Okinawa Fighting Is Drawing to End

Escaped Prisoner Tells of Life in Jap Prison Camp

Major Marcus Wohlfeld, who was a prisoner of war of the Japanese on Bataan, and his mother, Mrs. J. K. Wohlfeld, of Long Island, N. Y., visited Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Saunders during the week-end. Major Wohlfeld was with the same group as Mr. and Mrs. Saunders' son, Bernard Saunders, who was also taken prisoner in April, 1942, and the two men were in the same Jap prison camp, Davao No. 1, although they never met.

Mrs. Saunders wrote to Major Wohlfeld's mother after she saw an article in the newspaper about him, hoping to hear some news of Bernard, and the two women have been communicating ever since. Major Wohlfeld stopped by enroute to Ashville, N. C. to tell the Saunders of his experiences, although he had no specific information about his son.

Major Wohlfeld and 11 men escaped the Japanese on March 1944, under cover of a melee which was started while they were working in the rice fields. He struck his guard over the head with a shovel, said, when the fight began. For five days he wandered without food and then joined with a guerrilla band with which he stayed for eight months, becoming chief of the band. Later he secured a boat and finally reached the American forces on Leyte. Three others who escaped at the same time also reached Leyte.

Bernard was moved to Camp Osaka, Japan, according to a communication received by his parents from the War Department in August, 1944.

Sgt. Charles Rucker Awarded Air Medal

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBER STATION, ENGLAND: SERGEANT CHARLES H. RUCKER, Jr., 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Rucker, of Bedford, Va., has recently been awarded the Air Medal for meritorious achievement in aerial combat.
Sergeant Rucker, a ball turret gunner on a B-17 Flying Fortress heavy bomber, has participated in numerous daylight bombing assaults against the Nazi war machine in Europe. Since his arrival in the European theatre of operations in February, 1945, Sergeant Rucker has been serving with the veteran 305th Bombardment Group.
He participated in the Eighth Air Force's offensive against the enemy airfields in preparation for the crossing of the Rhine by Allied ground troops. Flying with the 305th Group on March 24th, he saw over 100 enemy aircraft destroyed by high explosive and incendiary bombs, denying to the enemy one more airfield which might have been used by German planes to oppose the Rhine crossings.

Germans Stripped To Old Frontiers

Director and Two Assistants Already Engaged for Summer

The Allied big four Tuesday stripped Germany to its Prussian frontiers and assumed control of the country and 70,800,000 people under ironclad military rule in place of the central government, which they said no longer existed. They set up occupational zones for the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France.
General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery, Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov and General Jean de Tassigny, representing the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France respectively, proclaimed the Allied action in a declaration signed in Berlin. The United States will occupy southwestern Germany, Great Britain northwestern Germany, Russia eastern Germany and France western Germany.
Greater Berlin will be occupied by all four powers and governed by inter-allied authority. There will be four commandants and they will take turns in serving as chief commandant. General Eisenhower will be the representative of the United States.

Final revision of Germany's borders, especially as regards the big slice of territory claimed by Poland, will be left for the future. It was made plain that present Allied action does not mean the annexation of Germany. What the fixed boundaries of Germany will be is something for the peace conference to finally determine, but it is reasonably certain she will lose considerable territory. The Dutch are demanding a slice of northern western Germany as compensation for land ruined in their country when the Germans opened dykes and flooded many thousands of acres. France will also demand Junkers, will probably be divided between Russia and Poland, and the latter country wants parts of eastern Germany to balance what she will lose in the east.
All of the top Nazis, except Foreign Minister Ribbentrop, are dead or prisoners of the Allies, a large percentage of the Hitler gang dying by their own hands. The Russians announced yesterday the discovery of a body in the ruins of Berlin which is believed to be that of Hitler, though identification is not yet positive. It was said that death was from poisoning.
The hunting ground for Ribbentrop, strangely enough, has been transferred from the continent to England, the report being that he is believed to be hiding in London.

Admiral Nimitz reported Tuesday that all principal enemy forces on Okinawa have been destroyed and the end of the bitter campaign on Japan's doorstep appears near after 66 days of battle. At last reports the Japs held some 32 square miles of the southern end of the island and their last estimated strength was 15,000, but is much less now. The remnants are said to be incapable of offering organized resistance and mass (Continued on Fourth Page)

The Rev. E. T. Price will have charge of the music.

Recreation Plans Are Now Complete

Ironclad Military Rule Replaces Central German Government

The Bedford Recreation Association was given the green light by the Town Council this week when at a special meeting of that body with representatives of the association money was appropriated for the salaries of a director and two assistants. The director of the summer activities will be C. B. Woodhead, of Forest, who will be assisted by Miss Laura Jeter Parker and C. H. Lamphere.
Membership cards have been issued to the students at school. These cards are to be signed with the approval of the parents and brought back to school on Friday. In signing the card the "signatory" promises to accept the authority of the leaders and agrees that good behavior is playground area is a condition of membership. All cards must be turned in at school on Friday, it was stated.

Mr. Lamphere will carry the music program of the schools through the summer and plans are being made for the formation of a school orchestra. Glee club and community singing will be featured and Mr. Lamphere expects to have two or three radio broadcasts during the summer and a music festival to wind up the season.

There has been considerable gratification expressed with the co-operation of the council and general approval of the efforts of the Rev. N. W. Allen, Mitchell Bower, J. M. Davidson and others of the association who have made the program possible. It was pointed out that volunteers would be needed for the success of the program and all who desire to offer their services can do so by registering with Miss Parker.

Lt. Anderson Tells of Treatment Received When German Prisoner

(Reprinted from Lynchburg News)

First Lieut. William D. Anderson, who was captured after being wounded in the heroic stand at Bastogne and lived in German prison camps until being freed by the Russians in their drive for Berlin, approves heartily of the proposal that liberated Americans be put in charge of German prisoners of war.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Anderson of Bedford, and a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Lieut. Anderson was a member of the famous 101st Airborne which was rushed to Bastogne to help check the abortive German offensive launched by Field Marshal Von Rundstedt. He read the Nazi ultimatum for surrender sent to them by Brigadier General A. C. McAuliffe and the General's classic reply of "Nuts."

Soon afterwards during the bitter fighting, Lieut. Anderson was hit in the leg by a burst of shrapnel. He was captured and forced to march about 35 miles without having his wound dressed.

"The Germans wouldn't even give a bandage and finally another American took off part of his bandage and gave it to me."

French Doctor Removes Shrapnel Although he was suffering a great deal from wounds in his leg, the German did not give him a shot of morphine until ten days later. It was 40 days before his captors permitted a French doctor to remove the shrapnel from his leg.

"It wasn't because the Germans didn't have medical supplies because we found plenty of them after we were liberated," he continued.

Because of his wounds, Lieut. Anderson was placed on a box car when the Russians drove close to the prison camp in Poland. Some of his friends, he said, were marched for as much as 60 days as the Germans tried to prevent them from being liberated by the Soviets.

Finally the Russians caught up and Lieut. Anderson and a few comrades were freed. They stayed in the Russian base at Yechta and then cut their way through a wire enclosure and made their way to the American lines.

"We knew the Russians were sending Americans back through Odessa and we didn't want to waste that much time," he said.

Prison Conditions Insufferable Conditions at the prison camp were nearly insufferable, he said. Two hundred officers, he continued, were housed in a shed approximately 30 feet wide and about 90 feet long. They were given little cover and no toilet articles such as tooth brushes and razors. After 67 days, Lieut. Anderson said, he traded his days of bread rations to another American for a tooth brush.

"It might have been second handed or even third but I didn't mind," he commented.

Food given them by the Germans consisted of three slices of bread a day, six small potatoes and a small portion of "grass" soup. Occasionally they would be given a bowl of thick mush made from barley.

Lieut. Anderson told of a visit to his camp of Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion of the world, who wanted to see how "his American friends" were getting along.

Schmeling brought with him to the camp hundreds of pictures of himself all autographed for distribution.

"He took every one of them away with him, not a single one of us accepted one," he said.

Schmeling promised each of the officers a special ration of cigarettes. Sure enough the following day each of the prisoners received ten cigarettes, Lieut. Anderson said.

Conditions were even worse for Allied enlisted men held as captives of the Germans. Four hundred were kept in a small tent close by when the temperature was close to the freezing point, he said.

"None of us would have survived if it had not been for Red Cross packages we received each week."

Lieut. Anderson told of learning of President Roosevelt's death while in the prison camp. The first inkling came when Norwegian prisoners sent the Americans a message of condolence. This was followed shortly by one from the British captives.

"I didn't believe it and still did not for about two weeks after I was liberated," Lieut. Anderson said.

Nevertheless, the Americans held a special service in the camp for Continued on Fourth Page

Receive Details of Death of Their Son

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Turpin have received word from Chaplain Andrew E. Love, of the U. S. Fleet Hospital in San Francisco, Calif., describing the death of their son, Martin Parks Turpin. Part of the letter reads as follows:
"It is my sad duty to write you concerning the death and burial of your son, Martin Parks Turpin, F-1-C of the U. S. S. Hancock. He was brought to this hospital suffering from tumor of the brain. His suffering at times was very great. His doctors decided that he must have an operation immediately. He was told that it was his only chance of life, and that it was an extremely critical operation. I talked with him a few minutes before he started the operation. He said that he wanted to live as the rest of us, but that he was ready and willing to meet God. It was God's will that the operation revealed a very bad tumor of the cerebellum. He lived about 5 hours after the operation. I buried him on this island on the Army Navy and Marine Cemetery No. 2, in grave No. 2, row No. 26, Plot C. He died April 23, and was buried at 3:00 p. m. on April 24. I want to assure you that brain surgeons of unquestioned ability ministered to your son while he was here."

Bedford Cases Heard By Federal Court

Two men from the conscientious objectors camp at Kelo were given hearings in the United States district court, Lynchburg, which convened Monday. He is a member of Jehovah's Witnesses and stated that he could not carry on his religious work after remaining in the camp for two years. The case of Ernest Garrett was transferred to Roanoke for trial in July.

Thomas Clark, of near Forest, charged with making false application for supplemental gasoline rations, was sentenced to six months when he pleaded guilty. He stated in his application that he needed more gasoline rations to travel 34 miles daily and transport three other workers, when actually, a check disclosed, that he lived within walking distance of his work, as did the three other men he claimed to be hauling. Archie William Quarles, Negro, of Bedford, charged with bootlegging, was put on probation for three years, provided he pays a fine of $250 within the next six months. Brookie Okey, Negro, of Bedford, was also put on probation and fined $250 on a charge of bootlegging.

Large Rally Held At N. L. Academy

Awards and Diplomas Presented Students of 150th Graduating Class

Reviewing causes and events which led to the present worldwide conflict, Governor Darden told the 150th graduating class of New London Academy that the government of the United States must participate in world organization and leave behind isolationist views. He expressed hope for the success of the United Nations Conference in San Francisco and the formation of a world peace organization with sufficient force to police the world. In explaining his views as to the steps which should be taken to prevent another war, he asserted that an "untrammeled church and school system" are the necessary fundamentals.

He said he expects great progress to be made in Virginia education as a result of the Denny School Commission which report he praised as one of the greatest achievements in the history of the Commonwealth. There was much to be done, however, to elevate educational standards, he said.

Approximately 1,000 persons gathered at New London to hear Governor Darden and to participate in the full day's program which had been arranged for the alumni and visitors. Local Soldier

Member of Unit

Awarded Many Honors

WITH THE THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION, SEVENTH ARMY, Germany—T-5 Corbin P. Burnette, son of Mrs. Beattie Burnette, Route 3, Bedford, Va., is a member of the First Battalion of the Third Division's 15th Regiment which has been awarded the Presidential Unit Citation for its action south of Montelimar during the Seventh Army's lightning drive up the Rhone valley from southern France.

The Third Division was chasing the German 19th Army through the Rhone valley, when the 15th's First Battalion executed a flanking maneuver that boxed a large portion of the German force, knocked out more than 400 vehicles, took more than 500 prisoners and killed a large number of the enemy.

After knocking out one German force, the First Battalion continued northward and captured the important city of Montelimar, situated on the banks of the Rhone and guarding the approaches to Lyon and the enemy's escape route to the Belfort Gap in the Vosges mountains.

The local soldier is entitled to wear the Distinguished Unit Badge, a blue ribbon with gold fringe, over his right breast pocket. As a member of the Third Division he is also entitled to wear the Croix de Guerre fourragere, awarded to the Third by General Charles de Gaulle for the division's work in the Vosges mountain and Colmar pocket campaigns. The Third is the only division awarded the coveted cord of honor in this war.

The 15th's First Battalion has taken part with the Third in seven separate campaigns—French Morocco, Tunisia, Sicily, southern Italy, Anzio-Rome, France and Germany, and has most recently taken part in the crossing of the Rhine and capture of Nurnberg.

MEMORIAL

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband, Captain Taylor N. Fellers, killed in combat in France one year ago today, June 6, 1944, (D-Day).

It was just a year ago today, dear Taylor, that you were called away to meet your Savior.

I knew it was a long, narrow, and lonesome road. And I'm proud I was the one who helped you carry that load. I only wish I had been by your side. To really know how you suffered and died.

It's not the thought of your passing on. To the loved ones you've left at home.

