases.

A purchase warrant may not be endorsed or transferred to another person. It must be retained by the person originially receiving it.

A roaster is entitled to an allowable inventory equal to three pounds of roasted coffee for each pound of roasted coffee roasted and sold by him during September 1942.

The preparation of Boards and personnel in methods to be used on coffee is in process at this time in order that all difficulties may be ironed out previously to registration of institutions November 23, 24, 25, 1942.

A provision has been made whereby a consumer who has excess of sugar may get coffee.

May Increase Price Of Several Foods

An increase in price on potatoes, onions and turkeys was authorized by Price Administrator Leon Henderson last week. These were among a number of other foods temporarily frozen October 5. The increase will amount to about one cent a pound on potatoes; one-half cent a pound on onions; and about a three per cent increase in turkeys in February but none during the holiday season.

Henderson explained that the foods involved in today's announcement were pegged October 5 at their September 28-October 2 prices but in preparing a permanent regulation he found it only fair to permit "normal seasonal fluctuations."

Among other foods now controlled by temporary orders for which Henderson soon will issue permanent regulations are: butter, cheese, eggs, poultry, dry edible beans, flour, mutton, canned milk, cornmeal and citrus fruits.

The orders on potatoes, onions and turkeys specified prices or price formulaes for every transaction from the farm to the consumer.

Henderson said that the prices which "country shippers" will be permitted to pay farmers for the three foods will give the farmer "a full 100 percent of parity," and will also provide the farmer with "financial incentive for maintenance of peak output."

For the consumer, Henderson said, the new ceilings will give assurance of a stable and reasonable price for turkeys during peak sales in the holiday season and will prevent civilian shortages of beef, pork and lamb from bringing excessive turkey prices."

Sullins College Dean Dies at 80

MMrs. Janie McTyeire Baskervill, dean of Sullins College for many years and member of a family long prominent in Southern educational circles, died at the college Thursday, November 5, at the age of eighty.

Her father, the late Methodist Bishop Holland Nimmons McTyeire, was president of the board of Vanderbilt University, and her husband, the late Dr. William Malone Baskervill, was head of the department of English at Vanderbilt and was one of the founders of the Southern Association of Colleges.

A daughter, Mrs. William E. Martin, is the wife of the president of Sullins. Funeral services were conducted Saturday at the Martin home, and the remains taken to Nsshville, Tenn., for for burial.

Besides Mrs. Martin, suvivors include another daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Wall, of Bristol and Bedford; one son, William Malone Baskervil, of Baltimore; and one step-son, John Adams Baskervill, of Nashville.

Students Observe Education Weeek

In observation of national education week, Nov. 9-13, a committee of seniors at the Bedford high school was appointed this week to explain to the public the new school program which is being organized in keeping with the war effort. The committee is composed of Misses Hilda Bennett, Sarah Cary Delaney, Annette Keeler and Marie English. Miss English speaking on behalf of the committee stated that many inquiries had been made from persons outside of the school concerning the manner in which school work was being adapted to the war period and her committee has endeavored to explain this in the following article addressed to "the patrons of Bedford High School:"

"Education for free men!" This is the motto of National Education week, which we are now observing. In times of national emergency such as this, education becomes doubly important. It is impossible, under such circumstances, for the schools of America to continue with their regular routine. They must revise their curriculum to further the war effort in every possible way.

Perhaps some of you have been asking, "How is Bedford high school cooperating with the national victory program?" In answer to this we shall explain what we as a student body are doing.

Soon there is to be organized a student Victory Corps under the auspices of the National Education Association. The objectives of this wartime school program which the corps will promote are as follows: 1. Guidance into critical services and occupations; 2. Wartime Citzenship. 3. Physical fitness; 4. Military drill; 5. Competence in science and mathematics; 6. Pre-flight training in aeronautics; 7. Pre-induction training for critical occupations; 8. Community services. The whole aim of this program, as outlined by the U. S. Office of Education, is to prepare young people for that war service that will come after they leave school and to provide for their active participation in the community's war effort while they are yet in school. One of the most important features is the fifty-five minutes a day of athletic activities given to make the students physically fit for the jobs they will have to do. It is believed that calisthenics and games, as advocated by the government, develop muscular coordination and strength. Physical defects have caused 50 percent of the boys inducted into the army to be rejected. That is why the stress is being shifted from academic accomplishments to physical fitness. Individual record cards for the boys and record cards for each ten of the girls are to be used to check upon individual progress and proficiency. Also, under this program, First Aid is required of every junior and senior girl.

Franklin D. Roosevelt asks that every school house become a "service center for the home front." Paul V. McNutt, in calling upon the Army of Education to shoulder new and heavier duties, makes this statement: "Education can shorten the road to victory!" The schools all over the land recognize the obligation to do their utmost in this emergency, and Bedford High School, no less than the rest, is resolved to contribute its share to the national effort. May each pupil accept the obligation to do his best in every phase of his school life.

SENIOR COMMITTEE

NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORIES ARE OUT

Bedford telephone users will find a war-time safety reminder on the front cover of the new issue of the directory, 1,209 copies of which will be delivered to subscribers in this area, according to a statement made by Eearl R. Blankenship, acting manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia for this area.

The reminder asks: Please do not make telephone calls during or immediately after an air raid alarm as it is essential that the lines be kept free for use by the Defense authorities. If your telephone rings, however, answer it promptly."

This directory includes the usual listings for Lynchburg and Piney River and in addition the listings of subscribers at Big Island have also been added for the first time.

Because of the large volume of number changes since the last directory was released, Mr. Blankenship emphasized the importance of consulting this new directory before calling. It is also suggested that subscribers review their personal telephone number lists with those in the directory in the event these lists may contain numbers which have been changed. These suggestions are in line with re-affirming the importance of keeping telephone lines open for important war calls.

The cooperation of telephone users in not making unnecessary calls to "Information" will result in improvements in service and will help to conserve scarce and critical materials. Make certain the number you want is not in your telephone directory before calling "Information." More than half of the calls now received by "Information" are for numbers which could be found in the directory. If these unnecessary calls were eliminated, many of the "Infromation" operators could devote their time to handling the huge volume of war calls.

In the past subscribers have been asked to destroy their old directories when the new book is delivered, so as to avoid confusion. Now the old directories have their use in the paper salvage program and should be saved along with newspapers and magazines and turned over to the proper agencies to be used for defense purposes.

The telephone company again reminds subscribers to make sure that no money, documents, or other articles of value are left between the pages of the old directories.

OBITUARY

C .A. Brown.

Charles A. Brown, 84, one of the oldest residents of the county, died last Friday at his home three miles northwest of Bedford, following a long period of failing health. He was a native of the county, a son of the late Alfred A. and Nannie Campbell Brown, and death occurred in the neighborhood in which he was born and where all of his life was spent.

Mr. Brown was never married and the nearest surviving relatives are two sisters, Misses Fannie Bright and Zelene Brown, with whom he made his home, and one brother, L. L. (Dap) Brown, of the same community.

Funeral services were conducted by Dr. J. H. Grey, of the Presbyterian church, from the home Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and interment was in the family cemetery. Active pallbearers were Lauriston L. Brown, Jr., Al Brown, Charlie Williams, Hershel Brown, Ned Overstreet and Edward Moseley. Honorary pallbearers were Reed Hicks, Joe Parker, John Dinkle, J .L. Davidson and Andrew Hodges.

Mrs. J. H. Wyse

Mrs. Joseph H. Wyse, wife of the State Civilian Defense Coordinator, died Saturday night at her home in Richmond. Mr. Wyse was Bedford county engineer prior to his appointment as coordinator and he and Mrs. Wyse had been living here for several years when they moved to Richmond.

She was a native of Pearisburg, Giles County, the daughter of James B., and Mary McNutt Peck. She was educated at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, and the University of Chicago. She was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Surviving, in addition to her husband, are three sisters, Mrs. S. D. Long, Mrs. Sarah St. Clair and Mrs. H. E. Widener, all of Bristol.

Funeral services were conducted at Mountain View Cemetery at Bristol at 3 p. m. Monday.

L. T. St. Clair

L. T. St. Clair, 60, of Edgewood, Roanoke county, died in a Roanoke hospital on November 9th.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mae Houchins St. Clair, and two children, Gladys Mae and Reva, all of Roanoke county; six brothers, A. . St. Clair, Portsmouth; H. L. and J. A. BROOK HILL SCHOOL NEWS.

Our school has gotten off to a good start and we have a fine group of teachers to push us along.

We have been very fortunate to have Rev. Boleyn and Rev. Thurman visit the school and give inspirational talks. Each one was was enjoyed and we hope they will come often.

Each Thursday morning the entire school assembles in the auditorium for chapel exercises, with a different room in charge of the program each time. Delightful plays have been well preented by Mrs. Perrow and Mrs. aMrkham's rooms this year.

Since school started we have organized a girls' chorus and a boys' chorus, each meeting separately once a week to work on two-part singing.

Last Thursday after the devotional services, which was led by Mrs. Perrow, the music department gave a musical program, consisting of piano solos, quartettes, duets and recitations. Musical readings were enjoyed by the school. A girls' quartette composed of Edith Overstreet, Carolyn Turpin, Jane Royster and Christine Overstreet san ga special arrangement of "In a Little Red Schoolhouse." The boys' and girls' chorus sang several special selections, this being the first time for these groups to sing together. Ohers on the program were Charlotte Hicks and Rubynette Miller. A prize was given Rubynette Miller for having memorized the most piano pieces in class in October.

On Friday night November 20 the school is sponsoring a big carnical with free admission to all. Delicious food will be sold. There will be fortune telling, bingo, free games and a free program. Everyone is welcome to come and enjoy an evening of entertainment.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Garden Club of Bedford

The Garden Club of Bedford voted to devote every Wednesday as a group to making surgical dressings at the library and also to buy a war bond at the January meeting to aid the defense program.

All members were asked to save cosmetic jars, pill boxes and bottles as they are needed at Camp Pickett. Mrs. W. R. Phelps was appointed in charge of this work.

Further business included a report that the garden encyclopedia had been placed on the garden club shell in the public library and that Mrs. Robert Harper had donated book marks for all of the books donated by the clubs. Mrs. Phelps reported on the district meeting. A Christmas party will be held by the club at the home of Mrs. J. W. Hayes in December. The resignation of Mrs. J. T. Davidson, Jr., from the club was noted with expressions of regret. Mrs. F. O. Thomas presented a paper on the "Legend of Chrysanthemums."

Judges were Mrs. Frank Mitchell, Mrs. Phelps and Mrs. R. E. White and awards were as follows: medium arrangement berry bearing shrubs, first, Mrs. W. G. Cowlbeck; second, Mrs. White; large arrangement dried materials, first, Mrs. James McIntyre; medium arrangement garden flowers, first, Mrs. Don Parker; second, Mrs. J. W. Hopkins.

Blue Ridge Garden Club

Mrs. John Boyd, of Roanoke, guest speaker at the meeting of the Blue Ridge club yesterday afternoon, urged that garden clubs continue their work in spite of the war as gardens and flowers give a "peaceful and spiritual outlook," which we need in these troubleous days. Her subject was "What Garden Clubs are Doing for Defense." Tea was served by the hostess, Mrs. A. J. Cauthorn, assisted by Mrs. E. D. Gregory, Mrs. Mary McCulloch, and Mrs. W. W. Burks.

Judges were Mrs. Herbert Benn, Mrs. Burks and Mrs. W. E. Bush. Awards follow: small arrangement in berry-bearing shrubs, first, Mrs. A. G. Cummings; medium arrangement, first in dry materials, first, Mrs. T. P. Mrs. F. J. Jack; large arrangement West; medium arrangement in garden flowers, first Mrs. Jack; most outstanding arrangement, first, Mrs. Jack; arrangement not listed, first, Mrs. Jack; second, Mrs. West.

Lisbon Garden Club

Bulb planting suggestions and other November garden activities were discussed by Mrs. B. M. Epps, Mrs. E. H. Harper, Mrs. W. O. McCabe and Mrs. E. C. Hatcher at the meeting of the Lisbon garden club last week. Mrs. R. A. Harper gave a report on the Victory Harvest show and Mrs. Roy Hurt, Mrs. Hatcher and Mrs. Hamilton West told of the district meeting of the Federation of Garden clubs in Lynchburg. Mrs. Earl Cowlbeck was hostess at the meeting.

Awards for holiday table decorations which were featured at this meeting were as follows: Thanksviging table, Mrs. John Hopkins, first, and Mrs. H. T. Patterson, first.

Officers Elected

The following new officers were elected by the Friendship Bible class at a meeting held Monday night in the Sunday school room at the Methodist church: president, Mrs. Laura McDaniel; vice-president, Mrs. Hilliary Saunders; recording secretary, Mrs. L. Glenn Norman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. H. Walker; treasurer, Miss Juanita May.

The meeting was held as a tacky party and a corsage of war saving stamps was won by Mrs. Reed Turner for the most effective costume. Mrs. C. O. Updike and Mrs. Allan Huddleston reported that cigarettes had been sent to the boys of the church who smoke and candy and cakes to those who do not. Daily Prayer books were presented to the president and all of tthe past presidents of the class as a gift from the class. There were 50 members present. The group led by Mrs. Fuqua Bowles, Jr., served as hostesses.

Organize Club

The following officers were elected at a meeting of the newly organized Spinisters club held at the home of Miss Marie English Friday night: Miss Hannah Listoe, president; Miss Marie English, vice-president; Miss Annette Keeler, secretary-treasurer. Other members are Misses Hilda Bennett, Sarah Cary Delaney, Mary Stewart Gills and Betty Anne Schenk.

Misses June Scott and Virginia McClintock were guests in addition to members at this meeting.

Book Rorum

A book quiz was won by Mrs. J. W. Hayes and Mrs. John B. Oliver at the monthly meeting of the Bedford Book Forum Monday night. Mrs. Oliver and Miss Edith Stone were co-hostesses, at the home of the latter. Old books were auctioned off at this meeting.

Class Meeting

The Loyal Daughters' Class of the Christian church will meet Friday night in the home of Mrs. Paschal Meador on South street. It will be a "tacky party."

ELECTION RESULTS

Edward R. Murrow, speaking from London the other night, said the British people were somewhat mystified and a little uneasy about election results in the United States. Because they do not understand American Politics, he said, they were fearful that the strong comeback staged by the Republican party meant a repudiation of President Roosevelt's war and foreign policies and, therefore, boded evil for the cause of the United Nations. Mr. Murrow said it was useless to try to set them right, though assurance had been given by representatives of the administration that regardless of the political complexion of Congress, there is no division among the American people regarding the war.

If there should be among the people of this country any who hold to the British view, they should abandon their misgivings now. We of the United States were never more united for any cause than we are now in our determination to fight this war through to a victorious end, and no result of any election can have any bearing on that one issue. The Democrats suffered reverses, not because the people oppose American participation, but rather from a feeling that the administration had bungled at vital and critical points in the war effort; that politics had been allowed to interfere with and slow down preparations for putting into the struggle every ounce of American strength; that there had been too much hesitation in taking effective measures to head off inflation; that production for war had been allowed to falter out of fear that support from labor would be endangered, if not lost, if too much firmness was displayed in dealing with strikes; that the administration, so far from giving the country militant leadership, was holding back, waiting to be pushed into taking the next forward step by the clamor of public opinion; that entirely too much weight was being attached to the views and demands of minority groups and blocs, and that there has not been sufficient curtailment in ordinary government expenditures.

The Roosevelt leadership was given a rebuff at the polls, not because of any division of opinion respecting prosecution of the war, but rather because of a growing dissatisfaction with the manner in which the war is being handled, combined with a like dissatisfaction with domestic policies. The people had grown restive from several causes and while the administration could not fairly be held responsible in all instances, the Roosevelt leadership was made the goat, and, Democrat though we be, we can feel no great alarm over the results of the election. On the contraary, we look for good rather than evil to come out of it. Unbridled power is a dangerous thing, and it is good for the country that the overwhelming domination of government by one party should not be allowed to continue too long. A properly balanced two-party system puts a curb on radical and ill-advised legislation and it has been apparent for some time that such a curb was needed in Washington.

AMERICANS INVADE AFRICA

The news that American forces were landing at several points in French Colonial North Africa was received by the American people with deep satisfaction. It marked the beginning of active American participation in the war against Hitler, and the feeling is general in this country that at last we are getting somewhere. Regret there is, of course, that in making this move it became necessary to come into conflict with our ally of previous wars, the French, but this resulted, not from lack of friendship for the French people, but from the German-dominated leadership of France.

Probably a vast majority of the American people were surprised, not to say astounded, when their radios Saturday night began telling of the Americans landing at several points in French Africa. It was known, of course, that this country has been assembling an army in the British Islands, that some American units were with the British in Egypt, and that some American forces had been landed in Liberia, on the African east coast below French Dakar, but it had been generally expected that the army in England was to be used for invasion of the German-held continent of Europe. However, while little had appeared in the press suggesting that French North Africa would be the scene of the second front, the conviction had been growing among even the civilian strategists who seriously study the war that this part of Africa was the logical place to strike first, and to these the news that the Yanks were landing came as no great surprise.

A study of your war map will readily make apparent the vital position Africa occupies in this world struggle. In Axis hands it would open the way to expansion in all directions and make well nigh impossible a decisive victory for the United Nations. Control of the Mediterranean coast of Africa, at which Germany was aiming, would make that sea an Axis lake and close the vital communication line to Egypt, Suez and the Near East, forcing the use of the much longer route around the Cape of Good Hope at the southern tip of the Dark Continent. Axis control of French Africa abutting on the Atlantic, at which Germany was likewise aiming, would have furnished bases which would menace the route around Africa and, equally important, would give the Germans air and sea bases only 1,800 miles across the southern Atlantic from the hump of Brazil, creating a grave threat to South America and greatly facilitating the submarine campaign against the Allies in that area.

Even had the United Nations no particular use for French Africa for their own strategic purposes, it was absolutely essential that they occupy it to prevent the Germans from doing so. But its use is vital for offensive as well as defensive purposes. Its control by the United Nations not only abates all threats to the Near and Middle East and danger to Mediterranean and Atlantic shipping lanes, but it hems the Axis powers in southern Europe and supplies sea and air bases from which attacks can be made on Italy and German-held countries. Further, it gives the Allies new and more dangerous points from which land invasion of the continent can be made. In addition to the thousands of miles of coast stretching from northern Norway to the Spanish border of France which the Germans must guard against attack, they must now expand their forces to protect all the shores washed by the Mediterranean in southern Europe from possible attack by the Americans and British. Occupation by the Allies of the French colonies in northern Africa confines Hitler to the Continent of Europe and will eventually bring about his downfall because that continent is not slef-supporting. The defeat of Rommell in Egypt and occupation of French Africa by American forces is the longest forward step made by the United Nations since the opening of the war, the heroic resistance of Russia's Red Army excepted, and the people of this country are strengthened in their conviction that the ambitious plans of Hitler for world domination are certain of defeat.

ALL ACCORDING TO PLAN

In the opening days of the Battle in Egypt, Berlin sounded its customary note of victory. All attacks of the British army were being beaten off with heavy losses. Axis lines were holding firm and, in due time, would go on the offensive. Even when the Allied forces had made deep penetration and the German-Italian line began to crumble. Berlin stuck to its optimistic note. Rommell was merely falling back to prepared positions, all "according to plan," and had the situation completely under control. As late as Sunday, when what was left of the Axis African Corps, was fleeing in complete rout from Egypt, Berlin stuck to it that all was going well and strictly "according to plan."

Of the estimated 140,000 men under Rommell at the beginning of the battle, there remain now only about 20,000 and doubtless this is according to plan. In the defeat, following by headlong flight, the African Corps which only a few weeks ago boasted it would be in Alexandria within ten days, had lost practically all its tanks, heavy guns, armored trucks, hundreds of planes and vast stores of all kinds, yet in the face of this catastrophe, the German people are assured that all is well and going strictly "according to plans."

This phrase has been habitual with the German command throughout the war, whether the situation was good or bad. Regardless of what happens, regardless of the seriousness of the defeat or the severity of losses, the German people are fed the same old tale, assuring them that everything is going "according to plan" and could not be better. And the German people know no better unless they risk life and freedom by listening to British and American broadcasts. They cannot well avoid knowing that they have insufficient food and clothing, that many thousands of their sons, brothers and husbands have died and are dying in Russia and Africa, but if they believe what Hitler and his hirelings tell them, they remain ignorant of the fact that for Germany the war is not going so good this year, with all signs pointing to even worse disasters in 1943.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

MANPOWER AND INFLATION

The compromise anti-inflation legislation which seems to be the best Congress can bring itself to enact will, in effect, provide flexible hurdles which farm prices and industrial wages cannot leap. At best it is a makeshift expedient. It ignores the factor that is increasingly coming to the front as the chief item in cost-of-living calculaions.

This factor is manpower. Why do farm costs rise so steeply? Because the workers, even some of the farmers themselves, are drawn to the high wage paying war factories. Why do factory wages rise so dramatically? Partly because of union pressures and political timidity in Washington. But mainly because there is a shortage of labor and the higher wages are used to lure workers from other occupations, including farming.

Where is the danger of inflation? Largely in these inflated war pay checks, competing to buy, among other things, the farm products that are costing more to produce. It's a cycle, and the much used companion word, vicious, has here an exact application. The anti-inflation compromise applies a little pressure on the brakes,—enough, perhaps, to slow it, not enough to stop it.

It is daily becoming more clear that the final answer lies not only in controlling wages, but also in rationing manpower. A decision must be made as to the size of army and navy the United States can afford to raise under the conditions of modern mechanized warfare, and the residue of available labor must be managed so it is effectively used in war production and farm production. Recruiting must stop, allocation must begin.

Britain learned this the hard way. The United States should profit by that experience.—Christian Science Monitor.

EVERY DIGGER A COMMANDO

Australia's army has a special job to do in the war that no other army in the United Nations is so well placed to do and which must be done if the war is to be won. It is not the job of preparing to fight in Australia against a possible army of invasion. Australia is too big a land for an army of a population of 7,000,000 people to defend if once Japan were in a position to land its forces where it pleased. Australia's defense lies wherever the Japs are gathered for attack. It lies now in driving the Japanese out of the islands they have occupied in the South Pacific. This must be Australia's particular task in the war because we are the nearest of the Allied countries to the islands.

We have enough of the right sort of fighting men to do this job, if they are organized, trained and equipped for it. They will have to be able to make landings on defended shores as the American marines made landings in the Solomons. They will have to be able to storm, hold and use enemy occupied airdromes. They will have to be able to fight in the hand-to-hand jungle warfare more skillfully and with better weapons than the tough and trained Japanese.

Every army has its commando troops in the Pacific for the Army of the United Nations. It means a bold departure from the old textbook rules of military establishments and training. It is the sort of warfare for which the Australian soldier is probably the best material in the world in skill, initiative, courage and physique.

What a small Australian band trained in these methods of warfare has done at Milne Bay, an army of such men could do throughout the islands of the South Pacific. We can have such an army if in organization, training and equipment, in strength and in morale we determine on the ideal of every soldier, every digger a Commando.—Melbourne Herald.

FUNDAMENTAL TO DEMOCRACY

Has it ever struck you that although most so-called Christian bodies claim to believe that God made man in his image, the fact is that most men have made their own god in their own image?

A democracy is based upon a moral concept of human life, about which the schools of this democracy insist upon keeping silent. We show its organization, we teach the names of some of its prominent founders, but we stubbornly refuse to say anything whatever about its real purpose and its real meaning.

The avowed purpose of a democracy is to bring the individual into greater freedom for growth in his own right, spiritually and mentally. And when we omit this fact the core of our education becomes empty. What we must have is instruction in what may be called the morality of democracy. The essence of the Ten Commandments, integrated into decent human behavior, ought to be as compulsory as arithmetic.—C. B. Macklin in the Oklahoma City Oklahoman.

WARNING ON TARIFF

Americans will do well to heed the repeated warnings of Vice-President Henry A. Wallace against the imposition of a high tariff to protect the new synthetic rubber industry now getting under way with the help of Federal subsidies.

Mr. Wallace predicts that in the postwar period natural rubber can be delivered in New York for less than 10c a pound, possibly for as little as 5c a pound. If we keep this natural rubber out by means of a tariff imposed to protect our synthetic rubber industry, every American car owner will be forced to pay $25 to $50 extra for each set of tires he buys.

If we are to have a lasting peace, one of the essentials of the settlement must be the free exchange of surplus commodities among nations.—Dallas Morning News.

Behind the Fighting Front . . .

Grim and tough, he and his buddies are out there somewhere — fighting. And here at home, millions of more Americans are training intensively . . . toughening up . . . getting ready . . . and moving out . . . to join them.

The tremendous expansion and intensive training of our armed forces demanded the biggest transportation job in history. That meant railroad transportation — the continuous, mass transportation of men, munitions and equipment throughout the vast expanse of this land. These demands are being met — efficiently and safely.

Called on overnight, after the enemy struck at Pearl Harbor, the American railroads carried in organized movements during the first ten months of this war, more than 8,000,000 troops! Nearly four times more than in the same period of World War I. In addition, unknown numbers on furlough have traveled on regular trains.

It takes a lot of railroad equipment to handle the nation's armed forces. For example: To move one triangular infantry division of 15,000 men with their fighting equipment, requires 65 trains with 1,350 cars. Moreover, soldiers in this war are moved from five to six times during the training period, as compared with three times in the last war. They use 40 percent of the sleeping cars — 66 percent travel in Pullmans — and 15 percent of the coaches, continuously. And they have first call on all the rest. On top of that, the railroads are carrying millions of persons who formerly traveled by highway.

It all adds up to a tremendous increase — and when war necessities have made it impossible to get additional equipment. The railroads are getting every spark of service out of every unit of equipment they own. So, please remember this: When you can't get what you want on a train today, it is because our fighting men have the right-of-way. That's as it should be, and as every patriotic American wants it to be.

The Norfolk and Western Railway and the Norfolk and Western Family are in this war with everything they have. And they are proud that they can carry their full quota of America's fighting men, who will win complete and uncompromising Victory.

Fast Cookers.

For meat on busy days we select a fast cooker—something that can be oven broiled or cooked top stove in little time. For instance, here's a fast cooker—meat patties. But fixed thi way, they're not only fast but extra flavorful because of the mock turtle soup used as a moistener in the mixture, and also in the sauce:

Hamburgers, Savory Sauce.

1 tablespoon butter
3 tablespoons onion, chopped
1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
2 slices white bread
3 tablespoons mock turtle soup.

Cook the chopped onion in butter until soft, but not brown. Trim crusts from bread and make crumbs from the slices. Combine ground beef, cooked onion, seasonings, bread crumbs and mock turtle soup (just as it comes from the can). Mix we.. and shape into flat patties. Brown hamburgers on each side in a little butter or fat, then reduce heat and pour the hot "Savory Sauce" over the browned hamburgers. Simmer the hamburgers for 4 or 5 minutes. Serve on toast or on a mount or mashed potatoes.

Savory Sauce: Add 3 tablespoons wated and 3 tablespoons milk to the remainder of the can of mock turtle soup. Heat and pour this sauce over the browned hamburgers.

But not all days are rush, even in war time. On unhurried days let's trot out our long time simmered pot roasts, roast chickens, slow oven-baked casseroles.

This pork chop casserole is a long timer. It demands time to cook. But what melting tenderness is ours, how rich the gravy, what appetite rousing whiffs greet us as we set it proudly on the table!

Pork Chop and Rice Casserole ..

4 pork chops, approximately 1 1-4 lbs.
4 tablespoons uncooked rice
4 slices onion
1 can tomatoes
1 can (14 oz.) tomato juice
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepepr
1-4 teaspoon cinamon, ground
1-2 teaspoon cloves, ground

Trim the fat off the pork chops, leaving only about 1-8 inch of fat on the edge and put the chops in a casserole. Put a tablespoon of rice on each pork chop and a slice of onion on top of the rice. Make a sauce of the remaining ingredients and heat to boiling. Pour the hot sauce over the pork chops in the casserole and bake in a moderate oven (350 F) for two hours. Serves 3 to 4.

Green Peppers With Rice

It isn't necessary invariably to stuff green pepers in order to enjoy them as an entree and to take advantage of their splendid supply of vitamins A, B and especially C. Try them instead in a simple entree of tender-cooked rice, with the chopped pepers and chopped or sliced ripe olives sauted in a small amount of butter, and salt to taste. Saute peppers and olives until peppers are tender. Add to hot, cooked rice Season and toss lightly together.

The secret of the flavor success of this pleasingly easy-to-make entree is one that may be applied to other entrees, and salads, the congeniality of flavor of the crisp greed pod and the rich dark olive. Try tnem in sweet corn stuffing for peppers, with ripe olives in finely chopped form.

To Can Pumpkin

To can pumpkin, cook it as usual and put through potato ricer To each sugar or honey, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 teaspoon each of cinnamon, mace and nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon allspice. Cook ten minutes, then seal in sterilized jars while hot. This is useful in winter for making pies, by adding half a cup of syrup, half cup cream, half cup of milk and a beaten egg to each cup of the pumpkin. Line a pan with crust; pour in the mixture and bake.

Old Fashioned Pumpkin Butter.

Cut pumpkins in halves, remove seeds, put in a pan and bake in the oven until soft. When cooled, scrape with a spoon from the skin and rub through a sieve. To one gallon of seived pumkin add 1 tablespoon salt, half gallon good molasses, and place on the stove to cook slowly until of the thickness you want. When almost done, add 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon, 1 tablespoon of ground cloves, if you like it. The cloves will make the butter darker, and you may prefer a light colored product. This recipe is 60 years old.

Baked Pears.

Sirup from can
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup brown sugar

Add sugar and cinnamon to sirup from one can of pears, simmer for 10 minutes. Pour over pears in a baking dish, bake for 20 minutes at about 400 degrees, basting often.

Canned pears, deliciously tinted, are a splendid garnish for baked ham interspersed with curly green endive.

Calcium Foods.

Quite often a doctor advises a patient to eat hevaily of foods containing calcium—and the patient goes away with a worried look upon his face. What are the calcium foods, anyway?

There are many. Milk and cheese stand high on the list; so do cauliflower, dried figs and beans ,oranges and spinach. Smaller quantities may be obtained from celery, carrots, eggs, meat, string beans and many other foods.

Left Over Lamb

Cook 2 cups elbow macaroni or as much as you need for your family in boiling salted water until done. Drain and put in your baking dish with 2 or 3 onions, sliced quite thin, and your leftover lamb cut in small pieces. Now heat what gravy you have left and turn into the dish with 1 can tomato soup or just plain canned tomatoes. Mix all together, season to taste with salt and pepper and bake until bubbling all over and brown on top. When you haven't much gravy you can stew the bones in a little water until the meat drops off and add that to the rest, but it really needs gravy to make it just right.

Chili Sauce

12 large tomatoes or equivalent in canned tomatoes
2½ onions
3 green peppers
¼ cup New Orleans molasses
2 teaspoons ground ginger
2 teaspoons ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground allspice
2 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon salt

Remove skin from tomatoes and onions. Quarter the tomatoes. Chop onions and peppers fine. Combine all ingredients in saucepan and boil gently (uncovered) for about 1 hour or until it is of desired consistency. Stir occasionally. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Don't get excited when somebody pays you a compliment; after all, there are people who think they must make conversation.

NEED 10 PER CENT MORE HOGS MARKETED TO BE 10 POUNDS HEAVIER.

Farmers have been called upon to increase 1943 spring farrowing of pigs by 10 per cent and market hogs 10 pounds heavier than in 1942 as one of the first production goals for next year, says the Virginia USDA War Board.

Military and lend-lease requirements will amount to a billion pounds more pork in 1943 than in 1942, and now is the time to breed sows for February litters. February pigs which are given plenty of feed will come to market at good weights when we need them most, says Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, who is also chairman of the Foods Requirements Committee. We have abundant feed and the increased farrowings will result in an estimated 1943 slaughter of 13.4 billion pounds dressed weight.

"I am sure that the great demand for hogs will keep hog prices on a comparatively high level," the Secretary said. "The lend-lease and military people are planning to make heavy purchases just as quickly as heavy hog receipts start. Of course, hog farmers must not market too many in a short time."

"There are risks of one kind or another which can't be eliminated. But think of the obstacles and the risks of our boys in uniform. Think of the sacrifices and hardships our allies who are fighting for the common cause of liberty."

State and county goals are being set up. It is realized that every hog farmer won't be able to increase by 10 per cent because of labor, housing or equipment difficulties. However, there may be many relativelysmall operators who may increase with present facilities. If it is a question of choosing between dairy and hog production, the dairy shortage is more serious.

THE TRUTH ABOUT RATIONING PROGRAM

The national program is to ration goods essential to civilian welfare but which are scarce because of wartime conditions. There are two types of scarce materials. (1) Goods so extremely scarce that there is not enough to go around which are rationed so that people who need them most for war purposes get first call on the limited supply. Examples are rubber tires, automobiles and trucks, and certain types of farm machinery. (2) Goods plentiful enough to go around if fairly distributed and which are rationed so that each individual will get no more than his fair share. Examples are meats and sugar.

Scarcities develop for four principal reasons. (1) The war has cut off the source of supply such as rubber and sugar. (2) Supplies normally available to civilians are being diverted to military uses, such as meats. (3) Labor, machinery and materials are diverted from civilian to military production such as automobiles and farm machinery. (4) War work comes first with transportation facilities, which is a factor in the sugar situation and contributed to recent meat shortages.

Doubtful

A clergyman, finding himself in a small town in upper Ohio, and anxious to find the postoffice, asked a small boy for directions.

After receiving full and explicit directions, how many right turns, how many left, etc., the clergyman thanked the boy, then said: Sonny, if you are ever in Cincinnati, look me up. I can tell you how to get to Heaven.

The boy stoopped, stared at the man of the Gospel, and then retorted, Say, if you don't know how to find your way to the postoffice, how do you think you can show me the way to Heaven?

Huddleston H. D. Club.

The Huddleston H. D. Club met October 27 at the home of Mrs. W. G. Woodford. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. H. P. Hillsman. The devotional was led by Mrs. W. T. Pollard, Jr., with prayer by Mrs. J. J. Laughon. A committee consisting of Mrs. W. H. Walton, Mrs. W. G. Woodford and Mrs. W. T. Pollard, Jr., was appointed to write to the Anti-Saloon League in behalf of our interest in the boys in camp.

Due to the resignation of Miss Minnie Woodford as secretary-treasurer, it was necessary to elect a new one. Mrs. V. O. Wilson was elected to fill this place.

The general subject for discussion at the October meeting was remodeling clothes. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Woodford and enjoyed by all. We adjourned to meet at the home of Mrs. W. T. Pollard, Jr., in November.

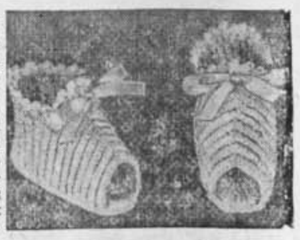
Toys and Togs to Make for Toddlers



WATCH your youngster's eyes shine when he sees a menagerie under the Christmas tree. You can make these animals from any scraps of material you may find in your sewing basket, stuff them with cotton batting. This Christmas will find us celebrating in the old-fashioned way, making a little count for a lot. While you're in the mood for making gifts, crochet a bib for the toddler, and booties in the latest open-toed style for the tiny newcomer in your circle of acquaintances. Directions for crocheting the bib and booties and further information about the toys may be obtained by sending a stamped, self addresseed envelope to the Needlework Department of this paper, specifying design No. 1531.

GUESS WHO?

DURING THE WAR TIME EMERGENCY IN THE FOLLOWING WAYS

By making no demands for unnecessary calls.

By not expecting daily visits.

By seeing the doctor at his office when possible.