It's the thought you were a brave man, Taylor dear. To leave the good old U. S. A. over here, To go to a land you didn't know, But thought it your duty and you must go.

Your pictures and your honors, dear Taylor, Are placed upon the wall so near, That all who care can come and see That you will always be so dear to me.

I have your Purple Heart which you never saw, But little did you know you were Crossing the Bar.

It's a lovely memory to keep in mind.

That you are with me all the time. To know that you aren't far away. For, Oh! how often I hear you say "Keep up your chin, and be on your own."

For it won't be long before I'll be home.

You loved your boys, as I used to hear you say, "There's not a finer group of men in the U. S. A."

They would stand by your side through thick and thin.

So why not I, so we will win. I quote him now, as he would want me to,

"Carry on boys, it's now up to you."

And now that you've gone to that heavenly home above, A place of peace, for rest and for love.

And someday I hope to meet you face to face To join hands once again in that heavenly place.

Where we will be at home together again, No parting, no hardships, no sorrows, no pain.

Sadly missed by his wife, Naomi N. Fellers.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my son-in-law, Sergeant Grant C. Yopp, who was killed in France on D-Day, June 6, 1944, just one year ago today.

I never thought when you said good bye. It would be for the last time; As the days passed on we would say,

In hopes you would soon come back to stay.

Then the sad news came that, You had been called away.

It was on that awful beach head Where waves were rolling high; You were met by the Germans That caused you to die.

Along with lots of your pals, You started unafraid, Across that awful channel, France to invade.

You are gone, we miss you dear. Silent the voice we loved to hear; Too far away for sight or speech But not too far for thoughts to reach.

I often sit and think of you And speak of how you died; To think you could not say good bye.

Before you closed your eyes. We miss your kind and willing hands,

Your fond and earnest care; Our home is lonely without you We miss you every where.

Friends may think we have forgotten, How sweet the memory still;

But death has left a loneliness This world can never fill.

He little knew when leaving us He would return no more, That he in death would sleep alone And leave us here to mourn.

Although your soul is now at rest, And free from care and pain; This world would be like heaven If we could have you back again.

IN MEMORY

Written in memory of our dear precious darling son, Frank Price Draper, Jr., Co. A, 118th Infantry, 28th Division, who lost his life in the invasion of France on D-Day on the coast of Normandy.

The 6th of June is here again. The saddest day of all our life; for on this awful dreadful day, was when our dear sweet Frank passed away. Far away from home, mother and friends; no first aid to him could be given; so it was on this fatal day, that your life blood ebbed away.

God saw fit to take you home to be with Him. One year has passed since that day in France when your dear life was taken from you. But time has not healed our broken and sad hearts. They are just as sorrowful and burdened today as they were when we received the sad news that you had been killed in France. The sad memory of this fatal day will always remain with us.

We loved you dearly in life and we love you dearly in death; you are in our hearts today, just like you were when you went away. You were a precious jewel taken from our home. But we feel that our loss is Heavens gain. Heaven is nearer and dearer to us since you have gone there to stay. You were so sweet, dear Frank. Kind and good to us all. Now all we have left are sad but sweet memories of you, and your dear picture on the wall. A better son and brother than you can never be found.

The memories of your short, but happy stay with us on earth will never be forgotten. Even in death it is a pleasure to think of the beautiful life that you lived in our home. But why God let you meet with such a fate, we just can't understand. But we hope some day when this lonesome life is over, to meet you on Heavens shore and clasp your hand once more. We miss you dear Frank, we miss you more than tongue can tell, and always will. We longed for you to come home and you wished so much to come back too. But now you won't return; yet we know you are happy in Heaven above where all is joy, peace and love. No wars and bloodshed up there to mar your happiness.

—Mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Draper, sister and brothers, Verona, Ganiel and David Draper.

IN MEMORY

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and daddy, James G. Witt, who died one year ago today, May 26, 1944.

Our lips cannot say how we loved him.

Our hearts know not what to say; God only knows how much we miss him.

And long for him each day.

Friends may think he is forgotten, That sorrowing hearts are healed, They do not know the sorrow That's in our hearts concealed.

A precious one from us is gone, A voice we loved is still,

A place is vacant in our home That never can be filled.

It's lonely here with out you, dear, And so sad along life's way;

Life does not seem the same, dear, Since you went away.

A wonderful day and aid, One who was better, God never made;

A wonderful worker, so loyal and true, One in a million, that, Daddy, was you.

Farewell again, oh Jimmie dear, I bid you fond farewell.

The grief within my aching heart There is none but God can tell.

You have gone into a better land And left me here alone,

And memory is all I have For you, my love, my own.

We loved you then, we love you still.

Forget you, no, we never will; Sweetly tender, fond and true, There is not a day that we don't think of you.

—His devoted wife, Mrs. Lola Witt, and children, Comena, Carlton, Rucker and Helen.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear nephew, Dickie Abbott, who was killed in action, June 6, 1944.

One year has passed since that sad day, when a message came that my dear nephew had lost his life; he died for our country and we are so proud of him.

Dear you are gone but not forgotten. In life we loved you so dearly. Now in death we do the same. We know God is too wise to make a mistake and too kind to be unjust. We are comforted with the blessed hope that he is in the sunshine of God's eternal love.

He was kind and sweet in all his ways. Loved by all that knew him. Oh! it makes us all feel so sad to think he has gone to never return. God alone knows how we miss him and the grief that is in our hearts. On earth you are no more, in memory you are with us as you were always before.

We loved you Dickie, oh so much, But Jesus loves you best. For he took you to your heavenly home.

Where you could find sweet rest. —Written by his Aunt Lizzie

T-Sgt. Lionel R. Hale, son of Mrs. Laura Hale, Vinton, has been liberated from a German prison camp.

IN REMEMBRANCE

In loving remembrance of Elmer P. Wright, who died June 6, 1944:

Gone, but not forgotten, Thy gentle voice now is hushed; Thy warm, true heart is still, And on thy young and innocent brow is rest, death's cold chill.

Thy hands are clasped upon thy breast; I have kissed thy lovely brow; And in my aching heart I know I have no darling now.

Your face is ever before me, Your voice I cannot forget; Your smiles will linger forever In memory I see you yet.

Gone the face I loved so dear, Silent the voice I loved to hear; Too far away for sight or speech, But not too far for thoughts to reach.

The dearest one in all the world Has gone from me to stay, A broken heart is all I have Since he was called away.

Sleep on, sleep on my darling Till my short life has passed away; Then I will come and rest beside Until the Resurrection Day.

Dear is the grave in which you are laid, Sweet is the memory that will never fade.

This heart of mine is buried deep Under the sod where you peacefully sleep.

May his soul rest in peace until the morning breaks and the shadows flee away.—His devoted mother.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of my dear son, Pfc. John F. Reynolds, who was killed in France on June 6, 1944.

It was on that awful beachhead Where waves were riding high, That by the brutal enemy, You were called to die.

Now still and cold your body lies, In the bloody soil of Normandy; And tho' you are no more, Your memory will linger forever

In the hearts of all who knew you And the awful price you had to pay.

No one knows how I miss those letters

That said, dear mother, I'm all right.

After 22 months of strife and hardship,

On June the 6th, you lost your life.

A life that was young and happy, Just when your years were best.

God took my dear Jack to His garden above For a much needed rest.

To have, to love and then to part, Is the saddest to the human heart; For only those who have lost can know.

How happy I was until my blue star turned to gold.

Now those pictures and gifts From you are all I hold;

Left of a world that was full Of joy and gladness untold.

So in God's safe hands, I place you, my treasure.—Mother.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our dear father and husband, W. J. Fralin, who departed this life two years ago, May 18, 1943:
We shall never forget you, dear husband,
While in this world we stay.
God only knows our feeling
Since you passed away.

Let us think of him today,
Sleeping, resting, just away;
Resting where no shadows fall
In perfect peace, he awaits us all.

WAR

slaughter from the guns of American forces on land and sea is awaiting them. More than a week ago the Americans had counted and buried over 60,000 Jap bodies on the island. Heavy losses have also been suffered by our marine and army forces on the island, and navy losses in ships and personnel have been high. Washington announced this week the sinking of two destroyers, with heavy loss of life, by Japanese suicide plane attacks. It was stated that only one per cent of enemy planes trying to attack 1,000 Jap planes have been shot down.

Defeat of Japan's industrial center from the air is being stepped up and at the end of last week carried based planes renewed the attack on enemy air fields on Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands, from which the suicide plane attacks are being launched against American forces at Okinawa. Kobe, Japan's sixth city, was the latest to feel the weight of American air power. Kobe is the country's largest port and a war production center.

A dark war picture for Japan is made by the Tokyo radio and leading papers, following air raids on Tokyo, Yokohama and Kobe, and defeat on numerous fronts. It was admitted that the battle for Okinawa was practically lost, but only a few weeks ago the Japanese leaders declared the outcome of that fight would settle the war for victory or defeat. Tokyo interprets the recent trend of events as "unmistakable signs" of an Allied invasion of Japan.

Manila reports that showdown battles for northern Luzon's vital Cagayan valley was brought nearer this week by a six-mile advance of American forces along the main highway and capture of the village of Arifao. The last considerable body of Japs on Luzon is concentrated in that area and when it has been wiped out most of Luzon will be in American hands. On Mindanao the Japs are reported to be offering stronger resistance in the center of the island, where the remnants of the original garrison are cornered in a mountainous area.

On the Asiatic mainland the Chinese offensive is still going strong, and Chungking reported yesterday that Japanese troops have abandoned four big industrial towns in the Hsiang Kow region in a contraction of the holdings along the vulnerable invasion threatened south China coast. To the northeast 340 miles, Chinese troops advanced to within 20 miles of Luichow and launched a new encircling threat to the former American air base. Luichow is a vital road and railway center and its loss would imperil all Japanese forces in south China. Late yesterday the Chinese reported the city had been captured.

Chinese reports say the contraction of Japanese lines in coastal Kwangtung province has been going on quietly for several weeks. The Japanese are also falling back under Chinese pressure along the east coast north of the Japanese island of Formosa. Recent Chinese victories at widely separated points would indicate that either the Japs are incapable of stemming the tide or are concentrating their main strength in strategic areas which they regard as threatened by American victories in the Philippines and on smaller islands nearer Japan. The Chinese now hold enough of the coastal region to make the success of an American land reasonably sure, and then there is the threat that Russia may attack suddenly in the north. Japanese forces are too thin spread in China and southern Asia to meet all these threats and apparently they are abandoning certain areas which they can best afford to lose.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our dear husband and father Wharton B. Massie, who left us four years ago June 7, 1941:

Today we are thinking of someone Who was so kind and true, Whose smiles were as dear as the sunshine

Dear Wharton that someone is you. Our life is lonely, our home is said, Our hearts are filled with we miss you. We feel that we can never know The happy days again.

You were a loving husband, A father, Oh, so dear And as we think of you today We shed a silent tear.

Sad and lonely we are left alone Without you dear Wharton in our home.

The one that was so dear to me Has gone to be with Christ you see. But not gone from memory, nor gone from love. But to the Heavenly home above, And while you rest in peaceful sleep

Your memory dear daddy we'll always keep. Sleep on, dear Wharton, your labors are o'er; Your willing hands will toil no more; Sleep on darling and take your rest, It's terrible without you, but God knew best.

Sadly miss by his devoted wife and children.

the dead leader.

Soon afterwards, one of the Americans obtained a copy of a German newspaper which carried an editorial on the President's death. Another prisoner translated it and Lieut. Anderson copied it word for word, excerpts of which follow:

"The White House reports that the American president, Roosevelt, died suddenly on Thursday afternoon of a brain hemorrhage.

"At the time when the people of Berlin were experiencing one of the usual terror attacks of the Anglo-American gangsters and arsonists, there drew to a close one of the greatest dramas of all times—a drama of highest justice. Roosevelt, the greatest war criminal of all times died suddenly in the country house to which he always went when he wanted to bury himself in the mass of his physical possessions. Irreconcilable destiny, which controls all with a hard and sturdy hand, took from the earth the man whom many generations will curse and one who will play a leading part in the history books of mankind as the commonest of the small clique opposed to humanity who exploit material superiority."

"Roosevelt was accompanied by only a small group of those men responsible for the monstrous war crimes of the present political set-up in the U. S. A., when he went to rest for a few days at Warm Springs exhausted from what he called 'an imminent triumph.' He died of a sudden hemorrhage. Perhaps he had only a few minutes to look up from the desk on which he had massed his vicious plans (such as the plan for the eradication of the whole German race) to look up through the window into the evening sky to view the future in which Justice proclaims her verdict.

"In Washington, naturally, they will take pains to see that the formal apparatus functions on as smoothly as possible. Vice President Truman has officially notified Congress of the President's death. The clique of plutocrats and Jews will gather together and seek to get control of the gigantic business which deals with the last possessions of the German people and Germany's working strength. They had already laid on his desk for the President's signature the plans in which, explained in detail, were the categories of German skilled workers, numbering millions, who would be taken from ranks of prisoners of war in England and the U. S. A. and turned over to the Bolsheviks on the steps of Siberia if in due time the German people become weak."