Learn what is the most convenient time to call your doctor on the phone.

By not calling the doctor at night or on Sunday.

If you desire a house visit, call the doctor around eight o'clock in the morning. This is a reasonable hour for most physicians. A person or child who has a temperature of 100 degrees or over in the morning may be expected to have a higher temperature in the afternoon, so do not delay until you take the afternoon temperature.

If you desire information on the telephone, help save his time by having a pencil and paper ready to note what instructions are given.

Often the doctor's secretary can answer your question herself. For example, don't ever ask to speak to the doctor personally to make an appointment, to ask about office hours, etc.

When the time comes—and it will come—when your doctor can't visit you as quickly as you wish, don't get angry and call one doctor after another. Tell your symptoms briefly and ask your doctor whether he thinks immediate attention is necessary. If he does, he will help you find another doctor who can go at once. If he does not think the symptoms are urgent, he may tell you what to do until he can come.

LYNCHBURG ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

Huffman will lead the devotional. The theme word will be "Meek." $34.00 was turned in as a special home mission offering.

MONTVALE SCHOOL NEWS.

Victory Corps Organized

A victory corps is being organized by the high school students at Montvale high school. Charles Wilson is chairman of the executive council; Odessa Tinsley, vice-chairman and Va. ——— secretary. The executive council will form a nucleus for the organization in the rest of the school.

Mrs. Schenk's Room

We are much distressed over the continued serious illness of Mrs. Markham, Elna's mother. She is in Jefferson Hospital, Roanoke. The Fourth Grade sent her letters and a basket of fruit last week.

The Seventh Grade is still much interested in Patriotism—past and present. This study arose in their study of "How Americans Have Learned to Live Together." They find that patriots like Colin Kelley today, felt much like did Patrick Henry and John Hancock of Revolutionary times. The spirit of "Liberty or Death," is still true in America. A list of great Americans is being made with heading "What Was Their Service."

The Hallowe'en Party in our room was a great success. Many thanks to the various committees.

Assembly Program

The seventh grade pupils in Mrs. Garrett's room had charge of the assenmly Thursday morning. he following program was given:

Star Spangled Banner—School

Pledge to the Flag, led by Harrison Holland.

Scripture—Gladys Fitzgerald.

Talk on "Our Homes"—Rev. C. E. Derby.

Poem, "Home Song"—Duanne Davidson.

Four Songs of Stephen C. Foster—Seventh Grade

Anne Lumsden acted as pianist.

School Notes

O. R. Bible presented his Society Circus Revue in the auditorium Tuesday morning. It was a good, clean, interesting entertainment. A number of patrons were present for this program.

Sandra Jean McKee was taken to Dr. Repass in Roanoke Monday morning and had several teeth extracted.

Miss Ruff was guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ellis one night last week.

Tommy Wilkerson spent the week-end in Roanoke.

Community League Meets

The regular meeting of the Montvale Community League was held last Thursday night in the high school auditorium. Many patrons attended. Miss Harvey gave a good talk on the physical education program, and Mr. Peters had some of his boys demonstrate just the sort of thing the boys and girls are doing.

Mrs. Wilkerson told us about the meeting in Danville and showed us the cup which Montvale won because of our great increase in membership.

Circuit Stewards Meeting.

The stewards and associate members of the Methodist churches on the Montvale Circuit met at the parsonage Nov. 10, at 8 p. m. C. M. Aldridge, lay leader, presided. S. W. Huddleston was elected asssitant lay leader. Albert D. Hawley was re-elected secretary-treasurer. A very fine report was given by the chairman of each board. An increase of one hundred dollars was made in the pastor's salary for the new conference year.

C. P. Carter expressed for the group the pleasure of receiving Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Derby back for the fifth year. It was decided for the circuit meetings to be held semi-annually.

REPORTER.

UNION

Well, the election is over and I reckon everyone is happy unless its that bunch of Dictators in Washington who are making life miserable for every one. First gasolene shortage when there has never been one. Then sugar, now they have set up a howl about meat and coffee, and whoever made one pound of coffee last one person five weeks with only one cup a day. Just didn't have any coffee, not hardly colored water, and whenever a bunch of Half Breeds begin telling us what our children can and cannot drink, it's time to start a revolution right here at home. We have one consolation there is another election coming along. One lady said she would take $25.00 for her car if the government didn't come along and get it first, and its a good car too. What a life.

The ones responsible for having those little pigs plowed under are the ones to get along without meat.

Last Saturday night Johny Buck Stiff was coming home from Bedford when all of a sudden his car took a buck jumping notion, turned over several times and Buck landed in Lewis Gale Hospital in Roanoke, somewhat disfigured but still in the ring.

Mr. and Mrs. John Franklin Prowant, of Lewisburg, Penn., are spending sometime visiting their friends, O. P. and Mrs. Hamilton. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will honor them with an old fashioned dance while here.

Miss Lorene Overstreet is still confined in a hospital in Roanoke from a serious operation for appendicitis.

Lacy Stiff, of The Great Lakes TrainingStation, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Bessie Stiff. Lacy looks right cute in his uniform when it hasn't been so long since he was a little lad running around in his shirt tail.

Will say to our friend at Evington I haven't "jined" anything. Just been busy digging sassafras roots to make tea out of—all we need is some soggum lasses for sweetnen."

Don Dooley left for the army Monday, and Hugh Lee Williams will go Thursday. That winds up the farmers in this community except the old men.

For several years Don and his mother have lived together and he worked Dell Hawkins' farm, which is a good one, and he made good crops. Now Mr. Hawkins is left with no help. Don's mother, who is a semi-invalid, is left alone. Hugh Lee Williams supervised J. D. Clingempeel's farm, raised cattle and hogs besides farm produce. Now the cattle are sold, fine team of horses for sale, all because there is no one to do a thing. Old Sherman didn't miss it when he said "war is hell."

While thieves were trying to break in Mr. Robbins' hen house the other hand in it and right then they took a hand in itand right then they took to high timber with the dog right at their heels.

Mrs. O. P. Hamilton had a gourd vine that ran up in a pine tree and it had 17 of the prettiest long handle smooth gourds on it that was ever seen.

Dogan Smith and Hamid Dooley, who work at Radford, have been notified they will not have to work on Sundays any more.

Did Mark Wilkerson, of North Dakoda, die or just stop writing? Wake up, Mark, with a few items.

MEMORIAL

One year ago, Nov. 11, 1941, news flashed over the wires to points in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Wisconsin that our dear father, J. W. Mattox, was dead.

One sad year has passed since our dear father was taken away;
Shadows over our lives are cast, and many changes in our homes today.
Without him the world seems very different, we find.
But sweet are the memories he left behind.
God knew best and took him to the beautiful shore.
Where we hope to meet him, to part no more.

—By His Dauhgter Laura.

VOLUME XLVIII NO. 34 — BEDFORD VIRGINIA, THURSDAY NOVEMBER 19, 1942 — 8 Pages — $1.00 Year

B. F. Moomaw to Attend Meeting

Ben F. Moomaw, Jr., of the Virginia War Savings staff, will attend a meeting of the local committee at 9 o'clock Friday morning, A. G. Cummings, local war savings chairman, has announced. This meeting will be in connection with the "all out" pay roll savings drive which will be conducted here. The goal of the campaign is to enroll every wage earner in the county in the regular investment of at least 10 per cent in war bonds through the payroll savings plan.

Robert F. Nelson, state administrator of the war savings staff, in a statement made last week, explained this is a part of a 45-day nationwide drive to complete the voluntary payroll deduction effort by January 1. He said his committees in every section of the Old Dominion had been sent material to assist them with their work in their communities.

"Five deputy administrators, who have been meeting with committees throughout Virginia for a week, report chairmen of the groups in almost every case have enthusiastically promised to make every effort to complete this payroll savings job," Nelso declared.

"We have in the Old Dominion 2,320 firms and organizations, with 500,000 employees, buying bonds regularly through payroll deductions. Of this number more than 800 have 90 per cent or more of their employees under the plan, and nearly 200 have their employees investing 10 per cent or more of the gross payroll regularly in war bonds.

"The job of our committees will be to see that the payroll savings plan is installed in a few places in Virginia that still have not put it into effect; to urge employers and employees to increase the participation at least to 90 per cent, with 10 per cent of the gross payroll going into war bonds. It will be necessary for every chairman to report to the treasury department the payroll savings status of every firm in his area."

With a monthly quota of $54,900, investments of $18,000 in war savings bonds have been made by Bedford people this month, according to a report given by W. W. Burks, chairman of the issuing agents. Following the meeting of the committee on Friday, Mr. Moomaw will appear before a group of representative women of the town and county in an effort to create more war savings interest.

J .B. Bernard Made Soy Bean Agent Here

J. B. Bernard signed a contract Tuesday to serve as agent here to purchase soy beans grown in Bedford county for the Growers Peanut Cooperative. Farmers will be supplied by Mr. Bernard with new bags in which to bring beans to market. A rate of $1.50 for yellow and green and $1.40 for blacks, browns and mixed has been fixed by the government under its "edible oil for defense" program.

W. B. Denton, secretary to the AAA committee of Bedford county, stated yesterday that this is the first year that soy beans have been grown to any extent in this county and that the crop this year is estimated at 7,000 to 9,000 bushels. Two thousand bushels from Lynchburg may be stored here, he said.

Kenneth Badgett, of Farmers' Seed and Supply Company, 1308 Main street, has been appointed agent to purchase soy beans in Lynchburg. Farmers living nearer to Lynchburg than to Bedford will probably use this market.

Masons to Hold Thanksgiving Service

Robert S. Barrett, Grand Master of Masons in Virginia, has directed that all Masonic lodges in this jurisdiction assemble in their respective lodge rooms or in a church in their vicinity at some time during the period between November 23rd and November 29th for the purpose of offering up their thanks to the Supreme Architect of the Universe for His care and protection of our Nation, our homes and our fraternity, and has directed that these meetings shall be open to the public.

Accordingly I request all members of Liberty Lodge No. 95, A. F. & A. M., to assemble at Main Street Methodist church in Bedford, Virginia, at 7:30 p. m., Sunday, November 29th, for the purpose of participating in such a thanksgiving service, which will be conducted by the Rev. Alpheus W. Potts, pastor.

All members of Mento, Bedford, Chamblissburg and Forest Lodges and the ladies of Liberty Chapter 109, Eastern Star, are invited to attend and take part in this service.

Schedule of Hours Of Rationing Board

Until further notice the Bedford War Price and Rationing Board office will open at 10:00 a. m. and close at 3:00 p. m.

This change has been made necessary by the press of office work in connection with the new registration of passenger cars and fuel oil users.

Chairman War Board & Rationing Board No. 10.

Retail Stores to Collect Stockings

Regional Supervisor Meeting of Central Salvage Committee Last Week

All Bedford merchants, who sell silk stockings, have agreed to have containers in their stores this week in which people who have old, worn-out silk stockings to give to the silk stocking campaign can deposit their contributions. These boxes will be labeled and placed in a conspicuous spot in the store. All stockings should be washed before they are turned in at the stores. Hosiery of the following description is wanted: all silk, all nylon, mixture of silk and nylon, silk and rayon, nylon and rayon, silk and cotton and nylon and cotton.

A meeting of the Central Salvage Committee of Bedford County was held Thursday afternoon last week at the home of the chairman, Mrs. J. K. Walker, to discuss the silk hosiery campaign, which began on a nationwide basis last Monday, and to complete plans for organizing the town into districts for salvage purposes. Mrs. Barbara Trigg Brown, regional supervisor from the Office of Civilian Defense, was present at the meeting and stated that the committee's plan for organization followed precisely that recommended by the State.

The Central Committee will be a permanent organization to handle any salvage demands that are brought up for the duration of the war. Attention at present, however, is focussed on the hosiery collection.

The silk will be used in the manufacture of powder bags which are used by the armed services and into which charges of powder are placed for generating the power required to expel a shell from guns of major calibre. They are placed in the breach of the gun. An attached fuse is ignited to cause the explosion that expels the shell. Only silk can be used as it alone burns completely and leaves no hot embers. Nylon is not used for this purpose but is used in making other important war materials. Approximately 1,500 pairs of silk or 2300 pairs of nylon stockings are needed to make up a 100 pound coase.

In addition to the stores, the graded school is also participating in the silk hosiery campaign and containers have been placed there by the parent-teacher association for collections. The children have been collecting rags for sometime and have turned in almost 700 pounds to date. Their goal is 1,000 pounds.

Gas Ration to Be Reduced to 3 Gallons.

The Office of Price Administration announced that beginning November 22 the value of gasoline ration coupons in A books now used in 16 eastern states will be reduced from four to three gallons. Rationing is now effective in 17 eastern states, but one of those—West Virginia—was excepted from the order, for the time being.

An official announcement said that others measures to curtail fuel oil consumption in non-war industries and for heating of certain types of buildings are now being drafted and will be announced soon.

Leon Henderson, OPA administrator, said the cut had been ordered because of the shortage on the east coast, intensified by military requirements.

More Than $300.00 Raised for Scouts

More than $300 has been raised already in the boy scout funds drive launched Tuesday, according to latest reports. This represents only about 200 of the 319 pledges sent out, the remainder not yet having been heard from, so it is expected that this sum will be increased materially before the drive ends. The drive was preceded by a breakfast at the high school cafeteria.

The troop is sponsored by a Bible class of the Bedford Baptist church. Dr. E. Y. Lovelace is scoutmaster and W. O. Thomas, chairman of the drive.

To Discuss Bible At Youth Meeting

On Sunday, November 22, the Hickory Grove Youth Fellowship will start a series of discussions on the eBible. The first of which will be led by the Rev. R. P. Parker, pastor. His subject will be "What's in the Bible." The discussion will begin at 7:30 p. m. at Hickory Grove Methodist church. The public is invited to attend and take part in the discussion.

Roanoke Livestock Market

Lambs 13.50 per 100, veal calves 16.25, fat hogs 14.80, fat steers 13.65, fat heifers 12.10, fat cows 10.20, fat bulls 7.50 to 12.80, stockers and feeders 10.00 to 13.00, fat cows 40.00 to 90.00 per head, old poor cows 6.00 to 8.00.

Clark and Gills Resign From Rationing Board

S. D. Gills and J. Thurman Clark have resigned from the local rationing board, effective December 1. Mr. Clark is chairman of the board and succeeded Lt. J. T. Davidson, Jr., when he was called into active army service. Mr. Gills has been a member of the board since it was first organized 13 months ago.

In a letter to General J. Fulmer Bright, head of the Office of Price Administration, Richmond, explaining the situation, Coordinator duVal Radford praised both men for the valuable work which they had rendered on the board and expressed doubt that the rationing board could keep open here without them. Both men were serving on a volunteer basis without pay. In speaking of their resignations, Mr. Radford stated:

"They are both highly qualified and well informed concerning the duties of their office and I believe it will be absolutely impossible to procure the services of anyone else to fill these vacancies in the manner in which they have been filled or procure the services of anyone whom we would endorse to fill such vacancies."

He stated further that he did not see how it would be possible to carry on the work of the rationing board without them.

A meeting of the Defense Council was held in the Civilian Defense office Tuesday afternoon at which time H. B. Shaughnessy, from the OPA office in Roanoke was present to discuss the situation. Nothing definite was decided at this time, however.

Moneta Woman is Hurt in Accident

Mrs. W. I. DeLong is receiving treatment at John Russell Hospital for a fractured pelvis. The injury was received last Saturday when the car in which she was driving skidded off of the road near Johnnie Watson's home in the Moneta neighborhood.

Mrs. DeLong was riding in the back seat with her baby daughter, Peggy Anne beside her. Her husband, the driver of the car, and his father, J. W. DeLong were on the front seat. They were driving on a gravel road and the car skidded when going around a curve, landed in a ditch and turned over. The door on the side of the car on which Mrs. DeLong was sitting came open and she was thrown out of it and then caught between the door and the car when the vehicle turned over. None of the other occupants of the automobile were injured except for minor bruises.

Seal Sale Campaign To Begin Nov. 23rd

Increased Need During Control is Stressed Wartime for T. B.

At a meeting of the Bedford County Tuberculosis Association Saturday morning, O. T. Bonner, president, explained the program of the tuberculosis association which includes, this year, high school clinics at which all high school pupils and teachers can be X-rayed. It is thought that such clinics will do much to prevent the spread of tuberculosis and to uncover cases for early treatment.

Supplies for the Christmas seal sale which begins on Monday, November 23, were given out to the district chairmen, each of whom has a mailing list in her district. Practically all solicitation in this campaign is done by letter. A return envelope with the local chairman's name and address is enclosed with the seals with the request that the money for the purchase of the seals be returned to the chairman. The letters this year were printed locally in order that the high school clinic project might be explained as this is a new addition to the regular program of the association.

District chairmen have reported that they have received inquiries as to the amount of money which is retained from the campaign in Bedford county. Last year 63 per cent of the total seal sales was kept in this county, the remainder going to the State organization. An additional bonus of more than $300 was also turned back to the county because of the work done by the association. The bonus is based on the number of points in the general state tuberculosis program that the local association is able to carry out. The percentage of the seal sales that is kept here is determined on a per capita basis. The more money per capita the county gets through the sale of Christmas seals, the larger the percentage that it can retain for use in this county alone.

Every cent of the sum of $214,420 which Virginians will be asked to contribute this year through their purchases of Christmas Seals will be needed for control of the war-time spread of tuberculosis in the Old Dominion, Dr. Frank S. Johns, president of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, emphasized yesterday.

487 Teen-Age Men In Bedford County

Bill Lowering Draft Age Minimum to 18 Signed by President Friday

There are approximately 487 youths of 18 and 19 in Bedford county registered for selective service who will be affected by the new 'teen age draft bill. This does not take into account those who have become 18 since the registration last June 30. There are an estimated 50,000 in this group in the State of Virginia, and it is believed that probably 10,000 or 12,000 additional young men have become 18 since the registration last summer.

The Senate approved the 'teen-age draft bill last Thursday and sent the measure to President Roosevelt who signed it the following night. The president made a statement at this time that he had ordered a study with a view to enabling the 18-and-19-year olds called to service to resume their schooling and training after the war.

"The time has now come," the president said, "when the successful prosecution of the war requires that we call to the colors the men of 18 and 19. Many have already volunteered. Others have been eagerly awaiting the call. All are ready and anxious to serve.

"The civilian careers of these men will be interrupted, as have the careers of most of their seniors—I am causing a study to be made by a committee of educators, under the auspices of the war and navy departments for the taking of steps to enable the young men whose education has been interrupted to resume their schooling and afford equal opportunity for the training and education of other young men of ability after their service in the armed services has come to an end."

The bill lowers the minimum induction age from 20 to 18 in response to General George C. Marshall's plea for "combat units of vigorous, aggressive soldiers," and was passed finally by the Senate without an amendment which was at first proposed to insure the 'teen agers one year's training before being sent into combat overseas.

Delay in Securing Certificates Explained

The following was received by the county agent who is secretary of the Bedford County War Board, which explains the delay in securing certificates of War Necessity.

Office of Defense Transportation has postponed effective date of Certificates of War Necessity from November 15 to December 1. OPA has postponed effective date of nation-wide gasoline rationing to December 1 and its regulations will permit issuance of temporary gasoline rations after December 1 to anyone who has applied for a Certificate of War Necessity but has not received it. Every effort should be made by truck owners to file application for Certificate of War Necessity if they have not already done so. There will be no postponement after the above date.

School Vacation Starts on Dec. 23.

The Bedford County School Board set December 23 as the date on which Bedford county schools will close for Christmas holidays at a meeting last Thursday. They will reopen for classes again on January 4. November 26 and 27 will be allowed the schools for Thanksgiving holiday.

A. S. St. Clair and J. O. Hackworth were elected delegates to the annual meeting of the State Trustees Association in Richmond during Thanksgiving week. J. S. McCauley and Superintendent A. G. Cummings were authorized to have the well at Brookhill dug deeper to supply a greater flow of water.

Everyone Must Have War Ration Book

War Ration Book One will be used to ration coffee. It will also be used to issue War Ration Book Two, and may be used to ration other commodities. It is, therefore, essential that every individual have a War Ration Book One regardless of whether or not he buys sugar or coffee. Nobody will be able to obtain War Ration Book Two unless he has War Ration Book One.

Persons who do not have War Ration Book One include those who have not registered and those who have registered and have not been given books because they had excess supplies of sugar. All consumers who have not registered for War Ration Book One must do so by December 15, 1942 with the Local Board serving the area in which he regularly resides. He may register for himself or by an agent.

BOARD NO. 10.

Three Acquitted in Trial Justice Court

Junior Thompson appeared in trial justice court Saturday morning to answer charges of cursing brought against him by Noble Martin, of Moneta. During the hearing before Judge S. S. Lambeth, Jr., it was brought out that the disagreement arose from a prank played by someone on Mr. Martin Hallowe'en night. Mr. Martin accused Junior Thompson of putting saw dust and cylinder oil in his spring on that night. Thompson deined any knowledge of the deed and, according to Mr. Martin, in so-doing used language not befitting a gentleman. After hearing both sides of the case, however, Judge Lambeth acquitted Thompson and dismissed the case.

Jesse Fulton who was also heard on this date on a charge of cutting Junia Karnes with a knife and also drawing a pistol on him was likewise acquitted. Jimmy Buford accused Henry Pettys of Montvale of not only drawing a pistol on him, but also of shooting at him with a shotgun. The defendant in this case was also acquitted and the case dismissed at the expense of Buford who brought the complaint.

T. D. Tucker was fined $10 and costs for speeding.

Settlement Reported In Two Damage Suits

Two damage suits growing out of an automobile accident which occurred on August 30, 1941, were reported to have been settled out of court this week. The first suit, that of Helen Christine Padgett Cobb, 18, Jack Padgett, 16, and Gerald Padgett, 9, brought by their father, Kerford S. Padgett, against Ben Clark and the Michigan Silo Company was heard in circuit court on November 12 and resulted in a hung jury. The case of Mrs. Mary Hazel Zimmerman Padgett, the driver of the car, against Clark and the Silo Company, was to be heard on Tuesday, but was postponed.

It has since been reported that the lawyers in both cases have reached an agreement and the cases will be settled out of court. No official record of the settlement has yet been made, however.

School Libraries To Get New Books

Public school libraries throughout the State may receive approximately 250,000 additional books this session, according to an announcement released this week by C. W. Dickinson, Jr., Director of School Libraries and Textbooks for the State Department of Education. The large number of new books is made possible because of the additional appropriation of $50,000, voted this year by the General Assembly, which, when matched by $50,000, and added to the $100,000 appropriation already allowed, and matched by the localities from private donations and local school funds will allow the total expenditure of $300,000 for approved library books. The books will be ordered through the State Department of Education at an annual discount of approximately $75,000. Emphasis in purchasing new books is being laid on those dealing with aeronautics, the armed forces, global geography, nutrition, physical education and first aid; the current war situation, the way of life of our allies and other important subjects of the hour.

Nutrition Film to Be Shown Nov. 20-21.

An up-to-date nutrition film, "Hidden Hunger," from the American Film Center and sponsored by the county nutrition committee will be shown at the Liberty Theatre Friday and Saturday, November 20 and 21, this being in addition to the regular feature.

Members of the committee are Miss Jessie Dunkum, Miss Maria Richardson and Mrs. Lela C. Atkinson.

Nutrition Class at Bedford High School

The Nutrition Class conducted by Miss Jessie Dunkum at the Home Economics department of the Bedford high school on Mondays and Wednesdays is progressing nicely. Eighteen have been enrolled for this course, which consists of ten practical nutrition lessons.

Methodist Women's Zone Meeting

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Bedford Methodist church and the churches on the Bedford, Middle Bedford, Montvale, Moneta, Huddleston and Bellevue Circuits, comprising Zone No. 1 of the Lynchburg District, will have an all day meeting at Oakland church, Goode, on November 21, starting at 10 a. m. It is hoped all the societies will be well represented.

Register to Share Your Car

The Rotary club has suggested that Bedford people share their cars when going on trips. If you are taking a trip to Richmond, Washington or elsewhere and have an extra seat, let it be known and anyone wanting to go the same way can help share the expense and save gas and tires. Charlie Green at Jones Drug Store will register your name, place you are going and number of extra seats you have and people wanting to go with you can see the register and arrange to go with you and help share the expense. It is to be hoped that this arrangement will be a convenience to the people of Bedford and will be a saving in these days of restricted transportation.

"American Patriot"— Subject of D. A. R. Talk

The Peaks of Otter chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met on Monday afternoon, at "Kingston" the home of Mrs. J. K. Walker, as hostess, with Miss Earle Dennis as assisting hostess.

The regent, Mrs. Hamilton West, presided, and reports from committee chairmen were given during the business session.

Miss Belle Thomas, chairman, explained the work of Ellis Island, as the medium through which foreign people gain introduction to America. The D. A. R. work is for those detained at the island for various reasons. Boxes of materials are sent from chapters all over the country. As the Marine hospitals now occupy an important place in war time, and with only a limited amount of new equipment in the occupational shops, the D. A. R. will be called upon to help more patients than before. The chapter voted to send a contribution for this cause.

It was voted to purchase a war bond, a part of which amount was donated by the regent, Mrs. West, the said bond was to be used for the benefit of the Blue Ridge Industrial School, one of the approved D. A. R. schools.

The chapter voted to include the New London high school in the Good Citizenship Pilgrims Club, of Bedford county high schools, as sponsored by the Peaks of Otter chapter. Mrs. J. K. Walker, chairman, stated that the collections of rags for the salvage committee would continue and that the attention at this time, was focused on hosiery collection and containers would be placed at convenient places, this collection began November the 16. Mrs. G. P. Parker, chairman of the Red Cross work of the chapter, said additional workers were needed in the production rooms to roll surgical dressings, also to make knitted garments for the armed forces. She asked that members of the chapter who have been active in various phases of Red Cross and other war work, to keep a record of the type of work done, and time spent on same.

The highlight and of special interest to the chapter was the report given by Mrs. S. D. Gills, chairman, on the making of "Buddy Bags" sent to the Bedford county boys serving overseas. With assistance of friends, Mrs. Gills made twenty-two buddy bags containing games, stationery, cigarettes, sweets, toilet articles, and other items, with an estimated value of $44.00. Each boy to be identified by the name of the Bedford boy for whom it was made, and each bag contained a kodak picture of the Peaks of Otter, which pictures were made and donated by Mrs. G. P. Parker.

As a fitting climax to a patriotic program, "The American Patriot at Home" was the theme of the talk by Mrs. Wesley Smith, chairman of the British War Relief and vice-chairman of the Red Cross Surgical Dressing, and guest speaker of the afternoon. She spoke of the large scale movement now getting under way to recruit 5,000,000 more women for war production by the end of 1943 as cited by Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war manpower commission, as further evidence of our dependence on women for victory. Last December about 1,400,000 women were thus employed. "This figure will jump to 4,500,000 by December, 1942, and will climb to above 6,000,000 by the end of 1943. By then, women will represent at least 30 per cent of the labor force employed in war production." Taking into account war indutries and other occupations, the male personal of which is steadily being depleted by the draft and other war requirements, Mr. McNutt calculates that by the end of 1943, more than 18,000,000 women will have to be employed, as contrasted with the 13,000,000 today. "This means that one out of every six women over eighteen years of age, who are not now in the labor force, will be needed and one out of every four housewives, perhaps, one out of every three, between the ages of eighteen and forty-four will be sought to undertake various jobs." Mrs. May Thompson

Jap Fleet Smashed in Three-Day Fight

1 Battleship, 5 Cruisers, 5 Destroyers and 8 Loaded Transports Sunk

For the second successive week the war goes well for the United Nations on all fronts. American and British troops have completed the occupation of French Morocco and Algeria and are now advancing into Tunisia, a French Protectorate wedged between Algeria and the African colonies of North Africa. The Japanese have been administered a crushing defeat in a naval engagement in the Solomons, and American and Australian troops are still advancing upon the main Japanese base on the north coast of New Guinea. Rommel's African Corps, or what is left of it following the British victory in Egypt, is still fleeing across Libya, evidently trying to reach Tripoli or possibly Tunisia before trying to make a stand. A new assault launched by the Germans against Stalingrad has been stopped by the Russians, and Moscow reports that the Red army is gaining ground in the Caucasus and Black Sea areas and is holding the Germans on all other fronts. Even the Chinese broke in to the victory column and report defeating the Japs in a land engagement this week.

That the Japs were headed for another try at retaking the Solomons became evident Friday when Washington reported that a bombing attack, combined with an attempt to land more troops on Guadalcanal, had been beaten off by American ground and air forces. The Japs sent a total of 31 planes over the island. One of these got back to its back, the other 30 being shot down by American fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns. Thirty landing boats were also demolished.

On the date this attack by the enemy was made American warships had shelled Japanese shore positions for ten hours, with devastating effect, and the Japs came in to break this up. In the fighting one of the Jap planes fell in flames on the deck of the cruiser San Francisco, resulting in the death of 30 of the American crew and some damage to the ship. The only other U. S. vessel damaged was the destroyer Buchanan, which was hit by an enemy shell which killed five of her crew.

This battle, however, was merely the prelude to the major engagement which opened the same day. American airmen reported the approach from the north of an enemy armada so huge that all of it could not be seen from their planes. The convoy was composed of battleships, cruisers, destroyers, transports, and cargo vessels and represented an allout attempt by the enemy to regain what he had lost. Having failed in previous attempts to drive the Americans out, the Japs this time were coming in what they believed was irresistible force. The situation looked ominous for the Americans on Guadalcanal.

Under date of the 15th, Washington reported that U. S. land, sea and air forces were waging a steady fight to smash a "determined" Japanese drive to retake Guadalcanal, but gave out no details, fearing that any reports on the battle while it was in progress might supply the enemy with useful information. It merely said that both sides were suffering losses, but this only added to the feeling of anxiety felt by the American people over the outcome.

The season of suspense was of very short duration, however, as preliminary reports of the big American victory were announced by the Navy department late Monday afternoon. In the greatest naval battle since Jutland, the Navy announcement said, United States forces sank 23 Japanese ships of all classes and thus smashed a tremendous enemy armada which had sought to drive the Americans off Guadalcanal into the sea..

Backed by MacArthur's bombers, surface and air units of the Navy destroyed 11 Japanese warships and 12 transports and damaged seven other ships in a three-day running battle, much of a vicious, close-range gun duel in the darkness.

The only American vessels reported sunk in the engagement were two light cruisers and six destroyers, and naval men said they did not believe American losses were very large.

But probably about 24,000 Japanese soldiers died when eight transports, part of a large force headed for Guadalcanal, were sent to the bottom by air attack the morning of November 14th. Four others kept moving toward Guadalcanal and may have succeeded in getting men ashore, since the Americans found four cargo transports beached at Tassafaronga the next day and proceeded to smash them with a concentration of air, ar-

Methodists to Take Offering for Work In Defense Areas.

Next Sunday, November 22nd, over 240,000 Methodist of the Virginia Conference, which embraces the larger part of the State, will contribute to a program of helpfulness for the thousands of people in defense areas like Arlington, Portsmouth, Norfolk and Newport News.

This movement was started at the recent session of the Conference held in Richmond in October and since that time promotional work has been done throughout the territory. Methodists have been given such facts as these:

The population of Norfolk has more than doubled; a City normally taikng care of around 150,000 people now has over 300,000.

Enough apartments have been built in Arlington to take care of a small size city and they are all filled!

The Navy Yard at Portsmouth has brought into that City an unprecedented number of workers with their families coming along to swell the population.

In Newport News the situation is the same. People by the thousands are living in all sorts of housing facilities including boathouses, trailer camps with many children in crowded places like trailers.

They Have Spiriual Needs

It has been emphasized over and over during this campaign that the needs of these workers and their families are spiritual needs. They do not need relief.

Juvenile delinquency is on the increase in these areas. Crowded conditions usually bring delinquency. Defense work that takes parents away from their children brings problems for the children.

Some churches have built temporary buildings only to find them overflowing after a few weeks.

These defense workers need the ministers and the friendly contacts of church workers but the ministers available cannot do their regular work and this too. They must have help.

Children, youth and adults too need wholesome recreation. There is much evil around them. They need character-building activties.

What Methodists Expect to Do.

This money will be used to provide temporary chapels, to secure workers to visit in trailer camps to to work with the children, to provide literature and supplies for new Sunday Schools, to make possible a program of recreation for youth and in countless other ways to Take the Church to the People!

A minimum of $30,000 will be asked. Denominational leaders predict that this and more will be raised.

MEFORIAL

In sad but loving remembrance of our mother and daughter, Mrs. Gladys Mae Franklin Pentecost, who departed from us five years ago today, Novmbr 17, 1937:

A long time ago you left us,

American Subs Take Heavy Jap Shipping Toll

American subs have been prowling the coast of Japan and the China Sea since last December, seeking every enemy ships.

The operations of our submarines have been some of the most successful of the Pacific war, but they are largely unheralded and unsung—because of the Navy's insistence upon secrecy.

How and where they work cannot be revealed, nor ca nthe exact results they have accomplished. But it is probable that in 10 months of war they have sunk better than 750,000 tons of enemy shipping. Perhaps considerably more.

They have forced Japanese merchant shipping into convoys and they have brought the meaning of war to the very entrances to Japan's harbors. And they have done it, with small loss to themselves—only three submarines reported "overdue and presumed lost" as the ominous official language of the Navy puts it, and two others destroyed. One was sunk in a collision off Panama, the other was demolished by her crew in a Philippine drydock to prevent her capture.

Operating from bases in Hawaii and Australia, our submarines cruise thousands of miles in the western Pacific, range all the sea lanes of the enemy, stay at sea for months at a time. Theq return to port for a few crowded weeks of sunshine,recreation and recuperation.

In Hawaii, the "pig boat" sailors enjoy—for 10 days or two weeks of their three-week intervals between patrols—the unaccustomed luxuries of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel at Waikiki, which the Navy has taken over for the duration.

The rest of the time they are at sea, or preparing their craft for sea. Theirs is the deadly life of danger, for every man is their enemy and the price of a whole skin is eternal vigilance.

Until they reach their patrol areas, our submarines ordinarily cruise on the surface. In the danger zone they maintain the traditional routine of the submarine—"dive-at-dawn, surface-at-dark." During the day they maintain a careful periscope patrol.

The plane is only one of their enemies. Japanese sampans and fishing boats that maintain a more or less continuous "picket line"—600 to 1000 miles off the Japanese coast—fish and wait and report. Many have been the brushes with those little craft, which are equipped usually with radio, depth charges and machine guns. The wise skipper takes no chances but usually destroys them by gunfire.

The adventures of the "pig boat" sailor are endless. One of our subs crushing one the surface saw an enemy persiscope cutting the waters of an island in mid-Pacific. Usually the surfaced submarine that sees another's periscpoe is doomed. Our sub turned tail toward the enemy, crash-dived and torpedoed the enemy. One of our patrol planes sighted the wreckage.

There's not much peace in a submarine on patrol. Even if your ship isn't depth-charged directly you have to get used to what are called "embarrassing barrages." Whenever the enemy thinks a submarine is in the vicinity he drops depth charges and fires his guns blindly.

When the depth charges come close, you know it. The explosion is "like a gun fired by your ear, and you can hear the roaring whoosh of water through the sub's superstructure." You are "scared as hell," but you keep busy and try not to show it. Your job is to get the fellow on the surface.

You "up periscope" and look around, but only the "old man" sees the enemy. The crew knows it when he fires, for you can feel the sub lift as the torpedoes leave her, and then the captain "takes her down."

And then you strain your ears for the sound of the explosion as the torpedoes get home on the target and you brace yourself—strained and tense but always busy—for the depth charges you know are coming.

It's all in the day's work for a submarine sailor.