Cancer Control Drive Reached Its Goal

Mrs. Robert A. Scott, chairman of Bedford County Cancer Control Drive, reports that the goal has been reached and wishes to especially thank the Board of County Supervisors, the Town Council, the Girl Scouts, the Liberty Theatre, the Bedford Training School and the Bedford Elementary School for their valuable help in making this success possible.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Willie L. Vaughn, who died four years ago, June 8, 1941:

In our hearts there is a picture. More precious than silver or gold. It is a picture of our daddy, Whose memory will never grow old.

But God is good, he gives us strength To bear our heavy cross. He is the only one who knows, Our loneliness and loss.

He has taken his last long journey. In God's beautiful ship caused rest. To his home of eternal rest. —Sadly missed by his loving wife and children.

PLAYGROUND FOR CHILDREN

For a good many years individual citizens or small groups have from time to time suggested that a public playground should be provided for the youth of Bedford. Indeed several attempts, on a small scale, have been made at meeting this need, but they all failed because of their inadequacy, lack of a well defined program, and absence of proper direction and supervision. Practically every one recognized the value of such a community enterprise, but nothing was done toward bringing it into being, mainly because there was never any concerted effort.

This last difficulty has now been overcome by the formation of an organization which has for its specific objective a public playground for Bedford children, equipped with the usual devices for entertainment and training of young boys and girls. These include ball fields, tennis courts and volley ball courts for the older boys and girls, and swings, slides and such things for the younger ones. In addition, there will be a music class and more than 100 children have already enrolled for this last. The ground, to be operated at the public school during the summer months, will be in charge of a training director and cannot fail to be of immense benefit to those who make use of its facilities. Success was assured when the Town Council at a called meeting Friday afternoon voted an appropriation to cover the expense.

The playground is sponsored by the most representative group of citizens that could be brought together in Bedford, and that fact alone made success possible. Affiliated with the promoting body are more than thirty separate organizations in the town, including the churches, and many individuals. Before making their plan public the officers and directors made a careful study of the whole proposition and drew up the plans for its operation. They were able to go before the council with something concrete and specific, and for this reason received a favorable hearing. This group of public spirited men and women have furnished a splendid example of what can be accomplished by cooperative effort, and although they are backing a worthy cause they might have failed had there been division among them about what was wanted.

Recognition is not lost of the fact that provision should be made for Negro children along the same line, and there has been some discussion of this problem. The opinion seems general that it is a matter the colored people should work out for themselves, for unless they can get together and display willingness and ability to act harmoniously and as a unit nothing much can be hoped for. Any plan from the outside might not meet the needs of the situation among colored children, and it is deemed the better policy to allow the Negro residents of the town to solve their own problem respecting the best course to follow. We feel sure that the matter will be thoughtfully considered by Negro leaders, and we are equally sure that when they agree among themselves and present a program having the unanimous backing of their people it will meet with favorable consideration.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Slanderous things were said about me in the Printer's Devil's column last week. Flings of the envious should, we suppose, be ignored, but still, a line must be drawn somewhere. I do the drawing when aspersions are cast upon my culinary artistry.

The occasion referred in the aforementioned column last week was a good many years ago. I was keeping batch for a season, and having a whale of a time. I was actuated by twin motives when that bevy of females was invited to the feast. First, there was compassion. Their gaunt and gangling forms moved me to pity, and charity. They needed some rib-sticking food, properly prepared. Second, there was quite an accumulation of soiled crockery, utensils and dishes I wanted cleaned up. Both objects were served.

Now as to the whys and wherefores behind this absurd dish-rag yarn. It had its genesis in an event which occurred a little later. A party was scheduled for the young folks on the "Pike," a very pleasant community in those days. As it was to be quite a gathering, it was decided that two cakes would be required. Out of that need sprang the slander which now has been given publicity. The author thereof, then resident on the Pike, is now a somewhat aged, though comely, Bedford matron. Prompted by the valour often characteristic of the ignorant, this lady had the temerity to challenge me to a baking contest in the matter-of the cakes, the guests to be the judges.

The two cakes were provided, but there was no contest; in fact nothing approaching one. Those present at the party, out of politeness, nibbled a bit at the shriveled, leadened thing she entered. Mine was consumed to the last crumb, amid importunities for the recipe. Envy warped her soul, and now, at this late day, she seeks to get even by the spreading of a silly tale about rags and coffeepots. Her work in the kitchen, of which I had first hand knowledge in those days, always reminds me of the woman described in a little poem I memorized years ago and which goes like this:

A woman there was who wrote for the press,
Even as you and I.
She told how to cut and fit a dress,
And how to stew a savory mess,
But she never did it herself, I guess,
Which none of her readers knew.

Oh, the hours we spent and the flour we spent
And the sugar we wasted like sand,
At the behest of a woman who never could cook,
And now we know she never could cook,
And did not understand.

Yours truly,

THE BOSS

GERMAN ATROCITIES

When, early in the European War, stories began to seep into America about German atrocities, they were not given a great deal of credence. Memory went back to the first world war, when similar stories were told, most of which were idle tales. But the stories persisted and gradually it dawned upon the American people that Germany's Nazi government was in reality pursuing what seemed to be a studied plan to deal with certain racial groups in a manner brutal beyond the understanding of people possessing humane instincts. The Jews and Poles were especial objects of Nazi hatred, and Russians who fell into their hands did not fare much better than these two unfortunate nationalities. As the war progressed it became ever clearer that the set purpose of those ruling Germany was to exterminate the despised races, the avowed purpose of which being to make more room on the continent for Germans.

But despite all the fully authenticated stories of wholesale murder and rape, the fullness of the horror did not come to be completely understood until American and British armies swarmed over Germany this spring and became eye witnesses to the bestiality of the Hitler regime. Torture camps found in France and the Low Countries had given them part of the story, but it had not prepared them for what they would find across the German border. Every district had its concentration camp where slave labor and political and racial prisoners had for years been forced to work on a starvation diet until they had strength to do no more and were then systematically murdered. The survivors found in these camps gave evidence beyond words of the calculated bestiality with which they had been treated.

It can never be accurately known just how many human beings were wiped out by the Hitler regime, but the total will run into many millions.

Allied armies driving the Germans back uncovered a series of death camps in which more than 5,817,000 civilians, slave laborers and prisoners of war, are alleged to have died. The best estimates available place the number of Poles dying at German hands at 10,000,000 out of a pre-war population of 35,000,000. American Jewish leaders say that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 of their race were murdered, but Jews in Europe place the total even higher. In those parts of Russia overrun by the Germans the civilian population fared almost as badly as the Poles and Jews, and the same inhuman policy was relentlessly pursued in Yugoslavia, Greece and Czechoslovakia, and many thousands died in France, Belgium, Holland and Norway.

Prior to this rule and reign of horror it was inconceivable that any people in modern times could slip back into the practice of studied brutality the Germans displayed under Hitler. It is useless to argue that the German people were not a party to these crimes, that they knew nothing of what was being done in their name. These murder camps were located in all parts of the country. They were operated so openly that there was no chance that residents of those communities were unaware of what was being done. This systematic wholesale murder stands as an indictment against the whole German people, and not alone against the coterie of planners headed by Hitler. Even top-ranking German military leaders openly admitted that it would be necessary to kill at least twenty-five per cent of the European population in order to make more room for Germans, and one German doctor who headed the murder factory at Kiev, Russia, rather boastfully admitted, when captured, that he personally had taken the lives of 20,000 helpless civilians, mostly Jews.

It is not a pleasure to write of such things, but it is important that the American people understand and keep in mind the kind of nation we have been at war. Already there is being heard excuses for the German civilian population and suggestions that the United Nations ought not to be too harsh with them, that a "soft" peace should be given them. The one thing we should really forever keep in mind is a picture of the kind of peace Germany, with the consent of all her people, would have imposed had she won the war. We were too "soft" after the first world war, and that attitude led inevitably to the second war. This time the Germans, all of them, must be made to understand the enormity of their crime against humanity and civilization, and to this end their country must be kept occupied and her system of education controlled until the people have thoroughly learned that other nations will not tolerate crime and brutality on an international scale. This policy must be pursued, regardless of how long it takes, because it is the only policy that gives reasonable hope for the regeneration of the German people.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

ERADICATE THE CAUSE

Eighty million people, boasted a captured Nazi, can't be destroyed. Unfortunately, perhaps, for the world that is true. But over a long period of time eighty million people can be given a measure of civilization both by education and by throwing into them the fear of the terrible consequences of barbarity and savagery in a civilized world, if we regard infliction of penalties as preventive as well as punitive, and if we attack the real source of the trouble as well as its manifestations. It isn't going to be easy. But it will be impossible if we punish crimes, and wrongly diagnosing the cause, are content. We may kill Nazis, we may kill Nazism, but if we leave the evil thing that has brought untold miseries upon the world, we are undone.—Lynchburg News.

COWS NEED DRINK AFTER SUPPER

Maximum production of milk is more likely to be obtained when cows have an opportunity to drink water after they have their evening feed of grain and hay, according to Arthur Porter, Iowa State College extension dairyman. The cow is most in need of water after she has eaten, but cows under barn care sometimes are obliged to go without water until they have had two feedings—one in the evening and another the following morning.

The dairy cow requires more water than any other farm animal.—Better Farm Equipment and Methods.

WORLD OF POINTS

The army's system of discharge is not only fair but a shrewd measure of reorientation. After figuring their points, the 1,300,000 men who are to be discharged will be a little better prepared for a strange civilian regime where daily life is governed by red, blue and shoe points. Then, like the rest of us, they will look forward to a pointless world. Not, however, to a pointless peace, which would take the big point out of all this long ordeal of counting points.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

No more cracked eggs for Lester Green, poultryman. Instead of feeding his hens oyster shells to provide lime, he feeds them plastic pills. The hens lay eggs with cellophane shells. Sez Lester, "With everythin' comin' wrapped in cellophane I got to thinkin' it would save the poultryman a lot of money if eggs came that way, too. So plastic pills was the answer. No broken eggs means money for more and bigger War Bonds."

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Rumors of a motion picture being taken in Bedford county reached me via the grapevine and naturally I immediately considered it my duty to investigate the business thoroughly and in person. It was not as simple as you might think. I had already made up my mind that whither they went, there I was going also just as soon as the paper was off the press on Thursday and with this in mind I approached the director, Mr. Edward Fred. He's the stocky one with the worried expression. The expression pleased me, since I'd always heard that directors had an abnormally harassed manner and I like my characters to fit their roles. I was, incidentally, bitterly disappointed later to find that his disposition, far from being the explosive type that I had hoped anticipated, was quite good humored and exceedingly patient.

Anyhow when I approached him about trailing along, he gave me one of his most troubled looks and started evading. I could see him thinking: "I don't want to make this person mad—must be tactful about what a bother." I felt very sympathetic. It was too bad for him to get all upset, I thought, over something that was really already settled—only he didn't know it yet.

The first place we went that afternoon was to R. A. Vaughn's on the Peaks road to take pictures of sheep being changed from one pasture to another. Nothing exciting happened here except that Mr. Fred sat on a rock covered with poison ivy. He said he didn't care. I hope he's right.

Miller Overstreet's was the second stop. The dining room and when here were to be used in a scene in which a farm family is eating supper. For my money, a better choice could not have been made. Aside from the attractive, warmly homelike appearance of the two rooms, there was the wholehearted cooperation of the entire Overstreet family, including the fat puppies, who got their pictures taken too. Just general pictures taken, too, just general principle. And, ah, me, the food. Never have I seen such food. Mr. and Mrs. Overstreet, their daughter, Nancy Miller, Kenneth Hurt, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Hurt, and Graham Creel took part in this supper scene while the rest of us stood around and drooled, enviously wishing that we were photogenic, too. We soon found out, however, that the job wasn't all hay.

Everybody got seated around the table, grace was said by Kenneth, playing the role of "Sonny" and all started to eat—especially Graham Creel. They didn't get far. In fact before Kenneth got through stirring sugar into his milk (which wasn't in the script), Mr. Fred was saying, "That's fine, but I think we'd better do it over again." I don't know how many times the scene was repeated before it was finally taken, but it was far too many in the opinion of at least one actor—young Kenneth. He just didn't get it. All the afternoon his mother had been starving him so that he would appear enthusiastic when he sighted the supper table and so he was at first. But after the plate had been whisked away from him about five times before he could get a bite, his confidence in the whole proceedings visibly dimmed. Nevertheless he sturdily went through his role time and again and there are not many people who can, without at least a little bitterness, say grace that often when they've given up all hope of ever being allowed to eat. The fact that the food was the most tempting I've ever drooled at made the job doubly difficult. The only person who benefited by it until later in the evening, when we all did, was Creel. Somehow or other during the few minutes he was allowed to eat, he managed to store away almost a whole plateful. I figured by the time the picture was finally taken, he had eaten at least four suppers.

The next scene was a canning job being done by the wife of the returning veteran, Graham Creel, who has gone to farming. This part was played by May Stanley, whose only drawback, judging from an aside remark made by the director, was that she might appear almost too glamorous. Another and final scene was made on the young farmer and his wife discussing their future plans.

I think I would have become bored with the repetition except that I was so completely fascinated by the gyrations of the cameraman, Russell Anderson. He's long and thin and I think that must be a requirement for the job. How else could he have wound his legs around the tripod of the big camera, sometimes hanging from it like a possum from a limb? You never knew whether he or the camera would come out on top. I was also slightly consoled over Mr. Fred's lack of vitriolic temperament when I noted that as he became absorbed in the job his hair fell down over his forehead in disheveled fashion and his shirttail came out, which to my mind made him look much more like you'd expect a director to look.

I'm told that other scenes will be or have been taken in the county agent's office, with S. S. Hyllton, Miss Alise Padgett and Miss Margaret Ferrell added to the cast, as well as members of the County Farm Advisory Board, and at the farms of Elmo Wright, Lawson Turner and H. J. Royalty. And that, I believe, buttons up the deal to date.

Yours truly,

He also has the Presidential Unit Citation awarded his group after a raid over Austria.

Job Calls for More Pulpwood

Paperboard cartons and special containers of many types; moistureproof wrappings and other packing materials made from pulpwood are needed in vast quantities. This, in addition to the already huge consumption for plastics, explosives and other war uses has made the pulpwood shortage more acute than ever and has put pulpwood close to the top of the War Production priority list.

We have a long way to go before the Japs are ready for Unconditional Surrender. We must not let up on our war job 'til they are beaten!

Pulpwood production is a profitable business now, and it will be a good business in war or peace for many years to come.

DISCHARGED UNDER NEW POINT SYSTEM

Four Bedford men have been discharged through the new point demobilization system, according to a statement from the local selective service board. The four were: Glenn Henry Dooley, Bedford, who was inducted October 4, 1941; John Ralph Sligh, Coleman was inducted July 2, 1941; Hugh Oakley Noel, Roanoke, son of Claude C. Noel, Montvale, who enlisted in December, 1941; and James T. Overstreet, of Thaxton. W. R. Dooley, son of Mrs. W. R. Dooley, Sr., who was released from a German prison camp near Hammerstein, has arrived at his home. He was captured at the battle of Salerno, Italy, in September, 1943, and was taken to Stalag 2-B in Germany, where he worked on a farm. After a 68-day furlough, he will go to Miami, Fla., for reassignment.

"Maybe it will look right if I

Alice couldn't seem to understand.

The Mock Turtle sighed deeply, drew one flipper across his eyes, and began again.

"This line is the cost of living going up—and that line is the cost of electricity coming down. Now do you see?"

"No," said Alice, doubtfully, "why don't they go together?
One of them must be upside down."

Sobs suddenly choked the Mock Turtle.

Alice was eager to please. "Maybe it will look right," she said, "if I stand on my head!"

There is an Alice-in-Wonderland flavor to the simple facts about electricity.

The average price of household electricity has actually come DOWN since war began—while the cost of most other things was going UP.

There has been no shortage of electricity—the basic raw material of all war production—though most other important war materials have necessarily been scarce or rationed.

That record is the result of careful planning and hard work by America's business-managed electric companies. And it is your assurance of plenty of cheap electricity for peacetime job production—and for all the new electric conveniences you'll enjoy after the war.

Meat Slaughterers Must Have Permits

July 1 is the last day for farmers to obtain slaughtering permits under OPA's meat control program.
Farm slaughterers who sell or transfer meat after May 14, must have obtained a permit and a quota from the War Price and Rationing Board, it was explained. However, a farmer may have until July 1 to register if he does not wish to slaughter and sell any meat between May 14 and July 1.

"The program to bring about a fairer distribution of the nation's meat supply was planned by representative farmers, distributors and the government," he added. "It is up to patriotic American farmers to help solve this American food problem as they have done in war food productions so far."

IN REMEMBRANCE

In remembrance of our dear mother, Jimmie Spinner, who died seven years ago, May 30, 1938: You bade me one last farewell, You said good-bye to none; A dear heart ceased to beat, And suddenly you were gone.

Seven years have passed, dear mother, But our hearts are just the same; Many silent tears have fallen, At the mention of your name.

Some may think we have forgotten Though on earth you are no more, But in memory you are with us, As you always were before.

Women's Division Organized for The 7th War Loan

The Women's Division of the War Finance Committee of Bedford county, headed by Mrs. John Bower, has been organized. Mrs. Bower has only recently returned from Florida, bringing ideas gained there to aid her previous experience in bond work in Bedford county.

A Junior Auxiliary of the Women's Division has been organized by Mrs. Bower. An enthusiastic meeting of this group was held on Tuesday, at which plans were perfected by Miss Marie English, chairman, and a corps of twenty-five young workers. Booths will be set up around town, and these girls will give as much time as is necessary for work in these and elsewhere.

A citation was received by Mrs. Bower for the work of the Women's Division in the Sixth War Loan Campaign, and she has received letters from other states asking how Bedford County did it. Credit for this fine work goes not only to the volunteer women workers, but to every man, woman, and child who helped by buying a bond. Bedford county more than doubled its quota in the Sixth War Loan Campaign. It was one of the four outstanding counties in the state of Virginia. What Bedford County has done before it can do again, and more. Let's finish in less time this time.

Jap Forces Split on Okinawa; Allies Gain Foothold on Borneo

Remnants of the Japanese garrison on Okinawa have been split into two pockets, one in the northern end of the island, where they are making a grim last-ditch defense. They are holed up in a region of cliffs and caves and to reach them the Americans are being forced to use rope ladders in some instances, but enemy opposition is being gradually overcome. An end to the bloody fighting must come soon, as only a few thousand Japs are still alive. The enemy is keeping up his suicidal air attacks on the American fleet and shipping at Okinawa and the navy this week reported the loss of two more destroyers and damage to other ships. In the meantime, Japanese industrial centers are kept under daily attack by both land based and carrier planes and more than 100 square miles of Japan's principal industrial areas have been laid waste.

Allied forces under command of General MacArthur have invaded Borneo, rich in oil and rubber and the world's second largest island, the landing being made on the north coast Sunday. The enemy was caught napping and Australian troops, composing most of the landing force, seized strategic Mura island at the mouth of Brunei Bay, and on the mainland fought on two miles south toward Brunei, capital of the British protectorate. Up to yesterday they had met only negligible opposition and have established a firm foothold. Borneo is not only rich in oil and rubber, but its occupation further closes Japan's sea route to the Indies and southern Asia. The scene of the landing gives the Allies a good harbor and sea base only 800 miles from Singapore, at the tip of the Malay peninsula.

Chinese armies are still on the offensive in southern China and while the land bridge through central China from Manchuria to southern Asia has not been entirely cut, it has been rendered useless to the enemy. Chinese army leaders say that more than 200,000 Jap troops have been isolated in southern Asia as the Chinese offensive rolled into the suburbs of the vital air base city of Luchow. By shattering the southern link in the Japanese corridor through central China the Chinese isolated enemy forces in Burma, Thailand, French Indo-China and Malay. Chinese troops operating in the coastal region around Foochow, captured several weeks ago, this week swept 31 miles up the coast China coast to within 24 miles of the big port of Wenchow in a mounting offensive to clear Japanese forces from their mainland defenses opposite Okinawa. Chinese sources expressed the opinion that the Japanese might be planning to abandon Wenchow and withdraw 225 miles up the coast to Shanghai. Hicks Reelected To School Board

New Pedlers License Ordinance Passed; Old Law Repealed

Mayor W. L. Lyle called attention of the Town Council to the fact that the term of W. P. Hicks as member of the municipal school board expires June 30 and called for nominations for the place at a meeting of the council Tuesday night. Mr. Hicks was unanimously nominated and re-elected for a term of three years beginning July 1, 1945.

Upon motion which was seconded and carried by all members present, the ordinance on license for peddlers passed April 13, 1915 was repealed and a new ordinance passed which states that "on every peddler there shall be a specific license tax of $50. Any person selling to consumer by sample, card or representation, or soliciting or taking orders for any article other than from merchants or other person dealing in the articles so sold shall be deemed a special peddler, and shall pay a license tax of $100 on each person so engaged, and no person shall be allowed to sell directly or indirectly under the license of any resident merchant."

"On every agent selling books or maps there shall be a specific license tax of $20 per year, and no license shall be issued for a fraction of a year."

The council also voted to change the penalty for a second offense of driving drunk, which is now a maximum fine of $1,000 to $500 to conform with that of the state law. J. L. Davidson, reporting for the committee on insurance for utilities, requested that a committee be appointed to study the matter of taking out liability insurance for the town electric and water departments in more detail. The mayor appointed P. C. Ford, G. L. Payne, E. D. English and J. B. Oliver to go into this matter more thoroughly and report to the council.

Train Crew Works Day and Night to Clear Wreckage from Tracks

The conductor, C. C. High, of Roanoke, on a N. & W. local freight, was killed Monday when an eastbound through freight ran head-on into the local while it was switching cars into the plant siding at the Heekin Can Company on Plunkett street. Other members of the crew stated that High and Raymond D. St. Clair, brakeman on the local, also of Roanoke, were riding on the cars and jumped just before the crash. St. Clair managed to get almost clear of the cars, but High was buried beneath them when they turned over. It took members of the Bedford Life Saving Crew and others over two hours to dig High out and he was dead when they got to him. St. Clair was freed within a few minutes and was taken in an ambulance to Lewis-Gale hospital, Roanoke, where he was said not to be seriously injured. St. Clair is a native of Bedford and a nephew of Robert St. Clair.

Henry Farish, of Lynchburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Farish, of Bedford, fireman on the local, sustained a bruised knee and was also taken to Lewis-Gale for treatment. The only other man hurt was the fireman of the eastbound freight, B. E. Kessler, who was slightly scalded on the legs when he and the engineer, J. E. Price, rode out the crash.

Gordon Deacon, manager of the Heekin Can Company, had just returned from lunch, he stated, and went to the door opening out on the tramway which was fast as the hurt was the fireman of the eastbound freight, B. E. Kessler, who was slightly scalded on the legs when he and the engineer, J. E. Price, rode out the crash.

A few seconds later the whole wall of the office building had caved in and ran out of the building without stopping to see what happened. A few seconds later the whole wall of the office building had caved in and ran out of the building without stopping to see what happened.

Coleman Falls Man Among Survivors Of USS Little

Norfolk, June 13.—Two hundred and forty-one survivors of the USS Little, sunk May 3 off Okinawa, have arrived at the receiving ship at Treasure Island, San Francisco, en route home on 30-day survivor leaves. Among them is James W. Martin, seaman second class, Coleman Falls, Bedford county.

Of the 340-man crew, seven are known dead, 29 missing, 63 wounded. The Little, with the help of combat air patrols, had been successful in driving off several Jap air attacks, but several planes of a group of approximately 24 slipped through the defenses of the ship and the air patrol, registering four hits on the destroyer in five minutes. The order to abandon ship was given shortly after the fourth hit and the crew took to the water. The task of picking up survivors was completed about three and one-half hours later.

The Little, commissioned at Seattle, Washington, August 19, 1944, was a veteran of seven months' action in the Pacific, having participated in the shore bombardment of Iwo Jima and Le Shima. At the time of its sinking it was doing picket duty approximately 70 miles west of Okinawa.

White, of Inglewood Baptist church, and the high school chorus gave a program of wartime songs under the direction of Mrs. Marcia S. Capron and Miss Betty B. Turner.

These men can tell you why the 7TH WAR LOAN is the BIGGEST yet!

YOU ARE being asked to lend more money than ever before—in the 7th War Loan.

These men can tell you why.

They can tell you of giant ships ready to slide down the ways this year.

They can tell you of a whole new air force in the building—huge new bombers and fast new jet-propelled planes coming off the lines by thousands.

They could show you why it is cheaper and quicker to give our Pacific Forces entirely new equipment sometimes—instead of shipping tanks and guns from Europe.

They can, in short, show you 101 ways in which your dollars are needed more than ever to bring America's might to its full strength—so that we may crush our foe the faster, make an end of killing, and bring our men back home.

Will you tell these men "I can't afford to buy my share"?

THE GENERALS and admirals can show us why our money is needed—more money than before.

But other men can show us something, too.

They're the men with twisted, crippled limbs... with clever iron hooks instead of hands. The blind men... the men with scarred, seamed faces. And perhaps worst of all, the men with blasted, darkened minds.

They can show us, clearly, how small is any sacrifice we make in lending money.

If you have an income, whether from work, land, or capital, you have a quota in the 7th War Loan. Find out what that quota is—and make it!

MEMORIAL

In sad but loving memory of my dear husband, S. Joe Howell, who departed this life five years ago June 11, 1940.

Five long years of deepest sorrow. Lonesome hours of grief and pain; A wound that never can be healed Until we meet again.

Home's sweet sunshine seems to vanish As your face no more I see And without your loving presence It is no more home to me. Just a thought of sweet remembrance, Just a memory fond and true, Just a token of affection And a heart ache still for you. Oft to your grave I wander With flowers and tears to share Over the one I love so dearly Who is so peacefully sleeping there. Sadly missed by his loving wife.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui, many women say, has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion, thus help build resistance for the "time" to come. Started 3 days before "your time," it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes. Try it!

In sad but loving remembrance of my son-in-law, Sergeant Grant C. Yopp, who was killed in France on D-Day, June 6, 1944, just one year ago today.