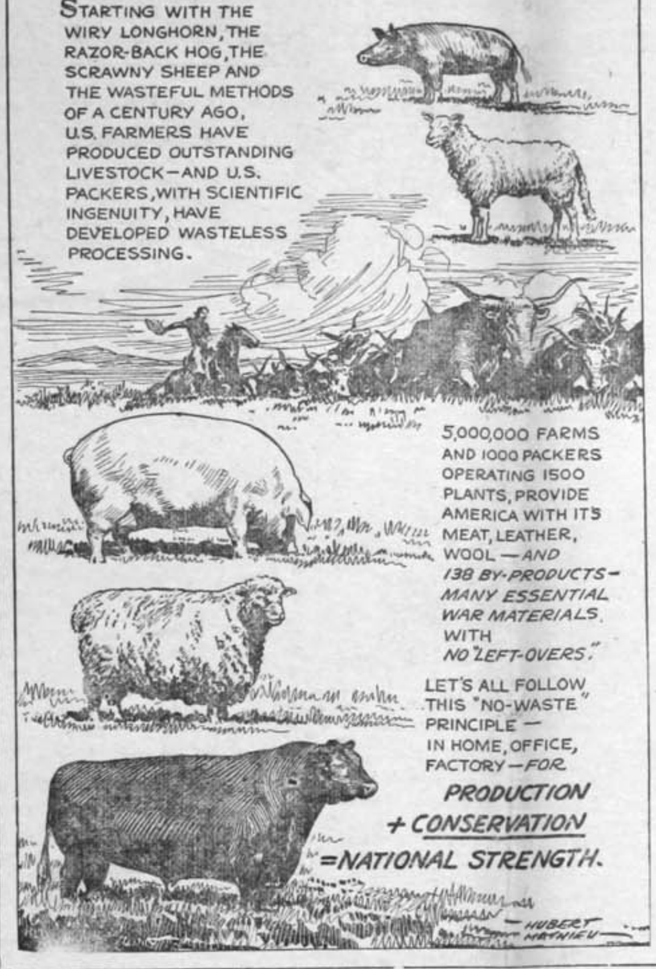
OUR DEMOCRACY——by Mat



Weekly Sermonette

"HAPPY IS THAT PEOPLE WHERE GOD IS THE LORD"

"Happy is that people whose God is the Lord:" Psalms 144:15

Who can make me happy? This is a question one often hears in these days of trouble and unrest. There is but one answer to this question and Christ is the answer. Men who have Christ, have happiness. To experience Christ in our lives is to make life's supreme discovery. That is the secret of our happiness, it is the secret of all true happiness.

Never was there a man of more devotional feeling than David, the author of the text. It was devotion of the deepest and the most intense kind. In secret he meditated upon God's law, and poured out his heart before Him. In his family the fear of God was cultivated and the worship of God celebrated. David knew what he was talking about when he said, "Happy is that people whose God is the Lord."

Happiness is universally desired. The fundamental principle of the Declaration of Independence is that which states that the one thing to which humanity is entitled is the pursuit of happiness. Men of all ranks and stations of life are earnestly seeking happiness. The great question that fills the air is, "Who can make me happy." To this one replies: seek it in bags of wealth, in the riches of the world; money is the answer. Another replies: You will find it in the avenues of pleasure, or in the soft luxurious walks of worldly enjoyment. What is the reply? The poor, deluded soul tries each of these remedies, and, instead of finding his anguish removed, the feverish excitement is increased and he is more dissatisfied and wretched than ever.

Let us turn and ask a true saint of God if he knows the answer to our question, and we hear the voice of David saying, "Religion, the offspring of Deity, the angel of mercy, and the friend of man, opens the true and only door to real intellectual bliss," and whispers the sentiment of the text, "Happy is that people whose God is the Lord."

So may we ever keep in mind that pleasure is only pleasure when it removes all that disturbs and allows the individual to forget some of the things which annoy.

Now, if we can get true happiness, we don't care whether it come by poverty or riches; whether in a mansion or a hut. Happiness is what the world wants and needs. In our seach for it, then, let us work upon the SOUL, remembering that happiness is utterly, or can be, independent of any outward circumstance. If we are satisfied that neither health, wealth, power, nor any other outward circumstance is necessary to happiness; that it is a thing that can flourish under any outward circumstances, just so the soul is set right, then Christ is ready to tell us how to attain it.

To be happy we must not allow our hearts to get entwined with the things of this world. We must put spiritual values above dollar values. The rich young ruler had become entangled until the only remedy which even Jesus could use was to separate him from his riches. We must cut any cord by which our hearts get bound to the things of this world, even if the operation becomes as severe as that proposed by Jesus to the rich young ruler.

Happiness is a thing that is to be sought by getting the soul right; by looking at things is proper perspective; by having explicit faith in God.

We need a religion today that will help us keep our spirit up; one that will give us reason to rejoice in the darkest hour. Christ can meet every need in our lives. In this hour of war may we turn to Him and walk with Him and talk with Him and trust no other for happiness.—Rev. W. O. Scruggs.

LOWRY.

Quite a quantity of pulp wood and railroad ties is being shipped from here, coming mostly from south of Lowry.

Thornton Whorley, who has been quite ill for some time, is now able to sit up in a rolling chair. Ten men neighbors met at his home on Friday of last week and performed a "good neighbor" act by putting in a supply of fuel wood for the late autumn and the winter to come.

Miss Mary Byrne joined her cousin, Mrs. Agnes Kerwin St.John, of Bristal, Tenn., on a trip to Roanoke, where they visited friends last Monday and uesday. Mrs. St.John called by the Byrne home on her return from Charlottesville and Lynchburg, where she spent a week visiting her nieces and other relatives and friends.

Mrs. Mary Beale Fleenor, the Misses Byrne, and J. H. Byrne motored to see Mr. Landon Lowry and family last Sunday afternoon at their home south of Bedford.

Jimmy Padgett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otho Padgett, who left for Norfolk a short time ago to be with his uncle there. He hs secured work at $3.50 a day, which is, we think, very good for a "teen-age" boy.

Mrs. Scott Poindexter, of near Goode, called at the Byrne home to see her friend, Mrs. Mary Fleenor, last Thursday. AU REVOIR.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas Almighty God in his Infinite Wisdom and mercy saw fit to remove by death our brother and friend, W. B. Andrews, who died October 23, 1940, and,

Whereas, although it grieves us to be separated from our highly esteemed brother and friend, we bow before the inscrubtable will of Almighty God.

First—Whereas, because of his long and distinguished service to his Lodge, and because of the high esteem and fraternal affection in which he was held by its members, it is appropriate that this Lodge should pay tribute to his memory and make the same a matter of record upon the minutes.

Second—Now therefore, be it resolved by Mentow Lodge No. 180, A. F. & A. M., that in the death of Brother Andrews the Lodge has lost a loyal and Worshipful Brother, and in his death we feel a great loss. His personality and his disposition won for him many friends in this Lodge, the community in which he lived, and Bethleham Baptist Church, of which he was a loyal and ever faithful member.

Third—Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Lodge, a copy to his surviving widow and a copy be published in the Bedford Bulletin.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, Almighty God saw fit to remove from our midst by death our brother and friend, Leo C. Newman, August 4, 1942, we do resolve to bow to His wisdom, and know that he doeth all things for the best.

First—Now therefore be it resolved by Mentow Lodge No. 180, A. F. & A. M., that in the death of Brother Newman the Lodge has lost a loyal member. And his presence shall be missed.

Second—He maintained an interest in its affairs.

Third—Be it resolved that our expression of love and sympathy be communicated to the step-mother of the deceased. And that a copy be spread upon the minutes of this Lodge and a copy be published in the Bedford Bulletin.

IT'S THE HUM of American men and machines at work—24 hours a day.

Free men and women—working hard and fast because they want to stay free.

Superb machines—turned by the world's greatest supply of electric power—pouring out weapons of war in thundering quantities.

Your people toil with bayonets at their backs—your machines are worn with years of war—your power production is far less than ours.

Sure, you got the jump on us, Adolf. But you can't win a mechanized war against the most highly mechanized nation on earth. Your system of state slavery can't compete with a way of life that respects the rights of individuals.

What have your folks got to fight for? Goebbels, Goering & Gang get all the gravy. Over here, men know they'll be rewarded for initiative.

That's a powerful incentive. It has helped all our great industries to grow. It has helped the electric industry, for example, to give folks about twice as much electricity for their money as they got 10 to 15 years ago. That's our system of practical business management under public regulation.

American business management is behind that electric hum, Adolf—that insistent hum that will rise and roll and beat upon your brain—until you hardly hear our bombers overhead!

It's the hum of fate, Adolf!

NEWS OF THE WEEK

"Toot—toot—toot—tooo o o t!" The "Victory horn toot"—three short blasts and a long one—has made its appearance in Bedford to help the war effort. Patriotic motorists are using the "V" horn blasts as a warning to less conscientious drivers exceeding the 35-mile-an-hour speed limit. The practice started spontaneously, and many a shame-faced speeder, hearing the familiar symbol of victory sounded, has lessened his speed.

Virginians gathered a total of 163,-249,182 pounds of scrap metal for the period beginning September 1 and ending October 31, according to information released this week by C. H. Luebbert, executive secretary of the WPB for Virginia. Luebbert also announced that 24 Virginia counties qualified for a WPB Victory Salvage Pennant by gathering 100 pounds or more scrap per capita during this two-months period. Counties that will fly the pennant are: Alleghany, Augusta, Chest ereld, Campbell, Culpeper, Dickenson, Dinwiddie, Elizabeth City, Essex, Fluvanna, Giles, Greensville, Henrico, Henry, Montgomery, Page, Pittsylvania, Powhatan, Prince George, Prince William, Roanoke, Warwick, Wise and Wythe.

If you don't like the way things are being run in this State, just take it up with the head man At least that's the way Governor Darden is finding things these days. The Governor has been aroused from his slumbers in the early hours of the morning on two recent occasions by persons appealing to the resident of the Executive Mansion for relief from their troubles. One call was received at 2:30 in the morning from a Sailor stranded in Richmond who was unable to get bus accommodations to Norfolk; while the second early-morning call was from a man in Norfolk protesting that he had been charged 22 cents for a sandwich. Although he could do nothing for them, the Governor stated that both callers seemed to be quite relieved after talking with him.

Cal lout the Waves! Call out the Waacs! Call out the Wasps, and every other armed service! Nylon hosiery was on sale for threehours in a Richmond department store one day last week and more than 1500 pairs of the filmy leg coverings were grabbed up by eager women buyers. Although there were no casualties reported, it was believed that many an eight and a half size wearer triuphantly left the store with a size 11 pair of hosiery. The women were quite ladylike in the scramble and all adhered to the belief "a sock on the foot was worth two in the mouth!"

Attention duck hunters! There are 22 million more (count'em) ducks headed this way from Canada, according to N. D. Hart, executive secretary of the State Game and Inland Fisheries Commission. And this is an increase over the amount that migrated to Southernstreams last season. The duck season, now on, will last until January 10 with a bag limit of 10 ducks per day. With the meat shortage. there should be a great many wild ducks on the festive boards in Virginia homes during the holiday season. That is—if your eye and trigger-finger are still in first class condition!

Growing pigs to help defeat the Axis pigs is the latest innovation in the War Bond selling campaign. G. C. Frazier, Spotsylvania County agent has started a Victory Pig Club and every farmer, 4-H Club Member, FFA member and all other growers of pigs have been urged to join. February 18 has been designated Victory Pig Market Day when the sale of Victory Pigs will be the special feature at livestock markets all over the Old Dominion. The pigs will be paid for in War Savings Bonds and Stamps.

A resolution calling on Governor Darden to use convict labor to alleviate the farm labor shortage was adopted by the Virginia State Grange in convention here last week. This is the second time that convict labor as the answer to the farm labor shortage has been suggested to the eGovernor. The first request was made by a committee of farmers from Northern Virginia.

BEAR TREES APIARIST

Harris H. Hall, elderly Issaquah, Wash., rancher, was surprised at how fast a man can climb a tree with honey on his shoes.

The honey, in his case, was the indirect cause of his sudden ascent. The direct cause was the black bear that seemingly had taken a liking to the sweet stuff.

Hall said he got the honey on his shoes while attending his apriary the previous day. As he hold the story, the first he suspected of the bear's presence was when it started licking at his heels as he was walking uphill to the apriary. He had thought it was his dog coming up behind him.

The honeyed shoes left the scene pronto—with Hall in them. He said he stayed up a maple tree for more than two hours before the bear finally got tired of waiting for the shoes to come down and ambled away.

PAGE DIOGONES!

A middle-aged woman walked into the office of a furniture store in Long Beach, Calif., in her hand the store's bankbook containing $300 in currency.

"I found this," she said, "on a store counter. I took it to a church, sat down in a pew and counted it. I prayed a little.

"I could use it, but it's yours. I have to live with myself."

The store manager, Jack MacFarland, gave her a $10 reward, but forgot to get her name.

TOO MUCH WALKING

Frankly, Cab Driver Robert Satterfield was astonished.

He was parked at a railway crossing in Duquoin, Illinois, waiting for a slow freight to pass.

As the caboose reached the crossing, the brakeman leaped off and jumped into Satterfield's car. Said the driver as he slammed the door:

"Where to?"

The brakeman replied:

"Catch that train."

As we said before Satterfield was astonished. Said he:

"You just got off that train."

The brakeman replied:

"Yes, but I got off the back end. It's too long a walk on top of that long string of box cars. Take me to the front end of the train."

The truth is the goal of intelligent individuals but the world is short of intelligent individuals.

...u dished it out, with a head start by treachery —now we're going to see how you can take it!

We're ganging up on you, Tojo, in a way you and your Nazi friends don't understand.

Spreading like wildfire from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico is our Payroll Savings Plan —get that, Tojo? Not confiscation—savings.

By the tens of millions, workers and employees of plants in every state of our country are cooperating with their unions and with management.

Of their own free will they're agreeing to put ten percent—a dime from every dollar—of their earnings in United States WAR BONDS.

Every payday the plant management sets aside this ten percent, then, each time it adds up to $18.75, the worker gets his Bond.

See, Tojo? Hundreds of millions of good U. S. dollars are going into the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships to blast you right out of your sandals!

And we're paying for it... the workers and employers . . . the farmers, doctors, lawyers . . . all of us of our own free will, lending it, from our pay.

And—because this is the American way of doing things—we're building our own financial security, too, against the day when the war will be over—when we've shown you what decent, clean, free people can do.

Every year those War Bonds of ours increase in value, Tojo, until, after ten years, Uncle Sam hands us back TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS for every $18.75 we invested in beating you.

Get it, Tojo? It isn't the Jap way, the Nazi way, nor the Fascist way.

It's the free American way!

So, when you see those clouds of planes over your troops, your ships and your factories—when the tanks come at you spitting lead—and our good American boys get you on the run—remember, we're paying for it—Smith, and Harrigan, and Cohen, and Godowsky, and Leblanc, and Havlek, Americans all, in a free country.

So take it, Tojo—you asked for it!

5 Reasons Why

1. By investing in War Bonds you help provide the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships we must have to survive and conquer.

2. You prove that you are a patriotic American.

3. You aid the morale of our fighting men, by showing them that the entire Nation is behind them.

4. You prove to our enemies that we are a United People.

5. You protect your own financial future, as every $18.75 you invest in a War Bond brings you back $25 in 10 years. You make the world's safest investment, by buying a share in the world's most powerful country.

WAR NEWS

tillery and naval gun fire.

However, only a fraction of the huge force dispatched by the Imperial Japanese command ever reached the southeastern Solomons, and it seemed a safe assumption that this battle had clinched the American dominance of that area.

Presumably, the enemy could gather another great force and try again, but with such staggering losses to count, it was thought unlikely that the Japs would care to risk what naval strength they have left in a new attempt to retake the strategic Guadalcanal area.

The battle of Jutland, an engagement in 1916 between the British and German grand fleets, assured Allied supremacy of the seas in World War 1. The Solomons battle, while not, of course, giving the U. S. dominance of the whole Pacific area, appears likely to hasten the day when that goal will be reached.

Even the death of Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, beloved "Uncle Dan" to many a Navy man and former Naval aid to President Roosevelt, in the furious close range night engagement which opened the three-day battle in the early morning of November 13th, could not dampen the elation with which naval officers announced the victory.

In a lengthy communique, the navy described the various actions in which the American forces had sunk a Japanese battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers and eight transports, the four beached cargo ships, and damaged a battleship and six destroyers.

Preparations for a major attempt by the Japanese to recapture the southeastern Solomons became evident early this month, the Navy reported, when American airmen reported a heavy concentration of of transports and warships of the enemy fleet in New Britain and the northwest Solomons.

The huge expedition got under way the morning of November 10, with Japanese naval forces approaching Guadalcanal from the north, while other detachments, including large numbers of transports, moved southeastward toward the American positions from Rabaul and Buin, where the enemy had been assembling his expeditionary farces.

The Navy credited the Army bombers of General MacArthur's command with supplying "great assistance" in the early phases of the looming fight, by making repeated successful attacks on the invasion fleet at Rabaul and Buin, as reported in communiques frsm Australia. MacArthur's aircraft also gave valuable aid after the naval ction developed.

The punishment delt out to the enemy fleet in this battle brougnt his losses in the Solomons alone, as reported by the Navy, to 35 ships sunk, five others probably sunk and 71 damaged, or 111 vessels of all types sunk or damaged.

Against this, the United States has reported the loss of 24 ships sunk ,including two aircraft carriers and three cruisers, and at least five damaged. In addition, the Australian cruisers Canberra was sunk while operating as part of the naval force covering the initial American landings in the Solomons. in August.

In addition to the losses suffered in this engagement, the Japs, the Navy department reports, have lost in recent days seven more ships through the action of American submarines, and General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia, under date of November 13, reports American bombers had scored direct hits on four heavily laden troops ships at a Jap base in the northern Solomons. The raiders reached their targets at dawn and found the four ships in harbor, apparently a part of the convoy descending upon Guadalcanal.