I never thought when you said good bye It would be for the last time; As the days passed on we would say, In hopes you would soon come back to stay;

Then the sad news came that You had been called away. It was on that awful beach head Where waves were rolling high; You were met by the Germans That caused you to die.

Along with lots of your pals, You started unafraid, Across that awful channel, France to invade.

You are gone, we miss you dear, Silent the voice we loved to hear; Too far away for sight or speech But not too far for thoughts to reach.

I often sit and think of you And speak of how you died; To think you could not say good bye Before you closed your eyes.

We miss your kind and willing hands, Your fond and earnest care; Our home is lonely without you We miss you every where.

Friends may think we have forgotten How sweet the memory still; But death has left a loneliness This world can never fill. He little knew when leaving us He would return no more, That he in death would sleep alone And leave us here to mourn.

Although your soul is now at rest, And free from care and pain; This world would be like heaven If we could have you back again.

BOND SALES LAGGING

The time schedule for the Seventh War Loan drive is nearing the half way mark, but sales in Bedford county are not keeping pace with the time schedule. A. G. Cummings, chairman of the War Finance committee, reported this week. The E Bond quota assigned Bedford is $330,000 and in addition there is a quota of $80,000 for other types of war securities for individual purchase. Latest figures available show that of this total quota of $410,000, only $156,000 has so far been met, leaving $254,000 to be sold during the remaining three weeks of the campaign.

These figures are disturbing. On the evidence in hand it is beginning to appear that too many Bedford county people have jumped to the wrong conclusion that the war ended with the defeat of Germany. Or, worse still, they are drifting into a frame of mind bordering on indifference as to how the fight to beat Japan is to be financed. Japan, like Germany, has only one hope, and that is that the American people will grow war-weary, become tired of working, sacrificing and financing for the war and force our government into making a compromise peace. All their propaganda and appeals to their home people are based on this hope. We play into the enemy's hands when we allow our efforts to lag in any of these respects. Failure of the Seventh War Loan would be a distinct encouragement to Japan to keep up the struggle. It would mean a longer war, a more costly war, and a needless loss of life among our fighting men at the front. We cannot afford to let this happen.

But we are persuaded that lagging sales in the Seventh War Loan drive are not due to indifference of the people. Rather it results from lack of concerted effort. Too many of us have assumed the "let George do it" attitude. We want some one else to do the selling. Proof of this is found in the campaign put on by pupils of the county schools early in the drive. Nearly every boy and girl was a crusader for a day or two and through their efforts pledges aggregating more than $100,000 were secured. This represents two-thirds of all the bonds sold to individuals in the Seventh War Loan campaign up to date. The county's quota would be easily met if more of us would emulate the school children and make a real effort to push war bond sales.

The banks and a few of our business houses make a practice of calling to the attention of their patrons the need of investing in war bonds, but aside from these, little interest is being displayed. Obviously the small membership of the War Finance committee cannot personally see every prospective bond buyer; success of the campaign depends upon the voluntary assistance of people in all walks of life. An example of what can be accomplished by personal effort came to our attention last week. One of the town's business men stopped another business man on the street and took his pledge for a war bond, only a few minutes being required to complete the transaction. The seller in this instance has no more personal interest in war bond sales than any other citizen. He simply looks upon it as a patriotic duty. That is a point of view more of us need to have. When we get it and act upon it there will be no question of the county again exceeding its quota.

FOOLISH TALK

For the past several weeks there has been a lot of loose, and dangerous, talk in this country about our relations with Russia. It cannot fail to foment trouble and breed ill feeling between the two countries because it is based on the theory that eventually we must go to war against the Soviet Union. This foolish talk is not confined to the irresponsible, but has been indulged in by members of both houses of Congress, and among the group of people opposing compulsory military training in war with Russia. This charge can be based only on phariseeism that such training is supported by the War and Navy departments as preparation for a war with Russia. This charge can be based only on the theory that our military leaders have absorbed the Prussian viewpoint of desiring war just from a love of fighting. While nothing could be more absurd, it is trifling with a very dangerous subject.

This vicious talk was carried to Europe by four members of the Senate a few weeks ago and was properly rebuked by the rank and file of the American army in Italy. These officials of the government aired their views at a review in Rome and were met with a lot of embarrassing questions from privates and non-commissioned officers. The soldiers wanted to know why the Senators thought that a war with Russia was a likely event of the future, and they insisted on being given an answer. They pointed out that for more than three years American and Russian armies had fought as allies in a war to defeat the chief aggressive power in Europe, and made plain their opinion that only inexcusable blundering by the politicians and others at home would make it impossible for the two countries to remain as allies for the preservation of world peace. The fighting men were naturally disgusted at the thought presented by the Senators, and that feeling should be shared by the American people in general.

All of Russia's policies and action may not meet with complete approval in America; it would be a miracle if they did. And likewise it would be unreasonable to expect Russian approval of everything we do. But on the broad principles of international agreement no insuperable barriers exist, and war with Russia can be brought about only by such foolish and irresponsible utterances as are being advanced by certain groups and individuals who have nothing on which to base their suspicions. America does not want war and neither does Russia. It would be ruinous to both. And no reason exists for war except in the minds of a limited few who do not have brains enough to keep their mouths shut.

PREDICTS FARM LAND PANIC

Because of soaring prices of Virginia real estate, which now have reached the highest peak since the postwar boom of World War 1, the State may face a farm land panic, Dr. Harry M. Love, farm economist of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, predicted this week. "Rising land values are causing great over-optimism which will probably change to panic when prices start falling," he stated. "Current high prices for farm real estate in Virginia are only 10 per cent below the peak reached in the post-World War I boom. The present rise is at least a year ahead of the record established last time. To the extent that the war continues, land prices probably will go higher," he continued. Dr. Love pointed out that Virginia is one of nine states to report more than 70 per cent increase in rural land prices over the average price prevailing from 1935 to 1939.

Human nature being what it is, nothing Dr. Love has said, and nothing we can add to it, will likely have any effect in halting this extremely dangerous tendency. When mass hysteria, always at the bottom of any inflationary period, seizes the people there is little that can be done about it. It is like a flock of sheep following their leader over a cliff. However, it is well to point out what inflation does when it gets out of control. History is full of object lessons, and within the last quarter of a century there have been at least three periods in which runaway prices in this country were followed by the disaster invariably and inevitably resulting therefrom.

The land boom following World War I, referred to by Dr. Love wrecked the agricultural economy of America for a decade. Not only were countless buyers at inflated prices forced into bankruptcy when the prices of farm products dropped to normal, but thousands of banks which had financed these unwise purchases were forced to close their doors, bringing loss, and in many cases ruin, to their depositors and stockholders. The country is now well on its way to a repeat performance, the foolish having learned nothing from that glaring example of what price inflation can and does do.

Before the country had fully recovered from that disaster, the stock market boom of the late 1920's plunged the nation into an ogre of speculation which brought on the panic which, starting in the fall of 1929, almost completely wrecked both agriculture and business during the nearly ten years it lasted. The ascending price scale for all manner of stocks had nothing to support it but popular and almost universal frenzy. Everybody was trying to get wealth without earning it, and, naturally, everybody went broke. Wealth is not acquired that way. When a man pays more for real estate, or anything else, than it is worth under normal conditions he has no way of ultimately dodging bankruptcy.

Then, there was that boom in Florida real estate a few years ago. None of the victims of that disaster, however, was imbued with a desire to own Florida land. All of them bought solely because they expected to sell at a profit. When the collapse came, as it always does in such cases, all alike found themselves financially ruined. There can never be any other finish to a period of inflation. The best time to sell is, of course, during an era of high prices. That is why so much rural real estate is now coming on the market. But it naturally follows, and this the buyer should bear in mind, is it a poor time to buy. Farm land which can be worked profitably at $25 an acre will, in most instances, prove unprofitable under normal conditions when double that price, or higher, is paid for it. That fact should be the main consideration in buying real estate at this time. The country is going through an abnormal period. The price of farm products are at the highest peak since the first world war. But this condition is no more permanent than the war period is permanent. It will not long survive the ending of hostilities. This being true, it is not safe to invest in rural real estate at a price higher than will insure profitable returns when prices drop back to normal, as they surely will.

Economically speaking, the greatest danger facing America today is that of inflation. That danger is increased with every purchase of property at a price above its normal times value. A good many millions of Americans learned this lesson the hard way during the inflation periods referred to here, but apparently many of them have forgotten and they, with a new crop of suckers, are again rushing headlong to disaster. Maybe something will stop them in time, but that something is not yet in sight.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

SHALL FARMS BE FEDERALIZED

Two recent news items starkly portray a revolutionary change in American agricultural philosophy since 1930—a change not in accord with Jefferson's ideal of a nation of small independent farmers. At the same time, the total social and economic philosophy of democratic government is undergoing epochal revisions, as evidenced by the United States social security laws, by Canada's subsidy to parents, and by Britain's Beveridge Plan. On the same day that the Agricultural Adjustment Agency reported from Washington that farm benefits paid in 1944 fiscal year totaled $801,377,000, the National Farmers' Union offered a five-point program which would permanently put American farming in the control of Government agencies.

James G. Patten, Farmers' Union president, proposes an annual agreement between the Government and the individual farmer which will specify crops and amounts, a forced crop-support price to farmers, a two-year support price for cattle at parity, a co-ordination of hog and cattle marketing facilities, and a provision for raising sufficient funds for payment of all subsidies needed.—Christian Science Monitor.

TEARFUL GERMANS

In the German Rhineland, a tear comes into the eye of the rotund German industrialist . . . destruction . . . Americans talk rough . . . German civilians demand that the allies pay for damage to their villages and cities.

This from the people who "belled" themselves hoarse as their attacking armies destroyed Warsaw, Rotterdam, Belgrade—cities by the hundreds, villages by the thousands, human lives by the millions?

Americans should put these two things together—the whimpering and the self-pity on the one hand and the continent-wide record of murder on the other. That ought to keep us from getting too soft-hearted this time to deal properly with Germany.—Milwaukee Journal.

No woman ever made a fool out of a man, she merely gives him the opportunity to develop his natural capacities.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I am against all the propaganda with which we are being stuffed on how to treat the returning veteran. I don't know which is getting the most confused—the civilians who most earnestly desire to do all that is expected of them, or the men in uniform. The former have been told so often that the "changed man" will be a "changed man", that they live in a state of anxious apprehension. In addition to all the various manners they are told to adopt toward service men, there also have been frequently reiterated that civilians must act "naturally." The two things just don't go together. In their nervous eagerness to be "natural" and at the same time to heed all the warnings that they have been given, they become so painfully self-conscious that it is both ludicrous and tragic. In other words the propaganda is accomplishing the exactly opposite effect from that intended.

Then there is the angle of the men who have been wounded. You are told to handle them carefully never ask questions and all that sort of business. Ten to one, however, no man who has a normal amount of tact or politeness would do these things anyway. Having it called to their attention so much that they are not going to do it, they are bound to result in awkward, embarrassing situations.

As near as I can judge, discounting those veterans who are suffering from distinct mental illnesses and who would be kept in a hospital and not returned to civilian life until after they were treated, there are no drastic changes in any of the men I've seen. Everybody changes as time goes on and new experiences are added. That's a normal part of living, and this development is undoubtedly hastened by war. Some boys leave and come back men, but underneath, Tom Jones is still Tom Jones—not some new guy bearing no resemblance to the old.

For the wounded men there are bound to be differences, but I think here the best thing we can do is to forget all the warnings we have received and treat Tom Jones who was wounded just like we would have if we'd never been told how to go about it. Most of these situations will handle themselves anyhow in a very normal easy fashion, if everybody isn't scared stiff they are not going to do and say the right thing. For instance in Richmond this past week-end, I got the same taxi cab with a soldier. Before we had gone six blocks, he had blurted out that he was an M. P. in the meantime which didn't make him happy. There wasn't any question as to what I should say or do. All I COULD do was sit and listen. I did manage to slip in the remark that most of the men from around here were in the 29th Division, 16th Infantry. From then on I shown in reflected glory. There were no better outfits, he said emphatically, not even his own.

On the bus coming home, there was a soldier who had had his left hand amputated. I talked with him awhile and would not have thought of commenting on the hand any more than if I saw a civilian, who had a similar loss, unless I was invited to do so. He invited a discussion all right. In fact it would have been difficult to avoid it had I wanted to, which I didn't. Why ignore a subject which was interesting to both of us. He started it off by telling me that his left hand kept itching, but when he reached down to scratch it, it wasn't there. From then on we had a most engrossing discussion of amputated limbs in general and his in particular, including the use of all the new artificial arms, hands and legs that have been perfected.

And that's the way it would be in nine cases out of ten, I think, if the propaganda boys would just leave us alone.

Yours truly,
PRINTER'S DEVIL

Corporal Saunders Serving in Philippines

FIFTH AIR FORCE, PHILIPPINE ISLANDS—Corporal Joseph S. Saunders, son of Mrs. W. A. Saunders, 1608, 8th St. s. e., Roanoke, has taken part in the Philippine campaign since the invasion on Leyte.

Now stationed at an advanced fifth air force base with the 317th troop carrier group "Jungle Skippers," the corporal is a machine in the transportation section that services the C-47 planes used to carry troops and supplies to battle areas. Entering the army in October 1942, he departed for overseas in December of the same year. Now in his third year of foreign service, he is authorized to wear the Asiatic-Pacific theatre ribbon with battle stars for the Papuan, New Guinea and Philippine liberation campaigns and the Good Conduct Medal.

Two brothers are also in the service. Cpl. William R. with the artillery in Europe and S-Sgt. Hilary with the air forces in Missouri. Before entering the army, Saunders was employed by the Glenn L. Martin Co., and attended Moneta High School.

County Agent

Wheat Crop
Farmers in this county are harvesting wheat this week. The crop is unusually good except for a few farms where the crop was very early.

Hail Storm
A severe hail storm at 3:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon destroyed about 50 per cent of the crops on several farms in the McGhee store district on the southside. The storm covered a strip two miles wide and four miles long. Corn, tomatoes, tobacco and wheat were injured, the wheat being the worse loss since the other crops can be replanted. The tobacco was practically ruined.

The following farmers were among those in the wake of the storm: Jesse McWalker, Will Overstreet, Caleb Hurt, M. C. McGhee and Jim Skinnell.

Farm Movie.
The two men from the Department of Agriculture are still working on the farm movie which is being taken in Bedford county for the information of service men who plan to become farmers. It was thought that the film would be completed last week, but rainy weather held up the work and one or two of the scenes indoors had to be taken over.

CLUB MEETINGS NEXT WEEK
June 18: Hickory Grove H. D. Club.
June 19: Mt. Olivet H. D. Club.
June 20: Perrowville H. D. Club.
June: Longview H. D. Club.
June 22: Cifax H. D. Club.

Club Meetings Held
The Hunting Creek H. D. club met with Mrs. Vernon Tomlinson on June 1, with 10 members present. Blanks were distributed for the war bond and stamp sales report. Following a brief business session, Mrs. J. S. Douglas reported on the C.I. Joe pictures taken at the demonstration room. Mrs. Atkinson gave a talk on "Family Relationships," after which she tested pressure cookers for several of the club members. Refreshments were served by the hostess. —Mrs. J. P. Taylor, Reporter.

The Mt. Olivet H. D. club met with Mrs. Howard Holden on May 16, with 11 members and three visitors present. Mrs. Wiam Holden and Mrs. Key Phelps gave an account of the county advisory board meeting. One especially interesting item of this report pertained to the use of the money raised by the state dues. The ambulance bought by the demonstration clubs of the state has been equipped and is now in service in some war area. Subjects for next year's demonstration will be discussed at the June meeting. The council recommended that the president of the club be elected in August so she will become familiar with her work before taking over her job in December. The district agent suggested taking up consumer education in expenditures so money will not be wasted. Our club will buy the citizenship handbook. Mrs. St. Clair gave a very worthwhile health demonstration showing benefits of medical care are not equalized among the farm folk particularly. This should be remedied through the county welfare Department taking care of some cases. Doctors as a rule are very generous with their services, but a sizeable portion of Virginia folk fail to get adequate care. The program recommended is as follows: (1) Use our power as a group to influence the committee appointed by Governor Darden to make a study of health conditions in Virginia, (2) health centers should be established in all communities. Only one-fourth of Virginia rural school children meet the 5-point health goal. More hospitals is rural Virginia's greatest need now. Our leaders gave a very helpful demonstration on ironing. Next meeting will be with Mrs. Willie Gillaspie, June 19.—Mrs. Eleanor Overstreet, Reporter.

The Bellevue H. D. club met on June 13, with Mrs. Kemper Knight. Eleven members and five visitors were present. Mrs. W. T. Murray, president, presided. The club voted to pay $1.60, as the club's part of the expenses, for the health agent given at Brookhill. Vote was also taken regarding the monthly announcement of the meetings, and it was decided to hold a miscellaneous auction sale in August, each member to bring an article to sell to raise money for the cards. Mrs. Atkinson and Mrs. Elliott reported on the planning meeting held in Bedford and the plans were discussed. A number of needs for the club were discussed and listed to take to the meeting in the fall. A social hour followed and Mrs. Lafon entertained with a reading. Pollyanna birthday gifts were distributed and we adjourned to meet in July with Mrs. L. T. and Miss Alma Lankford.—Mrs. H. T. Elliott, Reporter.

Accept Summer Work At Holiday Lake

Miss Morcelle Coffey, of Forest, and Miss Maxine Burks, of Amherst, will leave June 18 for Holiday Lake 4-H Club Camp at Appomattox. They will spend the biggest part of the summer there, directing recreation and musical activities for 4-H club girls and boys. Club members throughout the counties of the state will attend this camp up until July 28. It is believed there will be a large enrollment each week. Misses Coffey and Burks have been in 4-H club work for many years and both have had experience in recreation and music in summer camps, including Holiday Lake, Blacksburg, State Short Course, Hampden-Sidney College, Camp Ruthers, Amestown and others. They were recommended and chosen by different County Home agents as well as Gordon A. Elcan, State Boys' Agent of Blacksburg.

Montvale Man is Awarded Bronze Star

WITH SIXTH INFANTRY DIVISION ON LUZON—Private First Class Macon D. Gray, son of Mrs. Mary Newman Gray, of Montvale,

Va., has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal by the commanding general of the 6th Infantry Division for heroism in action against the Japanese at Bayanbayan, Luzon, P. I., on March 19. When an enemy counterattack was launched against his company's position, Gray cautioned his comrades to hold their fire until the Japs had advanced within twenty yards of his position at which time they opened fire and by the element of surprise, repulsed the counterattack.

13 Youths Involved In Housebreaking

Many Valuables Stolen From Johnston Home on North Street

Mrs. Charles W. Byrd, her daughter, Mrs. Edna Shank and Sergeant Shank returned to Bedford on Monday, June 18, and found that their home on North street had been completely ransacked. None of the family had lived in the house for a number of years, but furniture, clothing, silver and other valuables were stored here.

Deputy Sheriff Dillard Shields and State Officer Gordon Coleman were requested by W. R. Saunders, commonwealth's attorney, to investigate the case. They were assisted by Deputy Claude Ruff. By Tuesday night they had rounded up 13 youths between the ages of nine and 16, all of whom confessed to having been in the house and stolen property. Trunks and bureau drawers were pried open and many valuables were taken from the house and buried in the yard outside, so that they could be gotten later. A 410 gauge shot gun, 38 special coil revolver, 22 rifle, shot gun shells, wrist watch, pocket watch and an assortment of miscellaneous jewelry were retrieved by the officers from the boys, who dug them out of various hiding places. There were many articles missing, however, which had been lost or disposed of. The boys confessed to having buried a box of coins near the Rubatex plant but said that someone had found the hiding place and stolen the already once-stolen property.

The thieves had evidently been taking place for more than a year. The town police had been notified by neighbors that the house had been broken into on several occasions and Chief of Police Wingfield even went to the house once and saw that it had been broken into and had the doors nailed up. However, the culprits were not detected until the county officers, together with State Officer Coleman were called in and then the case was solved within one day's time.

One of the officers investigating said that the house looked as though "a hurricane struck it." Luggage was torn open, clothes and shoes were strewn about, silverware, gold wedding ring, engagement ring, 14-karat watch chain, pair of gold finger rings, silver spur, Meerschaum pipe, lot of old drop leaf table, painted green washstand, metal box and fishing equipment, antique bedspread, a quart 40-year-old brandy, 12-inch binoculars, Spanish shawl, valuable papers, new white shirts.

There is probably a lot of other silverware and also personal property belonging to Major S. A. Johnston and Mrs. Gwendolyn Rucker, it was stated.

Two Cases Heard By Trial Justice

On June 16 Trial Justice J. Moorhead Johnson tried Lewis Coff and B. J. Bue, both of Bedford, Rte. 5, $3.00 each for having in their possession unlicensed dogs.

Monday, June 18, Fred Q. Butler entered a plea of guilty to the charge of rape, when his case was heard by the court to life imprisonment.

Testimony showed that on May 10 the Negro alighted from the same bus as the woman, Mrs. Frankie W. Watson in High Point, N. C., on June 15. The cause of the death was not stated in the message from the War Department.

In addition to his parents, and wife, he is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. William W. Berry, Mrs. Cline Toney, Roanoke, Sd. Arnold B. Watson, somewhere in Iceland; Lieut. R. Sherman Watson, somewhere in Germany; and the following brothers-in-law in service: Sgt. G. Cline Toney, recently returned from England; Sgt. Aubrey L. Inge, in European theatre of operations; and William G. Padgett, S. F. 3-c, in Pacific area.

In addition to his parents, and wife, he is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. William W. Berry, Mrs. Cline Toney, Roanoke, Sd. Arnold B. Watson, somewhere in Iceland; Lieut. R. Inge, in European theatre of operations; and William G. Padgett, S. F. 3-c, in Pacific area.

He entered service on April 20, 1943, received his training in Louisiana, and went overseas in September, 1943. The last letter from him was dated June 9, and was received June 16. A graduate of New London Academy near Forest, he was employed at High Point, N. C., prior to entering service.

Bedford Lagging in Sale of "E" Bonds

Local Junior Auxiliary of Women's Division Makes Good Showing

Bedford is still lagging behind the average in other counties in bond sales to individuals. E. Bond sales amounted to $159,533.75 on June 16, with a quota of $330,000 to be reached by July 7; other bonds to individuals amounted to $43,000 with a quota of $55,000.

Nearly one half the job remains to be done in about one fourth the time in Bedford county's seventh war loan campaign.

The Junior Auxiliary of the Women's Division of the War Finance Committee of Bedford County totals over $10,000 in bond sales the first four and a half days. Tables are set up near Jones Drug Store during the day, and at Liberty Theatre at night.

Miss Marie English is chairman of this group, with Miss Dorothy Overstreet as co-chairman, and the other workers are as follows: Ann Arlen Anderson, Annabelle Arthur, Sarah Virginia Carter, June de Sousa, Anne Gills, Mary Gills, Mary Stewart Gills, Oanne Hash, Nellie Hatcher, Betty Bonnell, Helen Hicks, Mary Garland Holland, Barbara Johnson, Annette Keeler, Shirley Lewis, Mary Ann Mooreman, Betty Ann McGhee, Marie McKeever, Eunice Moore, Virginia Scott.

Bedford has the first Junior Auxiliary in the State of Virginia. Mrs. Sloan, state chairman of the Women's Division of the War Finance Committee, has commended Mrs. Bower for its organization and expressed the hope that other counties will follow Bedford's example in making use of the enthusiasm and willingness of these young people.

Mrs. Irvin Whitehead, district chairman of the Women's Division, has been in Bedford this week to confer with Mrs. Bower, and she also is much interested in Bedford's Junior Auxiliary.

Farm Wages Reach New High; Food Situation Grows Worse

The wages paid hired farm labor in the United States are the highest in 78 years of records, and about 10 per cent above a year ago. In Virginia the daily wage of farm labor is reported to be $3.35 without board, and $2.50 with board. The demand for farm labor in Virginia is estimated to be about three times the available supply.

The present strong demand for farm products will likely be maintained for another year. It should be remembered that anything can and may happen now. The only certainty for some months to come is in an increasing amount of uncertainty. To the extent that reconversion from the war effort to a peace-time economy causes unexpected shocks in agriculture and industry, the uncertainty will be greater than can now be foreseen. For this reason, it seems wise to be very conservative when extending credit to farmers. Consequently, the uncertainty will be greater when lending for the purchase of things which show a slow capital turnover, such as breeding stock and farm real estate.

The food situation will be determined largely by the weather during the remainder of his growing season. With a record of extremely good growing seasons for the past eight years, the odds against a continuation of favorable weather are high. Those persons who relax their efforts to produce victory gardens because of winning patriotism may have many regrets this winter.

Prices of farm products dropped slightly last month, three points

37 millimeter anti-tank gun shown blasting away at a strong Jap machine gun emplacement on Okinawa, will be demonstrated by overseas combat veterans at the "Rockets from Radford" army show.

Gen. Buckner Killed on Okinawa; Progress Made on Luzon, Borneo

On all fronts the war is going heavily against Japan and the increasing number of Japanese surrenders is taken as a sign that their soldiers' morale is beginning to sag. On Okinawa nearly 2,000 enemy troops have been captured. The unprecedented large number, but the garrison as a whole, or what is left of it, is still fighting with traditional fanaticism. The few thousand Japs remaining alive on the island have been driven to the extreme southern tip and Admiral Nimitz reports that many of them are leaping from high cliffs into the sea rather than surrender. Complete subjugation of the strategic island is expected within a few days. The number of Japanese killed on the island has climbed above 80,000.

The Americans sustained a heavy loss Monday when General Simon B. Buckner, commander of all American forces on the island, was killed by an enemy shell while on a tour of the front lines. He was watching the Eighth Marine Division rip through the last lines of organized resistance when he met his death. He had been in the command of the island since the first army commander to be killed in the war. He was buried Tuesday in the cemetery alongside several thousands of fighting men who have lost their lives battling for the island.

Troops under command of General MacArthur are making satisfactory progress on two widely separated fronts—the northern Luzon and the other on Borneo. An all-out drive is under way to clean up the last big pocket of Japanese on Luzon and important gains have been made during the week. On Borneo the Australians have reached the Toutingo fields, 35 miles down the coast from their point of landing. The Japanese put the torch to the island's rich petroleum wells before retreating, and the smoke billowing into the sky could be seen from a distance of 75 miles. Conquest of the island, off the east coast of Borneo, where landings were made more than a month ago, has been completed, and Allied troops have made another land on the north coast of Borneo.