While the great naval battle was in progress Tokyo began sending out fantastic claims about huge American losses, but before the broadcast ended it developed that the battle of October 26," in which the U. S. lost one aircraft carrier and one destroyer, was being described according to the Japanese version. Later Tokyo laid claim to victory in the last fight and sent out even more fantastic reports about American losses. But no mention was made that the Jap fleet quit the fight and fled northward, something very unusual for the victor to do in such cases.

General MacArthur has gone to New Guinea and is personally directing the campaign against the Japanese there. The enemy is being driven back on his main base on the north coast by American and Australian troops, attacking from two directions. The Allies are attempting to chase the Japs off this huge island and are now only about 25 miles from his main base. New Guinea is the closest point to Australia reached by the Japanese in their southward surge.

As things are shaping up now, the main battle for possession of the north African coast will be fought in Tunisia and is now getting under way. Tunisia is a French protectorate lying between French Algeria and the Italian colonies. Even before French resistance ceased, a combined British and American force was moving eastward and the first units entered Tunisia Sunday. This colony became the strategic point in the struggle when the American army began landing, and the Germans and Italians immediately moved to secure and hold it. Huge transport planes began shuttling back and forth between Italy and Tunisia and probably Axis troops stationed in Tripoli also were rushed in to head off if possible the British-American expeditionary force. These Axis troops met with some resistance from the French garrison, but apparently are holding the chief port and nearby territory, and it is reported that Marshal Rommel has already reached Tunisia and is directing the measure for defense. Big Allied bombing and transport planes have been dropping paratroops in Tunisia for the past several days, far in advance of the land forces, for the purpose of seizing air bases and strategic points.

What force the Axis have in Tunisia is, of course, unknown, but it is believed that it cannot be very large, though it is admitted that reinforcements are arriving by sea and air. What is left of the defeated army which fled out of Egype is still a factor that cannot be ignored, and it can be taken for granted that the German high command will make a desperate effort to retain this foothold in Africa and if they succeed much of the Allied plan will be nullified, as victory there cannot be complete so long as the Axis hold any ground on the continent.

Whatever force the enemy can muster must face two ways—east to meet the British chasing Rommel from Egypt and west to meet the British and Americans coming from Algeria. This latter force, having made satisfactory terms with the French, has nothing to fear from its rear and almost the complete strength of the invading army can be thrown into the struggle. In Washington and London there appears to be no doubt about the final outcome.

In Russia the Germans are still trying to press their offensive in Stalingrad and the Caucasus, but Moscow reports that the attacks are steadily diminishing in force and that no ground is being gained by the enemy. Winter is settling upon the huge country and even as far south as Stalingrad the mighty Volga river is freezing over and soon snow and blizzards will be the rule rather than the exception. The Red army promises the Germans in Russia an even harder winter than they suffered last year. The Germans are reported to be moving many divisions from Russia to the Balkans, principally to Greece, and it is conjectured that they may be planning for a campaign through Turkey against the British in the Near East.

Under date of the 16th, a dispatch from Chungking, capital of China, tells of the defeat of a strong Japanese force which attempted the conquest of an extensive region in Shantung province. An enemy army of 40,000 tried to overrun a section in the foothills of the Yi Mountains, but were beaten off after losing 5,000 in killed and wounded.

REGISTRATION OF INSTITUTIONAL USERS FOR COFFEE RATIONING

An institutional coffee user should register at his local board on one of the following days: Monday, November 23; Tuesday, November 24; or Wednesday, November 25.

An institutional user must register at the same local board where his sugar registration is filed. He must include the same establishments in his registering unit for coffee as are now included in his registering unit for sugar.

An institutional user who has not registered for sugar must, nevertheless, register for coffee at the board having jurisdiction over his principal business office. A list of the establishments included in the registering unit must be attached.

The first allotment will cover the period from the date of registration through January 31, 1943, and application for the allotment certificate for the first period should be made at the time of registration. All subsequent applications for allotment certificates shall be for consecutive two-month periods, the first of which shall commence on February 1, 1943. Applications for subsequent allotment certificates may be made not later than the fifth day of the first month for which application is being made and not earlier than the fifteenth day of the month preceding the period. Instructions regarding the amount of subsequent allotments will be issued at a later date. Beginning with the effective date of this order, no institutional user will be permitted to purchase coffee unless he has registered. All purchases by an institutional user will be made by surrendering coffee purchase certificates obtained from his local board in accordance with ration order No. 12. A board may issue to him any reasonable number of certificates having a total weight value not in excess of the amount of his allotment.

Determining Coffee Base

The initial inventory of an institutional registering unit, which must be reported at the time of registration, is the amount of coffee in the possession of the registering unit to which the owner of the registering unit has title. the owner of the registering unit is deemed to have title to coffee: (1) in transit or stored for delivery to him, (2) which has been used by him as security in a credit transaction, or (3) which is in the possession of his vendor if the coffee has been paid for and earmarked for delivery to him. The owner of the registering unit can allocate coffee not in the possession of any of his registering units among those of his registering units as he selects.

In determining the amount of the initial inventory the weight of all substances and substitutes, such as cereal, chick-pea, and chicory mixed with such coffee by the registering unit shall be deducted from the weight of such mixture.

In determining the usage of coffee during the base period, the weight of all substances and substitutes, such as cereal, chick-pea, and chicory mixed by the registering unit must be deducted from the weight of the total mixture used.

Computing Coffee Base

The base of a registering unit composed of one or more establishments, all of which were in operation during the entire months of September and October 1942, shall be the amount of coffee which the registering unit used in the preparation of beverages during these two months.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Matilda J. Johnson

Mrs. Matilda Jeter Johnson, 99, died Wednesday night of last week at her home in Roanoke. A native of Bedford county, she was the daughter of Fielding H. and Virginia White Jeter and had many connections in this county. Her closest relatives in Bedford are two nieces, Mrs. J. T. Davidson, Sr., and Mrs. G. P. Parker.

Mrs. Johnson was born on October 20, 1843 and was 21 years old when the War Between the States ended. She was married to W. Robert Johnson in 1867, and lived in the Chamblissburg neighborhood until 1912 when a fire destroyed their home and they moved to Roanoke. Mr. Johnson died in 1925. Mrs. Johnson was believed to be Roanoke's oldest resident. She was a member of Trinity Methodist church in Roanoke.

Surviving are five grandchildren, six great grandchildren and the following three daughters and three sons: Miss Nora Johnson, Miss Laura Johnson and Frank Johnson, Roanoke; Mrs. J. F. Thaxton, Tye River; J. R. Johnson, McPherson, Kansas, and T. J. Johnson, Norfolk.

Funeral services were held at the residence on Friday by the Rev. J. T. Allen and Dr. Walter Binns. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery. The following were active pallbearers: William R. Johnson, R. Virgil Johnson, Gilbert Johnson, Sam W. Johnson, J. T. Wood and W. E. Goggin.

Seal Sale Campaign

States and the District of Columbia in the number of tuberculous deaths in 1941, Dr. Johns declared that this condition challenges every resource of the public health authoriities and volunteer forces engaged in fighting the disease. These volunteer forces, represented by the Virginia Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated city and county committees and associations, are entirely dependent upon the income produced by Christmas Seals each year to carry on their program.

The War Conference of the American Hospital Association warned recently that war-time changes in living and working conditions presented a new tuberculosis threat to America, describing tuberculosis as "a major product of war."

The other day, Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon-general of the United States Public Health Service, told a Senate Labor Subcommittee in Washington, that an increase in tuberculosis is to be expected in wartime, and announced that the increase had already made its appearance.

Only by continued and renewed vigilance, said Dr. Johns, made possible by money received from Christmas Seals, may Virginia hope to halt the steady march of war-time tuberculosis. Money received from Christmas Seals will provide protective armor against Tuberculosis.

"American Patriot"—

Evans of the United States Manpower Commission said "women in industry have not been handicapped by their lack of technical training, but have more than held their own in competition with men of equal aptitude and intelligence."

Official executors of the General Electric Companies, say that "women make up one-fourth of their employees," and further added, that "besides employing thousands of additional women in light assembly jobs, more are being trained in jobs hitherto reserved for men." It would therefore seem, that what women are doing now, and are prepared to do in stepping up the production of war materials, may foreshadow the part many are destined to play in industry after the war.

Quoting Dr. Nichols McMurry Butler, as to what the aftermath of the war will be, she said: "It is quite plain that the world which will follow upon victory will be a truly new world of order. Neither the social nor the economic systems as they have so long existed can remain unchanged."

The speaker further stated that through the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution of the United States, and in the name of humanity, she stressed the principles of liberty, justice and democracy upon which, must be established the world of the future. Our hope is for a peace essentially christian, for only thus will it be human in the fullest sense.

In conclusion she pointed out that even more than war itself is the aftermath to be feared, and if our sacrifice in the holocaust of global war is to yield what the peoples of the Allied Nations are fighting for, there can be no finer contribution to their moral and spiritual powers than the conscientious thought of our people which will serve to implement the terms of the Atlantic Charter.

A desert course was served by the hostesses at the close of the meeting.

MEMORIAL

In loving memory of our sister Myrtle Mitchell, who was killed in a wreck a year ago, November 20, 1941:

One sad year has passed, dear Myrtle,
Since you left this world of care;
Up in Heaven I know you are happy
Though I miss your face so fair.

I only have your precious memory
To remember your whole life through,
But the sweetness will last forever,
To strenghten and carry me through.

Just when your life was brightest,
Just when your years were best,
You were called from this sad world,
To a home of eternal rest.

Sad and sudden, the shock severe,
We never thought your death so near;
To think you could not say good bye,
To your baby that you loved so dear.

Farewell, dear little Myrtle,
Until we meet in that land above
Where there will be no wrecks or sorrow,
And all will be joy and love.

Sister, Verna Harrington.

MARRIAGES

Grogan—Atkins

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Atkins of New Castle announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Marie, of Vinton, to Otis Bringle Grogan, son of Mrs. Ella Grogan, of Leaksville, N. C.

The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of Peter's Creek Church of the Brethren, Tuesday, October 27, by the Rev. J .S. Showalter.

Mrs. Grogan is the sister of Mrs. Warren Thurman and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nofsinger and has lived for some time in Vinton.

Spradlin—Dearing

Mrs. G. K. Lemon, of Vinton, announces the marriage of her daughter, Marion Dearing, to George P. Spradlin, son of Mrs. Mae Spradlin, also of Vinton.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. W. Wood, pastor of the Oakland Baptist church on Saturday, November 14 at the parsonage.

The bride wore an outfit of ice blue wool with brown accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Spradlin will make their home in Roanoke.

Morgan—Miller

Miss Rachel Rebecca Morgan and Hershel Alfred Morgan, Jr., both of Route 5, Bedford, were married last Saturday, Dr. J. H. Grey performing the ceremony at the Manse.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer R. Miller and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Morgan.

Brown—Tolley

Miss Gladys Dorothy Tolley and Donald Melvin Brown, both of Big Island, were united in marriage in Bedford by Rev. Robert P. Parker at the Bedford Methodist church.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reeves McKinley Lacy and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Overstreet.

Overstreet—Lacy

Miss Mary Julia Lacy and Woodrow Overstreet were united in marriage on Saturday evening, November 14, the ceremony being performed by ford, November 11. The ceremony was performed by Dr. J. H. Grey, of the Presbyterian church, at his residence on Westview avenue, Bedford.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Tolley and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleland K. Brown.

Wood—Coffey

Miss Elsie Joyce Coffey and Dallas Guy Wood were quietly married at the Baptist parsonage in Altavista on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. R. L. Camden being the officiating minister.

Mrs. Wood is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Coffey, of Evington, and is held in high esteem in her home community. Mr. Wood is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Wood, of Huddleston, Route 2, well known and respected by every one.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood spent the night in Altavista; next day (Sunday) drove to the home of the groom's parents, where a reception awaited them attended by a host of relatives and friends and a regular old time country wedding dinner. The menu consisted of everything good to eat which goes to make up a real wedding dinner. The wedding cake was baked by Mrs. G. G. Womack, a cousin of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Wood received many useful presents.

Mrs. Wood works at the Altavista Rayon Mills, while Mr. Wood is engaged at the Lane Company.

Those present for this happy occasion were Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Wood and son, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Wood and daughter, of Route 2, Huddleston; Herbert Wood, of Route 1, Evington; Mr. and Mrs. Terry Wood and two daughters, of Route 1, Forest; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walton, Lynchburg; Mrs. James B. Spivey, Commanding Officer of the southwest Florida [illegible] gunnery school. Sergeant Fariss has just completed an intensive five week's course of instruction in the operation of the large guns that arm American planes against enemy attack. The course of instruction consisted, in part, of training in aircrat identification and recognition, a close study of the mechanism of the .30 and .50 caliber machine guns, instruction in methods of estimating the speed and distance of a plane, rifle and machine gun practice on ground ranges, training in the operation of modern and complex power turret operated guns, and finally, practice firing from a plane at a target towed behind another plane.

NOT LOSING THE WAR

Doubtless a great many Americans became troubled in their minds when Melvin J. Mass, Republican Congressman from Minnesota, declared in an address in Richmond on Armistice Day that the United States is "losing the war in the Pacific." The uneasiness caused by this statement did not arise from the fact that the speaker is a member of Congress, but because he is also a colonel in the Marine Corps and has just returned from four months of active duty in the Solomons. Ordinarily this latter fact would give a great deal of credence to anything he might say, but apparently Representative and Colonel Mass is one of those peculiar people who can see only gloom in any situation unless everything connected therewith has an extremely brilliant hue, unmarred by even the shadow of a cloud.

If he had said that up to the landing of the Marines in the Solomons Japan had been winning the war he would have been well within the truth, would have been on solid ground, but conditions generally prevailing since that time do not in any sense justify his conclusion that American IS losing the war in the Pacific. True, there have been times since early in August, when the Marines made their first landings in the southern Solomons, when the situation was fraught with danger, when reasons existed for the fear felt in this country that we might not be able to hold what we had taken. Japan, of course, is not reconciled to the loss of this outpost of her southern invasion and has only followed the expected course in trying to drive the American forces out. Two major and many minor attempts have been made to do this, and the very fact that all of them have signally failed is almost complete refutation of Mass' pessimistic outlook. The enemy has succeeded in landing more troops on the chief island, Guadalcanal, but has never been able to muster sufficient strength to take ground held by the Americans, and his two principal attempts to land in force have been disastrously defeated. The latest of these major assaults of the enemy was made over the past week-end and his losses were so heavy that they would probably discourage any other military command except that of the Japanese. The American victory was so complete and overwhelming that even the gloomy Colonel Mass emitted a few cheerful words, though he seems to remain unconvinced that the Pacific situation in general is much improved.

In this latest attempt to retake the Solomons the enemy came down from the north in such force that American airmen who detected their approach said the warships, transports and supply ships extended so far that the whole could not be taken in from the air. That sounded ominous, especially in view of the Mass statement, but in a sea battle starting in the early hours of Friday morning and continuing through Monday night, the enemy lost at least twenty-three ships and in the neighborhood of 40,000 men, as eight heavily loaded transports were among the ships sent to the bottom. Following this defeat, the Jap fleet retired from the fight, but probably in a month or so they will try again.

We do not share the gloom of Colonel Mass because from the day the Americans took the offensive by launching the attack against the Solomons, the Japs have been defeated in every major engagement, whether on land or sea and in the air. For instance, just preceding the naval engagement, thirty-one Jap planes attacked Guadalcanal and thirty of them were shot down, and in the same engagement thirty enemy landing boats were smashed by our forces on the island. The whole trend of the fighting strongly evidences American superiority, both in men and fighting tools, and every Japanese attack further réduces their striking power in all branches of warfare, and in this war of attrition there can be only one winner, and that is America. We have suffered losses, of course, but wars cannot be fought without losses, and so long as ours are less than those of the enemy and we continue to hold all gains made, we are winning the war, Colonel Mass and other pessimists to the contrary notwithstanding.

WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS

The Tax bill passed by Congress and approved by the President a few weeks ago was the most drastic this country has ever known. Millions of people who never before paid a dime in direct taxes to the Federal government must dig down in their pockets in March, many of them for quite large amounts. These facts were carried in the papers of the country during consideration of the measure and when it was finally adopted, but as yet it has not soaked into the heads of the American people just what this tax law is going to do to their pocketbooks, and March 15th is going to catch literally millions of taxpayers unprepared.

A poll taken by the American Institute of Public Opinion discloses that more than fifty per cent of the people either don't know whether they will have to pay any tax at all or have no idea about how much they will have to pay. Being ignorant on these points, they naturally are making no preparations to meet the tax bill when it falls due the middle of March, and a lot of them are in for a rude awakening. Of those interviewed, 51 per cent did not know whether they would have to pay any tax, and 23 per cent hadn't inquired into how much they would have to pay, all of which displays an ignorance which may be blissful now, but may prove rather painful later on.

Everyone, whether married or single, who earns more than $700 during the present calendar year, must pay something into the Federal treasury, and single persons earning more than $50.00 a month must pay a tax on all over that amount. The new tax bill affects single person without dependents in the following way: Income of $600 per year, tax $5.20; income of $700, tax $23.77; Income of $800, tax $44.68; income of $900, tax $64.39; income of $1,000, tax $84.70; income of $1,100, tax $105.01; income of $1,200, tax $125.32. Married people without dependents pay at a lesser rate, but must pay something on all they earn over $700 a year, though the amount of their tax on an income of $1,200 is only $17.28. Married persons with two dependents pay a slightly smaller percentage of their earnings, but they too must pay something on everything above $700, their tax on an income of $1,200 being $16.13. Of course, the more you earn the larger the per cent the government will take, and no one will be allowed a net income exceeding $25,000 a year. This last provision means that the President of the United States must turn back two-thirds of his salary.

It appears to us that all the thousands of new taxpayers will do well to inquire now into how much tax will be required of them in March and start saving at once to meet the obligation. Anyone can easily figure their individual tax if they will take the trouble to find out the exemption to which they are entitled, as the tax will be approximately twenty-five cents on every dollar over and above their legal exemption.

HERR HITLER HAS FEARS

A few days after the Americans landed in North Africa, Adolph Hitler, dictator of Germany and at present master of most of Europe, made a speech in the Munich beer hall where his political career was launched, abortively, in 1923. Herr Hitler, quite naturally, tried to reassure the German people. Things have not been going so well for the German cause this year, and this particular oration was unfortunately scheduled for a date when news was its worst since the war started. Rommel had just been disasterously defeated in Egypt, the Americans had landed and taken over most of French North Africa, and German armies had registered no advances in Russia for weeks. Mighty hard for a dictator, even with all sources of news under complete control, to give a very cheering account of the way things are going under such conditions.

Hitler, in the course of his attempt to keep high the home front morale, unwittingly gave word of another Allied victory. He, without so intending, disclosed that defeat already occupies his thoughts. In his beer hall talk he said much about counter strokes, an admission in itself that German armies are now largely on the defensive. And then he tried to get over to his people that all is well, that in his mind there is no thought of defeat, and to impress upon them the idea that he was not harboring any thought or fear of losing the war, he assured them that he would not run away as the Kaiser did in 1918 when German defenses began to crumble. Why mention Kaiser Bill and his ignoble action in fleeing Germany when defeat stared him in the face if his own mind was free of any misgivings about final victory for German arms? The mere fact that he mentioned at all the flight of the Kaiser in the closing day of the first world war is pretty conclusive evidence that Hitler's thoughts are turning upon what course he will follow under similar circumstances, and these thoughts could arise only from a growing conviction that ultimately he must face the same situation.

Up to the present Hitler has been supremely confident of victory, but events of 1942, and especially the happenings of the past few weeks, have created a doubt. He is now no longer certain that the United Nations will lose, and because he knows it would be fatal should the German people learn that his mind is being haunted by misgivings, he tries, as many foolish men before him have done, to keep the courage of his followers up by denying that his own is going down. The man who feels no fear never, under any circumstances, boasts of his fearlessness. The handwriting on the wall is becoming discernible to Herr Hitler, and he lets the world, and the German people, know this by denying that the writing is there.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

PRELIMINARY REPORT ON INDUSTRIAL X-RAY SERVICE

The State Department of Health through its Bureau of Industrial Hygiene and its Tuberculosis Out-Patient Service, since July 1941, has been operating a portable 35 mm, photo-fluorographic chest x-ray unit for use primarily in industry throughout the State. Since this unit has been in operation, approximately 45,000 chest x-rays have been taken in 61 industrial plants. Preliminary tabulations have been made on approximately 30,000 of these x-rays. The results show that 0.97 per cent of those x-rayed had active tuberculosis, 0.91 per cent of which was secondary and 0.06 per cent primary; 0.52 per cent of the total number of workers had secondary tuberculosis which has healed, and 1.65 per cent primary healed; and 0.44 per cent of the total number was classified as suspicious for tuberculosis. In addition, the results show 0.25 per cent having other chest conditions which include such conditions as bronchitis, pleurisy, lung tumor, enlarged heart, bony abnormality, foreign body, and enlarged aorta. The total of all pathololgy was 6.1 per cent of the entire group of approximately 30,000.

The photo-fluorographic unit is maintained primarily as a screen for determining whether or not pathology exists, eliminating from further consideration persons whose chest pictures present no pathology and referring to the industrial physician, the private physician or the local health officer for further consideration those cases which do show pathology.

It is worthy of note that all of the cases of active tuberculosis, which have been uncovered through this service, have or are in the process of being referred for proper treatment either in one of the sanatoria or at home when home conditions will allow.

This service has been received enthusiastically by industry in general. It is expected that approximately 50,000 workers will be x-rayed each year for the next five years and that by the time this fairly complete coverage of the industrial population has been made, there will be re-x-rays at many of the plants to determine the progress in conditions and treatment.

At the present time, the service is offered primarily to industries working on war contracts in an effort to keep the war workers as healthy as possible so that stepped-up production can be maintained. The service is part of the industrial health program which views industrial hygiene as adult public health in industry.—"Health Bulletin"—Virginia Department of Health.

NO WAR WITH FRANCE

We are not at war with France. We shall not be. Vichy could no more commit us to such a war than could the French Directory in 1798. Some shots were fired then. Some shots are being fired now. The peace between the peoples remains unbroken, as it has been since the establishment of the two Republics.

What Hitler said falsely to the Norwegians we say, through our President, in sober truth, to the French of North Africa, and to the French of Metropolitan France as well. We have no system to force upon them. We want no inch of territory. We have but one objective: to drive the Axis forces out of French North Africa, ultimately to drive them out of France, to push the war against them into their own capitals, to smash them and set Europe free.

We are not at war with France. We are at war for France. War with Pierre Laval, or with any one who obeys his orders, or with the man in Berlin from whom he takes his orders, is not war with France.—New York Times.

WORKERS' REWARD

The outlook in Africa is as good as our supply lines are safe and our planes are numerous. We have the men: we must get them there and feed and support them after they arrive. In the type of warfare they are conducting, where distances are vast, superiority in the air is indispensable. We have the pilots: we must see that they have the planes. This brings the matter home to every American. If he has done his part to assure the speedy building of ships and planes and the manufacture of essential munitions and food, he has contributed to victory. Has he to admit that he has done less than he knew how to do? Then he has helped to cripple our own boys.—News Leader.

FASHION NOTE, 1942

In view of some of the appallingly strange devices which the ladies but lately attached to odd sections of their coiffures, calling them hats, it ill becomes anyone to point the finger of doubt at the cap, which by solemn army decree, is part of the WAAC ensemble. Had Greek Helen donned such headgear proud Troy might yet be rearing its towers to the sun. However, time sets all things right. Let the WAAC be of good cheer and recall that the times call for sacrifice.—New Orleans Item.

LOGICAL AS ANY

A Cincinnatian declares the war will be over in four months, basing the prediction upon the fact that his brother-in-law had been inducted into military eservice. "He never held a job over four months in his life." The reasoning may not be sound but the prediction is as good as many others that are freely made. Fact is, the war will end when it ends and not even the angels in heaven kown when that will be.—Rockville Republican.

MAY USE ROOSTERS FOR ALARM CLOCKS

Added to the inunmerable peculiar occupations that the war has brought into being may be added that of neighborhood waker-upper, for there are hardly any alarm clocks left.

This hardy perennial of the clock and watch trade is well-nigh unobtainable on hardly any stores, in cluding jewelry stores and drugstores.

The best piece of advice as to how to proceed in the present emergency was uttered by the head clock man at a prominent jewelry store.

"Get a rooster," he said.

There haven't been any alarm clocks made for eight or nine months, and not many other kinds of clocks, either, for the clock works have been turned into defense plants, and innumerable expert horologers have gone into the armed forces, where they have been snapped up eagerly by the ordnance department.

Dusting off the old sundial, cleaning up the hourglass and starting the grandfather clock going after lugging it down from the attic won't do much good, for none of these devices ring a bell. Plenty of electric clocks are—or were—equipped with alarm devices, but try and get 'em—they're getting scarce, too. As for the gold nickel-plated number that used to sell for around 98 cents, there aren't more than half a dozen left in town.

"They haven't been making those nickel-plated clocks for five or six years anyway," said the same man who advocated roosters as an aid to would-be early risers. "They've been making them of bakelite."

There has been a frantic demand for alarm clocks, too. War workers who want to be at their defense plants on time sometimes have to get going at the crack of dawn, but when they go shopping for an alarm clock all they get from the salesman is a hollow laugh and a wan smile.

"We have had just 12 alarm clocks from the manufacturers in the last 10 months," said a saleswoman at a store that normally would have hundreds of Big Bens and Little Bens, morning chimes and what not in stock.

It's hard to get repairs made on an alarm clock, too. If an alarm clock's insides get out of order, it's a practiacly impossibe vase, for repair parts are as hard to get as a pound of your favorite coffee. If the mainspring of an alarm clock breaks, the grieving owner might as well take it out in the back yard and bury it with appropriate ceremonies, for it will be a long time before he can get a repair man to put in another mainspring, if at all, and by that time he will have been so late so often it won't make any difference.

It looks as if the only thing was the neighborhood waker-upper, who will make the rounds, pounding on doors and rattling windows, or maybe even pulling strings attached to toes.

Which brings up the question: How will the waker-upper himself get up in time if he doesn't have an alarm clock and can't get one?

Maybe would-be punctual workers can make some sort of a deal with an army camp, where they've just installed a mechanical bugler. This fascinating device plays recorded bugle calls, including the always popular reveille, and plays them right on the dot, too. Everybody says it works fine.

"HAPPY THANKSGIVING"

My Marjorie Shuler.

Private Ted Johnson went through his home town on a recent Sunday enroute from his training camp to an embarkation point. "Meet me at the train, Mother," he wired, "We can have five minutes together."

Just five minutes for a teacher-mother who has earned her own living and that of her son ever since he was five years old. Just five minutes for a son who has had to leave the mother he adored and go off to be a private in his Uncle Sam's army.

Mrs. Johnson went to the train, steeling herself every step of the way. No tears, she reminded herself. You owe him that. You msut do it. The station was full of women, many of them weeping. On one side of Mrs. Johnson a very young lady was telling anyone who listened that she just hated this war — that half her dates had already left for the front and the others were restless to be off.

Just then Mrs. Johnson caught sight of Ted dashing toward her, not with open arms for a last embrace, but carrying a huge bundle of clothes sketchilly wrapped in a soiled bath towel.

"Here, Mom, get these washed and send 'em along, will you?" he sang out, thrusting the bundle toward her. She laughed and so did he. They were both laughing when he boarded the train, one ray of sunshine in a station full of gloom and mourning.

"It was exactly as I wanted it," said Mrs. Johnson, afterward. "It is Ted's right to know that I am carrying on. He has the hard part. He is going out to face hardships and danger. He has the right to carry away a picture of his home as he has alwys known it, serene, calm an osis in this mad world. Other things may change, but it will be there waiting for him to come back to."

First thing in the morning, a glassful of vitamin rich tomato juice for breakfast.

Vitamin C

Tomato juice boasts generous amounts of vitamins A and B and really stars with vitamin C.

So don't be stingy with the morning tomato juice. Keep cans in the refrigerator overnight to chill it well. Then pour a tall glassful for every member of the family thereby insuring the day's quota of precious vitamin C for each and every one.

Down through the day, too, tomato juice is a cool refresher and reviver. For a between meal snack try it this way:

Tomato Juice-Buttermilk Cocktail

1 pint buttermilk
1 can (14 oz.) tomato juice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery salt

Pour the tomato juice into the buttermilk; then add salt and celery salt and chill thoroughly. Sprinkle each serving with celery salt. Makes approximately 1 quart.

And for late afternoon, or for dinner, it's delicious fixed like this:

Spiced Tomato-Ade

3 cups tomato juice
½ lemon, sliced
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground cinnamon
3 whole cloves
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Combine tomato juice, sliced lemon, sugar, salt, ground cinnamon and cloves and heat slowly to boiling. Let stand ten minutes, then strain and chill. Add the lemon juice just before serving. Makes 26 ounces.

Cream Tomato Cocktail

½ cup evaporated milk
½ cup chipped ice
¼ teaspoonful celery salt
¼ tablespoonful table salt
Dash of black pepper

Pour tomato juice into milk and stir vigorously. Add the ice and seasoning. Serve in chilled glasses.

Cushion Style Lamb Shoulder

Have a cushion style shoulder of lamb prepared by your meat retailer. This cut is made by removing bones from the lamb shoulder, leaving a good-sized pocket for the dressing. Season inside and out with salt and pepper. Fill loosely with celery dressing. Sew or skewer the opening. Place on a rack in an uncovered pan, fat side up, and roast, without water, in a moderate oven (300 degrees F.) allowing twenty-five to thirty minutes to the pound.

Celery Dressing

1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon parsley
1 tablespoon butter
2½ cups bread crumbs
¼ teaspoon marjoram
¼ teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon salt
Water or Soup Stock

Cook celery, onion, and parsley in butter for a few minutes. Add other ingredients and enough water or soup stock to make a slightly moist dressing.

Dinner Menu

Tomato Juice of Jellied Boullion with Chives
Toasted Crackers
Deviled Eggs
Lettuce and Tomato Sandwiches
Sliced Peaches
Cookies
Iced Beverage

Deviled Eggs

6 shelled hard-cooked eggs
4 tbsp. mayonnaise
¼ tsp. salt, speck pepper
2 tsp. prepared mustard
1 tsp. minced onion
Lemon juice

Cut shelled eggs in halves, lengthwise, or crosswise. Carefully remove yolks and lay whites aside in pairs. Mash yolks, then add remaining ingredients. Refill whites with this mixture. Garnish each egg as follows: Thinly slice dill pickle and on each slice place about three little pices or slices of ripe olive, some pimiento and some rice. Make in flower shape using the pimiento and olives as the leaves and the rice as a center. Place garnish on each of the deviled eggs. Use parsley or watercress as a garnish to surround the platter on which eggs are placed.

Juicy Steak

There's no surpassing the appeal of a good juicy steak. A steak cut thick and cooked properly will be more flavorful and juicy and at the same time serve as many people as the same amount of meat in smaller steaks.

Steaks for Any Size Family

Whether for two, four, or six, there are steaks which will be the right size to serve. For the large family, sirloin steaks from the loin and perhaps will be the best choice. T-bone and porterhouse from the shortloin will also serve the average family generously. For the smaller family club steaks are a wise selection. When cut thick a club steak will serve two. Club steaks also make very attractive individual servings.

Modern Broiling

Broiling according to modern methods is so easy that most members of the family can do it.

A low temperature is the important factor in broiling a steak if a juicy, uniformly broiled steak is the product desired. The steak will be deliciously browned on the surface and a delicate pink color of the interior.

Place the steak on the broiler rack in the broiler so the top surface of the steak is three inches from the source of heat for two-inch steaks and two inches from the source of heat for steaks one-inch thick or less. With the regulator on the range set for broiling and the steaks set at these distances from the source of heat, the temperature at the surface of the steak will be approximately 350 degrees F. which is a moderate temperature.

Regulate Temperature

If the broiler of the oven is not constructed so as to permit the recommended distance between the top surface of the meat and the source of heat then the temperature control should be regulated accordingly.

A broiled steak requires only one turning. When the upper surface is nicely browned, season and turn. It is wise to turn a steak by inserting the fork in the fat. Broil until this side is brown and the steak is ready to be served. Allow thirty-five minutes for the broiling period of a medium-done steak about one and one-half inches thick. Allow forty-five minutes for a two-inch steak. If steaks cooked to the rare stage are desired the broiling time can be decreased five minutes.

Economy Meats

The homemaker proves her knowledge of economy by the food she selects. She is anxious to serve meals for her family that supply all of the nutrients necessary for buoyant health and, at the same time, keep within her budget. Many women go even a step farther and plan their meals so they are time and labor saving as well. Because we plan our meals around meat, the less-demanded or economy cuts may be served often to keep our food budgets in line.

Ground meats are the basis of many pleasing dishes which are easy to prepare as well as nourrishing for the body. They are economical because they are all meat and they are easy to cook, as the grinding makes the meat tender. Ground meat—beef, lamb, veal or pork can be roasted in a loaf or cooked quickly in frying-pan or broiler. In either case the nutritive value of ground meat is just as high as the cut from which it was made.

As a minute saver this recipe for a main dish, called Spaghetti Hamburg, is an answer to the home-maker's time problem in the preparation of a meal.

Spaghetti Hamburg

1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons lard
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons grated onion
1 small can broken mushrooms
2 No. 2 cans prepared spaghetti

Cook meat in melted lard until crumbly and brown but not hard. Add seasonings and mushrooms. Fold in the spaghetti and heat until the flavors are blended. Garnish with buttered sliced carrots.

Served with whole wheat bread, butter, milk, and fruit cup for dessert you'll have a meal welcomed by the entire family, and it's labor-saving too, because no one will deny the fact that there are fewer dishes to be washed.

Roasted Stuffed Frankfurters

Slit the frankfruters, place a piece of cheese, ¼ inch thick and the length of the frankfurters, between the cut edges. Wrap with bacon. These can either be broiled by the hostess and served hot or prepared ready for cooking and cooked by party guests.

It's fun to roast the frankfurters over a bed of coals in the fireplace or around the open bonfire. Either way they'll be delicious to eat. Served with cider and doughnuts they make a hearty menu.

Cooking Hint

Two or three slices of bacon placed on top of a liver loaf during baking adds both flavor and fat.

Mushroom Soup

1 pound mushrooms, chopped fine
Paprika
1 pint chicken stock
1 pint cold water
1 pint cream, thin
1 tbsp. flour
½ cup whipped cream

Let mushrooms stand in cold water 2 hours, simmer on slow fire about 30 minutes; strain juice; add chicken stock, well seasoned; add cream and flour, mixed in cold milk until smooth; when perfectly smooth run through a fine strainer; just before serving, add 2 tablespoonfuls of whipped cream.

Persimmon Custard Pie

There are a few persimmons still available in the county. Thus this delectable concoction:

1 cup strained persimmons
2/3 cup sugar with 1 teaspoon sifted flour stirred in 1/3 teaspoon each ground cinnamon and cloves
3 eggs
1 cup sweet milk

Combine flour, cloves and cinnamon with sugar. Keep out 2 egg whites for meringue. Beat the remainder of eggs well, then add sugar with spices and flour, add persimmons, stir well, then add milk, stirring well. Pour in custard pan lined with pastry. Bake in moderate oven.

For meringue, beat 2 egg whites to stiff froth, add 2 level tablespoons of sugar, a pinch of cinnamon. Beat in good, cover custard pie when done. Return to oven (not to hot), let rise good and brown lightly.

Apple Catsup

"Catch up" the flavor of pork tenderloin, heart stew or veal roast with Apple Catsup!