Chinese troops, driving up the east coast from Foochow, have captured the big port of Wenchow.

below the preceding month and six points above a year ago. The parity index remained unchanged. Farm prices of poultry and eggs were higher in May than for the same month in any year since 1920. Farm real estate activity is still contributing a lion's share to the inflation spiral. Small tracts are receiving increasing attention and this will likely be more important as war workers return to permanent jobs. Some farms are being subdivided and sold at fabulous prices. Many hasty buyers are showing very poor judgment in selecting locations. Probably two of men's most crucial decisions in life are whom he will ask to live with him and where he will ask her to live. These are especially applicable to those who desire to farm. (Prepared in the Department of Agricultural Economics at V. P. I. by Harry M. Love, professor of farm finance.)

Army Show to Stop In Bedford June 28

War Heroes Stress Need of Bonds and War Plant Workers

The war heroes who will be here next Thursday night, June 28, are participating voluntarily in the army show in order to step up the war bond drive and the recruitment of the many construction workers needed to complete the Radford Ordnance works plant. They know the need of a steady supply of munitions for our troops fighting in the Pacific combat zone.

The Chamber of Commerce will have a war bond auction on the Saturday following the army show, June 30, to give further impetus to the sale of "E" bonds which is reported to be lagging in this county. The auction will be held at 7:30 p. m. on the courthouse steps. Donations are requested and can be left at the People's Furniture store.

Playground in Bedford is Open

Monday, June 18, 1945, will be a red letter day for the Bedford Recreation Association and the children of the Town of Bedford.

The playground was opened to the young people of the community, and a willing staff of three were ready to help them enjoy themselves with baseball, volleyball and softball. C. T. Woodhead, Charles Lamphere and Miss L. J. Parker are the personnel and it is expected that volunteer assistance will be on hand. The playground is intended to take care of all ages, and the play and recreation needs of those using the facilities offered them. A "Juke Box" has been placed in the gymnasium and the swing and slide crowd will not doubt give it a heavy workout. The juke box operates without nickels and will be available until late enough. A sandbox in a shady place with swings made to measure for sandbox users will soon be erected. There will be separate swings for the older children. There will be all kinds of music for all ages and all kinds of dancing, folk dancing, square dancing and modern dancing.

A good many citizens of Bedford have worked so that the children of Bedford can play. The Town Council and the School Board have given every cooperation. It is now up to the parents and the boys and girls of Bedford to make it a success. There can be no doubt that healthy play with the guidance of competent people will do much for the young people, giving them a sense of sportsmanship, companionship and responsibility to one another.

There will be a dance at the gym for the Juniors on Friday, June 22. Music from the Juke Box; starts 8 p. m.

To The Personal Representatives, Heirs, and Devisees of Michael Angelo Hurley:

You are hereby notified that on the 8th day of December, 1941, at a sale of land for the non-payment of delinquent taxes held by the Treasurer of Bedford County, Virginia, I purchased two certain lots or parcels of land, assessed for taxation on the Commissioner of Revenue's Books of Bedford County for the year 1939, page 278, lines 11 and 12 in the name of Hurley, Michael & Angello Est. and described as Pt. Our Quota in the 7th War Loan is $565,000

Can we make it? We'll tell the world we can!

Does that figure sound big, neighbor? Well, those Super-forts that are plastering Japan are big—and cost plenty. Battleships are big—and cost millions. The job our fighting men are doing is big—and the cost is staggering.

MEMORIAL
In memory of our darling baby, Willford Cornelius Brown, who left us for the flower garden of God, two years ago, June 15, 1943:

In our minds we see you,
Up in that Heavenly Home,
And we know that you are a flower
In the garden near God's throne.

Days of sadness still come over us,
Tears of sorrow will always flow;
But sweet memories keep you near us.

Yet we know God loved you so.
In that beautiful somewhere, someday we hope to join you,
There in God's flower garden above,
Where we can clasp our arms around you,
With God forever in His Kingdom of love.

—His parents, Cornelia and Clay-tor Brown.

Serving on LCI In Pacific War Zone

Harry Lee Nester, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Nester, of Thaxton, is now serving aboard an LCI Gunboat in the Pacific war zone. Nester, now a Coxswain, aboard his ship, attended Montvale high school before entering the service. He has now participated in seven invasions: Leyte, Lingayen and Nasugby in the Philippines, Okinawa, Ie Shima and two small islands in the Ryukyus, between Formosa and Japan. (It was at Ie Shima that famed war correspondents Ernie Pyle lost his life.) The mission of the LCI Gunboat is to furnish close in fire support to the assault waves, which they do with rockets and gunfire.

Nester had the good fortune to run into his older brother, Pfc. Patrick J. Nester, U. S. Army, in Hollandia, New Guinea and again at Leyte, Philippines.

LETTER FROM CHAPLAIN

The following is a letter to Mrs. J. D. Arthur from her son, Chaplain, J. W. Arthur:

Another Mother's Day has rolled around and I find myself very tired but determined to write you. There are so many things that try to prevent our writing.

I have been thinking a great deal today about what the day means and just what our mothers mean to us. Today I preached to about 2,000 men about their obligations to their mothers. In the talk I tried to tell them that where home is there is honor. That honor is the one thing a man must do if he is to fulfill the full use of life. From that thought I tried to tell the men that their suffering in the service could not compare with the suffering and praying that our mothers were doing for our safety.

For your hours of toil and suffering I am very grateful today and every day. The nights have never been too cold or dark for you not to do for me the things that I needed in the days of my childhood. I am also very grateful that you taught me to be frugal and saving with my money and other things. We probably at times thought you were too tight with us, but not so, all of it has made all of us appreciate many things that we could not have otherwise appreciated.

Probably the greatest thing you ever taught us was the difference between right and wrong. You did not do it in lectures, but in practice we learned that evil would always come home to us. The honor you taught us of womanhood has never to this day departed. In a time of looseness like that, we know now, numerous are the times when our characters could be stained with evil if there were not some one to remember who had taught us better. In the sermon today when I had tried prayerfully to get every boy to honor and write his mother, a pleasant thing happened in my office tonight. A young man about 21 came in and said he heard me today and that what I said struck home and that he wanted to accept Christ right then and be baptized tomorrow and have me send his name home to his mother who is a Christian that she may take it to the home church and ask that he be accepted, even though we are thousands of miles from home and our churches. That proves to me what a Christian mother does mean to a boy, especially when he is looking death and suffering in the face. The day has been a hard but very happy one for me.

Now that it is getting late and I am tired I just want to say that I am grateful to you for what you really are as well as what you have been to me. If it is God's kind will may we be enabled to be together before too long. And too may His grace and love given you strength, health, and happiness in your evening of life. May God bless you and Papa today and always.

Your son,
JIM

THE Store that Stood the Test of Time!

Don't Worry About Us!

We'll do it!

THEY tell us that the fat salvage problem has got to be licked in the small cities, the towns and on the farms.
Our country has to have one hundred million more pounds of used fats this year. And we're the people who must save it. We've rolled up our sleeves. We'll save every drop and bit possible . . . and keep doing it till the last Jap is licked.

HOW TO DO IT: Save all used fats in a tin can. Keep it handy to the stove. Scrape your broilers and roasting pans, skim soups and gravies. Keep meat trimmings and table scraps in a bowl. Melt them down when your oven's going, add the liquid fat to the salvage can. Take can to your butcher as soon as it's full. He will give you four cents and two red points for every pound. Your County Agent or Home Demonstration Agent can give you full particulars.

State Forester Says Reduction in Number of Fires

The total number of forest and brush fires in the state this year were reduced by nearly one-fourth the number occurring normally, State Forester George W. Dean reported this week. He ascribed this reduction to the united effort of individuals and numerous organizations throughout the Commonwealth who participated in the campaign of fighting fires by preventing them.

The state forester said that this spring was one of the most critical in Virginia from the standpoint of forest fires. The warm and dry weather and the heavy frosts which killed early leaves created a fire hazard over large areas, particularly in the eastern section.

Pfc. Norman Brown, who has been in France, was last heard from somewhere in Germany. His brother, Pfc. Marvin Brown, has been serving in Belgium and Germany. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown, Blue Ridge.

Notice to Farm Slaughterers

Farm slaughterers are reminded of the July 1 deadline for registration.

All farmers who slaughter, or have slaughtered for them, as much as 400 pounds a year, but less than 6,000 pounds, must apply for a slaughtering permit by July 1, or they will be prohibited from such slaughter for the balance of the year.

Permits may be obtained from the local War Price and Rationing Board. The permit entitles the farmer to do the same amount of slaughtering as in the corresponding period last year.

The OPA also stresses the fact that farmers who sell meat must collect ration points according to the official point chart provided by the Board, and must agree to hold all prices within the legal ceilings.

Bedford Farmers Sell Their Wool

Approximately sixty Bedford and Botetourt farmers assembled their wool in Bedford Wednesday and sold it through the United Wool Growers Association of Harrisonburg. The local Cooperative Wool Pool handled the assembling and shipping of this wool. Approximately 9,200 pounds of wool was shipped, about 7,000 pounds of this was Bedford County wool. This shows a tremendous decrease in sheep raising for the past twelve years. At one time the pool handled around 12,000 pounds of Bedford county wool. The pool handles practically 100 per cent of Bedford's wool and this shows a decrease of nearly 50 per cent in 12 years. Several farmers have gone out of the sheep business during the past twelve months and most of the decrease was due to dogs. Growers were paid 50 cents a pound for clean tied wool and all the wool shipped this year was tied. Growers were paid $4,597.81 as their first advance on their wool.

FACE SIMPLE DIET

The war has finally driven home to Americans, especially city and town dwellers, that they are no longer the world's best eaters. Further, it is daily being impressed upon them that in order to save some millions of other people from starvation, they will probably have to go upon an even more simple and, in some instances, unsavory diet than they are enjoying now. The point value of many staple foods is steadily rising, this being done to halt their consumption. Many articles that used to form a part of the average family's daily diet are getting extremely scarce and some have about disappeared from the markets.

Meat stores all over the nation are empty a good part of the time and the public has had to fall back upon fish. Butter and other fats, where they are still available, call for so many points the housewife cannot afford to buy unless she wants to deprive herself of other articles equally necessary. Washington frankly states that the situation is not going to get any better, and the probabilities are it will get worse before the war is over. That is the picture for 1945, at least while we are fighting Japan and the need exists to share what we have with others who are far worse off than ourselves. Here is the picture presented by the Agricultural department and other authorities on the situation:

1. Only a few sections in America—in the far west—have anything like normal supplies of meat. Poultry is rapidly disappearing. The strain on the egg supply is being felt. Many places don't have the commonest and cheapest forms of meat, and in the big centers of population stores are being forced out of business.

2. Germany faces possible famine next winter; the Balkans are on an extremely lean diet; Holland, Norway, Finland and Italy must have help if they are to escape actual starvation; the French and Belgians are solving their problem pretty well and can weather the situation with only a little help. Among the European nations only Sweden, Denmark and Spain are without a food crisis.

The Agricultural department, however, gives the assurance that there will be enough essential foods to maintain a good diet, but that diet will be plain, at least for another six months. There is no cause for alarm, but the people must reconcile themselves to doing without, because that is the only alternative to depriving people of the old world of food necessary to sustain life. We do not believe many Americans will want to live on the fat of the land while others starve.

A benefactor has to be careful when with persons he has helped. Since they feel a slight inferiority, they are on the alert to detect his faults or weaknesses in order to restore their confidence.

The modern girl dresses to kill—and cooks the same way.

SPEAKING OF WRECKS

It was not strange that hundreds of people should have been attracted to the scene of the railway wreck here early last week. Ever since the dawn of the railroad era, which, incidentally, dates back only a little more than 100 years, such events have exerted an irresistible drawing power. Before automobiles came into being people would walk many miles to visit scenes of railway wrecks. There was, and is, something about a pile of twisted steel, battered cars, torn up tracks, which fascinates the average human being. It is even more intriguing to watch the wrecking crews clean up the mess and restore order.

In looking over the throng of people which gathered at the scene of last week's wreck it dawned upon us that for most of them of middle age and downward it was a brand new experience. People in this class have been born and reared in an almost wreckless age. Possibly some of them had seen a derailed engine or a few cars off the track, but nothing to compare with the mass of wreckage spread before their gaze. The rarity of such disasters serves as a reminder of the wonderful strides the railways have made in the past half century in promoting safety and in the improvement of rolling stocks and the rights of way over which the commerce of the nation is carried from place to place.

During the first half century of railroading practically all traffic was over single lines of track and safety of the trains and their crews was guarded solely by telegraph. Every few miles there was a siding and telegraph office. Train crews received orders from the central office as to how they were to proceed—take a siding at a certain point to allow a train going in the opposite direction to pass. Head-on collisions resulted when orders became confused, as they quite frequently did. There was no automatic signaling system to warn of something on the tracks a mile or two ahead, and engineers were never absolutely certain that the right of way was clear. Railroading in those days was a hazardous occupation. Incidentally, the wreck here last week resulted solely from the fact that the automatic signals in this section were not in operation at the time.