Sour apples
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon mustard
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 tablespoon salt
2 onions, finely chopped
2 cups cider vinegar water

Pare and slice apples. Cover with water, bring to boiling point; simmer until nearly all water has evaporated; rub through a sieve. Add remaining ingredients to one quart of pulp. Simmer one hour. Bottle, cork and seal while hot. About one quart.

For sugar saving apple sauce add sweetening after the apples have been cooked, and also add a pinch of salt to bring out the good flavors nd serve ot.

For baked apples, wash and core apples, but do not cut through stem end. Fil center with brown sugar o rcorn syrup . Add butter or other table fat. Chopped nuts, too, if the family likes them. Cover apples in a baking dish and bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit until soft .

Properly Equipped.

WOMEN AT WAR

Margaret

Margaret turned off the humming vacuum cleaner, and straightened the slipcovers of the armchair and the daybed that she had pushed up to go over the rug. Then she stood quite still in the doorway and looked at the small bedroom with its southern exposure. It was as neat and impersonal as a pin. It might never have been lived in. The door stood open on the clean, bare closet. There was not a pennant, not a team picture, not even so much as an old Arithmetic book left to show whose room it had once been.

Margaret stared at the walls, the furniture, and deeply, slowly, she realized that no matter what lodgers with their own trinkets and pictures might occupy it, she would always see it the old way. It was the old way that she saw it now. A pair of hard-worn gray pants lay on the floor where they had been dropped. Three baseball bats were stacked with a fishing rod in the corner. A battered red cap with a letter on it lay on the bed. And through the bed, as though it were transparent, Margaret saw another bed, smaller, and with high slatted sides.

She put the vacuum cleaner away and went down to her desk in the sitting-room. She took the fifteen dollars rent that the new lodger had paid that morning in advance for the room, and added to it, from her purse, three dollars and seventy-five cents more. Then she drew out a sheet of paper and began to write on it, slowly, gravely.

"To buy a bond to help train a young man to replace Don, Jr.—killed on June 6th in the Battle of Midway."

Food Specials for Week.

All domestic tree nuts have been designated as a Victory Food Special during the weeks of oNv. 9th through the 21st. This includes walnuts, almonds, filberts and pecans. All products designated as Victory Food Specials must make a real contribution to the nutritional welfare of the nation before they are so designated. Home economists, threfore, will, of course, be interested in doin geverything posible to furtehr the use of nuts at this time.

Wartime recipes and menus, too, planned and designed to particularly include nuts will be especially helpful.

Calvary H. D. Club.

The Calvary H. D. Club met on Nov. 12 with Mrs. J. H. Kern. This being reorganization montn, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. J. H. Kern; vice-president, Mrs. G. N. Nichols; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. S. W. Gray; leaders, Mrs. Fred Fuqua and Mrs. T. J. Gray; citizenship chairman, to be named; Rural Youth, Mrs. R. F. Powell.

The hostess program for the coming year was planned; also plans were made for "Family Night," to he held at the community center on the evening of the regular December meeting date. Refreshments were srved during the social hour, which proves to be a tie of fellowship throughout the years.

Mrs. S. W. GRAY,

New London H. D. Club.

At the November meeting of the N. L. A. Home Demonstration Club held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Inge, the following officers were elected: L. Brown, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. L. Brown, secretarytreas-urer; Mrs. Carl Hicks and Mrs. T. D. Abbott, leaders; Mrs. L. L. Barnes, citizenship chairman; Mrs. M. L. Carter, rural youth chairman; Mrs. S. R. Crockett, reporter.

One feature of the program was a moving picture shown in the school auditorium on "Safety in the Home." This picture brought out the fact that far more fatal accidents happen in the home than anywhere else, and also showed mnny ways tnat these may be prevented. Mrs. Gordon read a paper on "Canning Meats," which was very timely at the season when hog killing is right at hand.

It was decided that each club member will pay a small monthly dues to take care of the county and State H. D. dues, and that each one will give in her birth month as many cents as she is old. This birthday fund will be kept separate for emergencies and miscellaneous expenses. Mr. Brown and Mrs. Inge gave a summary of the year's work by repeating the dialogue they gave Achievement Day.

Plans were made for the Christmas supper to be given at the Academy on Dec. 18th, and the dance which will follow. Each one attending is asked to bring a small gift, a food contribution to the supper, and an "old hat" in a paper bag. The hts are to be as much out-ofstyle and season as possible.

The social hour of this meeting was in the form of birthdaay celebration and a handkerchief shower for Mrs. Crockett. The cake and its —— candles was a beautiful sight and the gifts a complete surprise to the recipient.

Mrs. Inge, assisted by Mrs. Aubrey Inge, served the birthday cake, cookies and grape juice to the following: Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Crockett, Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Hicks, Mrs. Sibert, Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Collins.

THE HOME ECONOMIST AND THE WAR.

By Harriet Elliott.

Eevrywhere, these war-torn days, American citizens are sharing their mutual responsibilities. It is also necessary and proper that each individul recognize his own, special responsibilities and perform, in addition to the general tasks performed by every patriot when his country is in peril, that special task which his special talents and training have fitted him.

Very fortunate is the woman whose peacetime tasks have trained her for war-time service. In such a group is the home economist. She is fortunate because she has had experiences that may now be put to excellent use for her country. Her country is likewise fortunate.

Today, the very title of her profession, "Home Economist," has taken on a new and national importance. Both "Home" and "Economist" are vital factors in today's fight. In the deepest sense of the word, America is our homeland—a land not only for homes, but of homey virtues. We intend to keep it so.

Today home economists have a "plus" value. They must give the skill of showing women how to save, but not scrimp; how to budget; how to eat well, but economically; how to live abundantly, but thriftily. Theirs, then, is a special opportunity. This is no time to sit in the cool shade of an Ivory Tower, and coddle a special skill. Today is the time to get down in the heat of the battle, and today's battle has many fronts.

In many ways the home economist has been a pioneer; even a prophet. Today, she is recognized as a leader. She talked of vitamins when others laughed about them. She not only "preached" but "practiced" budgeting long before that was the fashionable thing to do.

And so today she comes appropriately and authoritatively into the crisis with a peacetime experience that has always been valuable, and is now being valued. for home economics today is tying in more and more closely with world economics — with war economics. Today, the term home economics is more than a phrase in a textbook; it is a fighting formula.

Today, the home economist can help the homemaker economize— economize to save in order to buy Bonds which help supply war equipment today, and which, in a peaceful tomorrow, will supply the equipment for fore, more than ever vital to the nahome economist is teaching women to help preserve the homeland and the home. The home economist is, therefore, more than ever vital to th national economy, whether her work lies in business, with a nationally known food firm, or in teaching or in other related activities. Hers is a very human ,and a vary helpful role.

To the question, "What can I do?" the answers are many and many of them are valid. The answers are of today. The answers are given by a dozen organizations, by a score of government directives. But tomorrow w-hen the war is won, the question we will all be asking ourselves will be, "Did I do enough?" To that haunting question only one person in the world can give the answer—your own self.

The government can't answer it for us; the club can't answer it; rriends can't answer it. Each woman will be obliged to answer for herself, in a small and very distinct voice that only you can hear, but which she can never keep from hearing.

As she works today the home economist, all unknowingly, is writing that answer for the future. When the war she has helped to win is finally won, and the question comes: "Did I do enoguh?"—she can say with honor and honesty—"I tried to."

"Meanest Man" Would Deny Soldiers Pork

If anyone tells you that Cousin John's office girl told him that Uncle Bill's wife was told by a friend that the Government is going to step in and interfere with farmers' plans to produce pork for home consumption, you can tell them it isn't true.

"In fact, if you wish to, you can use even stronger words because such rumors are nothing but idle, useless gossip, or an attempt to sabotage the nation's food production efforts," says Porter Hardy, chairman of the Virginia USDA War Board.

A number of rumors have been reported about the hog program. One is to the effect that the Government will collect a $5 tax on all hogs produced for home consumption. Another version says a farmer may produce as many hogs as he likes but that a "Government man" will come around and take all but two.

Similar rumors have been reported from several states, but like all rumors, they cannot be traced to a reliable source. Meanwhile, farmers who have heard this type of thing before and are too wise to be frustrated by idle talk, report from all sections that they are going ahead to comply with Secretary Wickard's appeal to produce 10 percent more hogs in 1943 and market them 10 pounds heavier.

"The person who originated this rumor qualifies for a place in the 'meanest man' series," Mr. Hardy says. "It would indeed be a mean man to start or promote a story designed to deprive our soldiers and sailors of their food requirements."

Material Conserving Style for Patriotic Women..

TAILORED SIMPLICITY

as worn in Hollywood by

Binnie Barnes

Popular Screen Actress

This season's fashion proclaims that the basis of one's wardrobe should be a well-made, beautifully tailored frock of good quality material.

The frock illustrated this week meets that demand fully. It is a simple, tailored frock of excellent rayon that will prove itself worthy of a high place in one's selection of fall and winter clothes. Thus, since line and fabric count so much, one wants to be choosy in selecting a frock in order to look feminine and pretty in a subtle, smart sort of way. The chic lines of this nicely fitting frock, with an inverted pleat in the skirt front, a soft casual open collar, tiny buttons fastening down to an unusual self belt, are appreciated by clothes-conscious women. Two flapped pockets grace the bodice. Colors approved are a tobacco tan or black.

BEE HOLLOW

Well, here I am as a new writer for the Bulletin, as the writers for Lick Mountain has seemed to stop writing. Don't be puzzled now, for you might say, these are just two names for the same place, Lick Mountain and Bee Hollow.

As a letter hasn't been written for a long time I have a lot of time to cover.

Well, to start, Miss Mavis Gray and brother, Marvin, spent last week-end November 7 and 8 with cousins at Blue Ridge. Miss Ruth Wade spent the same Saturday night with Miss Edna Saunders. Also Mr. Jack Powers was calling at her home, although a very rainy night.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Walter Saunders and children, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wade and children were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Bowyer.

Miss Ruth Wade spent Tuesday night with her causins, Lena and Louise Sublett.

Mrs. Ida Gray and son, called on Mrs. Nora Wade one day recently.

Miss Rachel Wade spent the week-end with Miss Beulah Saunders at Goodview.

Those on the sick list are Mrs. Jim Garner who seems to be about the same and Miss Lelia St. Clair who doesn't seem to be improving at all. Hope they are out again soon

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wade Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Saunders and children and Marvin Gray, Mrs. Gladys Garner and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Budge St. Clair. Prayer meeting was held in the home Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Budge St. Clair, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Saunders and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wade called on Mrs. Lelia Ct. Clair Sunday night.

Mrs. Ralph Wheeler and children visited Mrs. Julia Stevens and new born baby Sunday.

Misses Lena and Louise Sublett spent the week-end in Vinton with Mr. and Mrs. Henry St. Clair and grandmother.

Well will stop for the end of my first letter.

MONTVALE & VICINITY

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS.

"Gens Togata" met Friday November 13th and elected officers of this school year. The officers are: Consul I, Frances Wilkes; Consul II Doris Overstreet; Scribe, Ethel Miller; Quaestor, Aseal Wilson; Custodian, Pearl Gray.

New members of this Latin Club will be initiated Friday, November 20th. They are required to know the Greek alphabet, wear tunics to class, know the constitution of the club and the motto.

War Bonds and Stamps

During the months of September and October the students and teachers of Montvale high school had invested $1,044.40 in U. S. war bonds and stamps.

Each week a floating banner is given to the room which has purchased the greatest amount of stamps. The junior class, with a total of $155.25, held the banner first, but Mrs. Schenk's room holds it this week.

First Aid

Seniors at Montvale, now have the opportunity to take First Aid at school and thereby receive their Red Cross Standard First Aid certificate. This course requires a minimum of twenty hours of instruction. Mrs. Daniel Jacobs, Jr., high school teacher, is the instructor.

The standard course is also being made available to interested adults in the community. All those 17 years of age or older are hereby invited to attend. It will meet once a week on Monday at 8 p. m. at Montvale high school. This course will be completed in approximately 11 weeks.

First Aid is valuable to know in time of peace as well as war. Accidents in the home, on the highways, in business or at places of recreation may occur at any time. The first aiders will be prepared to prevent such accidents, give proper care in case of such and thus save pain and perhaps a life.

Aeronautics

Members of the aeronautics course at Montvale high school have taken airplane rides at Buford's Air Port this week. They are taking these in order to understand better how airplanes are operated.

Joins WAAC

Miss English, our last year's fifth grade teacher, has been accepted for the WAAC's and is to leave for Des Moines soon.

Mrs. Schenk's Room

Mrs. Ella Franklin caught fire and was burned, though not seriously at her home one day last week. Mrs. Schenk's room is fixing one window for all green flowers, this to be called the green window.

Our pupils are eagerly awaiting for the new library books which have been ordered.

School News

Zelma Olsen who was in the first grade has moved away. We are sorry to give her up.

Miss Maxy Harvey spent the week-end with Mrs. Harper near Penicks.

Peggy Newton of Jefferson Hi, Roanoke, was a visitor at M. H. S. on Tuesday.

Miss Hicks visited friends in Cleveland over the week-end.

Mrs. Patterson taught for Mrs. Schenk on Tuesday.

Thanksgiving holidays will begin with the close of school on Wednesday, November 25.

HUDDLESTON, ROUTE 1

The recent cold snap has stripped the forest of its loveliness and King Winter is just around the corner.

The farmers are very busy sowing wheat, shucking corn, getting in winter wood ect.

Several boys of this community reported to Roanoke for examination the 18th and 19th. We hope this cruel war will soon be over and our boys can return home.

Mrs. Emma Wright, who has been visiting her sons in Washington, has returned home.

Billie Wooldridge, who has accepted a position in Lynchburg, was at home Sunday.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the family of Mr. Thomas Plymale, who died recently.

The dance given by Floyd Parks, of Stone Mountain Saturday night was enjoyed by a large crowd.

Wood Mitchell, of Pittsylvania county, was visiting home folks Saturday and Sunday.

Messrs. Ollie and Moorman Overstreet and their wives, of Roanoke, were visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lonza Overstreet, over the week-end.

Several visitors were calling at the home of Mrs. Lula Morgan last Sunday.

The Stork flew over this way very recently and left a girl at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Saunders; also one at Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Mitchell's.

Mrs. Vaughnie Smith, of Altavista, was the guest of Mrs. Sallie Turner recently.

The school at Huddleston will close on Wednesday the 25th for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Write more often B. Franklin as your letters are enjoyed by this writer.

YE OLD TIMER

BACK HOME

We gladly welcome Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Womack back on Route 2, Huddleston, after spending the summer near Altavista; having moved in the early spring on account of tire shortage. They were sadly missed in our community while away as Mr. and Mrs. Womack are both unusually good neighbors, not to just some, but to all and are unexcelled in the case of trouble of any kind, sickness, death, not only to their convenfence, but at all time, day or night, cold or hot, rain or shine and they always carry a smile for every one, big, little, old or young.

Our midst is fortunate in having Mr. and Mrs. Womack back home again.

MINERAL SPRINGS

Mrs. Ethel Howell has returned home from Shenandoah Hospital in Roanoke, after an operation and is doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard St. Clair have gone to Norfolk to live. Mr. St. Clair has accepted a position there.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

Pursuant to the terms of a certain decree entered by the Circuit Court of Bedford County, Virginia, on November 17, 1942, in the Chancery Cause therein pending, shortstyled "Overstreet, et als vs. Carter, et al," the undersigned Special Commissioner will, on at 12:00 noon, at the front door of the Court House in the Town of Bedford, Bedford County, Virginia, offer for sale by way of public auction, upon the terms hereinafter mentioned, the following described real estate:

Parcel No. 1

All that certain tract or parcel of land, lying and being in Lisbon Magisterial District, in Bedford County, Virginia, containing 37½ acres, more or less, and being the same land conveyed to the said Walter S. Carter by one Calohil Price Carter and others, by deed dated October 4, 1906, of record in Bedford County Clerk's Office in Deed Book 93, at page 332.

Parcel No. 2

All that certain lot or parcel of land, lying and being in Lisbon Magisterial District in Bedford County, Virginia, containing 2 acres, more or less, and being the same real estate which was conveyed to the said Walter S. Carter by one J. H. Overstreet and Cora V. Overstreet, his wife, by deed dated March 5, 1906, of record in said Clerk's Office in Deed Book 132, at page 290.

Parcel No. 3

All that certain lot or parcel of land, containing about ¾ of an acre, it being the residue of a certain parcel of 62 acres, more or less, which was conveyed to Walter S. Carter by C. A. Overstreet and wife, by deed dated February 16, 1907, of record in said Clerk's Office in Deed Book 96, at page 375, after deducting the following conveyances off:

a. To Lisbon District School Board, Oct. 1, 1908, Deed Book 97, page 584, one acre.

b. To Isaac Rose, April 20, 1910, Deed Book 102, page 258, 25 acres.

c. To Executive Committee of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States April 24, 1913, Deed Book 109, page 93, 1 acre.

d. To W. C. Overstreet, March 7, 1916, Deed Book 116, page 186. (This deed calls for 8 acres and apparently by error states that said 8 acres is part of the land conveyed to Carter by C. A. Overstreet and wife by deed of record in Deed Book 90, at page 109, since the latter deed calls for only one acre... Therefore at least 7 acres came from Parcel No. 3.)

e. To W. H. Carter, March 7, 1916, Deed Book 116, page 188, 12 acres. (Again the reference is made to Deed Book 90, at page 109, and again this is obviously an error. Therefore, the 12 acres came from Parcel No. 3.)

f. To W. H. Carter, November 14, 1927, Deed Book 151, page 148, 15 acres.

g. To Abner Overstreet and others, November 14, 1919, Deed Book 127, page 61, ¼ of an acre.

Terms: Cash as to one-third of the purchase money, balance to be evidenced by purchase money notes, bearing even date with date of sale, with interest from date at six per cent per annum, payable one and two years after date in equal installments, or at the option of the purchaser, the entire purchase money may be paid in cash.

Taxes are to be prorated as of the date of sale. 35