Another factor in promoting greater safety on our railways is the ever active campaign conducted by all roads to instill into the minds of all employees the basic rules of safety. The very nature of the railroading business makes total elimination of accidents impossible, but they have been reduced to the minimum by many roads until serious wrecks and fatalities are no longer commonplace, as they were years ago. The Norfolk & Western has been a pioneer in this campaign for safety and in the past dozen years has several times won the national award and is always near the top in the list of railway systems having the best safety records.

While on the general subject of wrecks it occurs to us that probably very few residents of this county, outside the oldtimers, are aware of the fact that one of the most disastrous accidents in the history of American railroading occurred in this county and is commonly referred to as the "Thaxton Wreck." High water, resulting from an unprecedented rainfall, washed a fill from under the tracks a mile or so west of Thaxton—at Bocek's crossing, we believe—and an eastbound passenger train plunged into the hole in the darkness of early morning. Few crewmen or passengers escaped death, and while the number losing their lives was never accurately known, the lowest estimate placed it at sixty. That was in the spring of 1889, the same year as the famous Johnstown, Penn., disaster, in which thousands were drowned when an earthen dam went out and flooded the city.

To avoid criticism. Do nothing. Say nothing. Be nothing.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I did not know just what I was starting when I printed the story of the rag found in the coffee pot by the ladies that the Boss invited partake of his cooking some years ago. The Boss answered it, as you know, stating that he was being grossly maligned and that the whole story originated from my informant's jealousy because his cake won first prize over hers in a cooking contest. My informant is not one to take this lying down, however, and I am now in receipt of a letter from her giving further particulars of those bygone days. The feud is on.

I was reluctant as I am to take part in a verbal controversy of this nature, I do not feel that I can remain silent under the barrage of false accusations with which I was assailed last week. I owe it to myself to tell the whole truth of that sad affair, although it seems a pity to stir up such bitter memories.

"The truth of the matter is that among the ladies whom the Boss" invited to supper on the night we poured coffee-stewed with a dishrag was his "lady friend," and the whole affair was given for nothing less than to impress her. Naturally the dishrag episode killed any interest in them both and desired their happiness, I did what I could to patch the affair up. To counteract the effect of the dishrag, I arranged for the cake contest about which the Boss bragged so unseemingly in his reply last week, and furthermore "fixed" the judges so that he would be winner of first prize. This way, I thought, the disastrous results of the dishrag in the coffee would be overcome and the Boss and his Lady Friend would once more be blissfully united.

"Everything worked out to perfection. The Boss won (as he boasted) the first prize. His Lady Friend was properly impressed and appeared more than willing to forgive and forget the dishrag in the coffee pot. Then came something for which I was unprepared and therefore could not prevent. In the excess of his joy and pride in his prize winning cake and also in having thus won back his Lady Friend's affections, the Boss insisted upon cutting the cake and passing it around. That perhaps would not have been completely disastrous had he not also insisted upon cutting MY cake as well in order that we might see the contrast between the two. The contrast was there, all right, so much so that the Lady Friend knew immediately that only a judge who had been "fixed" could possibly have decided in favor of the cake made for the blind for the entire duplicity not only upon him, but me as well. The affair was irrevocably shattered. The proof of the pudding lies in the fact that he is still a bachelor.

"As for me I was caught in the middle for as you could plainly see from the bitter remarks he printed last week, none to this day has he forgiven me although my intentions were only to be helpful. It's a sad case indeed."

And where do we go from here, I wonder?

Yours truly,
PRINTER'S DEVIL

When the war is won, our aim will be to extend telephone service to every farm family that wants it.

New devices and methods are in the picture. For example, stronger wire that requires fewer poles and is more resistant to storms, the use of power lines to transmit telephone conversations, and radiotelephones for remote sections.

Goode Man Battles For Moder River

6th ARMY GROUP, GERMANY
—First 36th "Texas" Division troops on German soil were doughboys of the 141st Infantry Regiment who, in 10 days, battered the Wehrmacht from strong positions along the Moder River through the Siegfried Line. Pfc. Joseph E. Fellers, of Goode, is a member of this regiment.

Engaged in bitter house-to-house fighting in the town of Hagenau, these U. S. Seventh Army infantrymen broke out from a small bridgehead across the Moder, clashed with German rearguards and finally knocked out 35 pillboxes and forts in cutting through the Siegfried Line.

The doughboys, commanded by Col. Charles H. Owens, of Wallace, Idaho, have left landmarks to a defeated Reich from Salerno, Italy, to the Rhine in Germany in 353 days of conflict with the enemy. Among the most veteran infantrymen in General Jacob L. Dever's 6th Army Group, they captured more than 6,000 Germans in France alone. Several Nazi leaders were added to their bag in Austria.

They were the first Americans to assault now-crumpled Fortress Europe with the Salerno landings and later fought in the Rapido River's famous "Battle of Guts" below Cassino. The mountain city of Velletri fell to them when they took part in the spectacular 38th Division infiltration maneuver that opened the gates to Rome.

Spearheading a beach landing in Southern France, they struck hard to aid in the destruction of the German 19th Army near Montolmar. Other battles included rugged warfare in the Vosges Mountains, the defense of Colmar passes, and combat against Germans encamped in Maginot Line fortresses near Bitch.

Forest Man is in Hospital Unit

WITH THE 15th UNITED STATES ARMY IN GERMANY—Their task of caring for wounded Americans having tapered off since the guns ceased firing, hundreds of doctors, nurses and medical troops of the American army are today in Germany trying to preserve life in the bodies of those who were victims of the Hitler slave and prison system.

Typical of the hospital organizations which have switched their attention from the care of wounded Americans to the saving of lives of Hitler victims is the 7th Convalescent Hospital, a veteran unit on the ETO medical front. The hospital is now a part of Lieutenant General Leonard T. Gerow's 15th United States Army. Among the officers and men on the staff is Pfc. James L. Stinnette, of Forest, Route 1.

Today the hospital unit, at its location in Germany, has approximately 1,000 patients of whom less than 100 are American soldiers. The rest are victims of Hitler, the so-called "Displaced Persons" who, imported by the thousands as German slave laborers, have now become the charges of the American occupation forces until such times as they can be sent back to their homes in Russia, Poland, France, Belgium and other European nations. Many, according to the American doctors, will never see home. Others they will be able to save.

The so-called "convalescent hospital" is ideally equipped to administer to the needs of these persons, most of whom are suffering from the extreme results of over-work, starvation, tuberculosis, typhus and other ills which are characteristic

In loving remembrance of Master Sergeant John Dean who gave his life in St. Lo, France, June 17, 1944.

Just one year ago today God called you to come home; It was a call to obey Leaving those you love alone.

Not that you wanted to go But to a soldier duty is must. There in the streets of St. Lo You gave God your life in trust.

You gave all that you had To make this land of ours free; Though you were but a lad, A finer soldier could not be.

MEMORIAL
In sad memory of our dear husband and father, Thomas W. Haynes, who departed this life one year ago today, June 15, 1944.

One long year of sad memories Of the one we loved so dear, We have no hours without grief and pain.

No nights without a tear, You made a home for us And now your voice is still, You left a chair by the fireside Which never can be filled.

Just sleep and rest a while dear father While on this earth we wait, We hope to all join together And enter the Golden Gate. Sadly missed by his wife and children.

Card of Thanks
We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our son and brother, Pfc. Herman R. Creasy, also, for the flowers and use of cars.—Mrs. Hester Creasy and family.

T-4 Claude J. Overstreet, of Indiantown Gap, Pa., spent the week-end at his home here. In addition to his promotion to sergeant, he has also been awarded the Good Conduct medal.

IN MEMORY
In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Elijah D. Scott on Father's Day, June 17, 1945.

Today brings sad memories Of a daddy gone away, For he is not here with us, As he was one year today.

And so this year on Father's Day Our hearts are very sad; Father's Day is not the same For we have lost our dad.

To those who have a daddy, Treat him with tender care For you'll never know how much you'll miss him.

Until you see his vacant chair, Sadly missed by his wife and children.

50 Nations Ratify World Peace Pact

President Truman Addresses Final Session of Conference

Following two months' work at the United Nations Conference in San Francisco, the representatives of 50 nations of the world Tuesday signed the charter of a new world organization for peace and understanding, and President Truman closed one of the great assemblies of history at the final session with an assurance that "you have created a great instrument for peace. The world must now use it," he added.

In a brief address to the final plenary session of the United Nations Conference, President Truman appealed to the delegates of 50 nations to make the charter a "living thing," and to seek its immediate ratification. He promised: "I shall send this charter to the United States Senate at once. I am sure that the overwhelming sentiment of the people of my country and of their representatives in the Senate is in favor of immediate ratification."

The first chapter of the charter sets forth the main objectives of the new world organization for peace, the remaining chapters of the historic document being given over to means and measures to be used in making it effective. The purposes and principles of the United Nations, as given in the first chapter, are:

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: To take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice the international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace;

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for the fundamental freedoms of all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion;

4. To be a center for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Modern Hotel May Be Built in Bedford

Bedford may have a modern hotel of 75 rooms, according to a news item in the Lynchburg News quoting E. M. Shaner, of Lynchburg, who owns the property upon which a hotel would be erected, between Main and Depot streets. He says a bus company expects to build a terminal in the rear of the hotel. If restrictions are lifted on building necessities the hotel may be built next year, Mr. Shaner says.

Lynchburg to Hold 4-H Dairy Show

Bedford Club Members Already Planning to Have Entries in Show

The Lynchburg Chamber of Commerce, through its Committee on Agriculture, has sponsored a 4-H Club Dairy Show, for prizes, not for sale, of calves, heifers and cows of all dairy breeds being developed by 4-H club boys and girls in Amherst, Appomattox, Bedford, Buckingham, Campbell, Charlotte, Cumberland, Nelson, Prince Edward and Fluvanna counties. This show will be held on or about August 31 at the Lynchburg municipal stadium and the stables on the premises.

Frank Overstreet, assistant county agent, who is on the committee of entries and registration for the show, states that at least 12 Bedford county 4-H club members are already planning to have entries in the show. There will be prize cash awards of $10 for the first place, $5 for second place and $3 for third place in each class.

Mr. Overstreet pointed out that the judging will be by the Danish system, which means each club member that has a worthy entry will win at least a small prize, since the entries will be divided into classes and every entry given a prize according to the class in which it is placed. The classes will include all the main dairy breeds, both registered and grade. No calves should be entered unless born prior to June 1, 1945. Other club members who wish to have entries in the show should contact Mr. Overstreet before July 10.

This is intended to be the first of a series of such shows to be held annually to stimulate the raising of better dairy cattle in the Lynchburg trade area. No commercial features other than the necessary furnishing of food and drink to those in attendance will be permitted. The whole interest of the show will center on the 4-H club boys and girls, the cattle which they present for judging and the program presented by these boys and girls and their instructors, the farm agents and home demonstration agents of their respective counties, it was stated.

Beetle Will Be Trapped in Bedford

G. T. French, state entomologist of Richmond, is setting traps in Bedford this month for the purpose of obtaining information on the occurrence and status of the beetle to aid in determining what control measures might be advisable. The traps will be kept in operation for 30 days. People in and around Bedford are urged to operate with these men so that this pest can be controlled before they get too widely distributed.

The adult beetle is about one-fourth inch long, colored green and brown with rows of white spots down each side of the body. It is a voracious feeder, causing great damage to fruit and foliage on apples, peach, cherry, grape, corn, soy beans, elm, rose and hollyhock. The county agent has specimens of this beetle and anyone who finds a beetle he is not familiar with, he can have it identified by bringing it to the county agent's office.

Thieves Break in Caleb Martin Home

Thieves broke into the Caleb Martin home on Longwood avenue, next to the Oakwood Service Station, Sunday morning between 12:00 midnight and 2:00 a. m. and stole about $200 worth of property. The bulk of the stolen property was clothing belonging to Mrs. Martin, but there were also towels, table clothes and other linens missing.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin were visiting friends at Montvale and did not get home until 2:00 a. m., at which time they found that the house had been entered. The front door was left unlocked, since another family lives upstairs, and the thieves just walked in.

State Trooper Gordon Coleman and Mason Freas and Frank Brown, town policemen, were called in and are investigating the case.

Bloody Okinawa Campaign Ends; Australians Take Oil Fields

The battle for Okinawa was officially declared ended last Thursday, but army and marine units are still engaged in mopping up small enemy groups and probably will be for several weeks, though there is no longer any organized resistance. The number of Japanese surrendering in the last stage of the battle was surprisingly large, and even more surprising is the fact that among them were many officers. The total through Tuesday was 8,696, exceeding the number in any previous operation by a wide margin. The island's population proved to be about 50 per cent stronger than the original estimate of from 60,000 to 80,000, in addition to those captured the Americans counted 101,853 dead enemy soldiers. The bodies of the Japanese commander and his chief of staff were found in shallow graves Tuesday, both having committed suicide after the emperor for failing to hold the island.

The battle for Okinawa was the bloodiest of the Pacific campaign, the number of American casualties on land, including killed, missing and wounded, being approximately 30,000, and the navy and air force both report the heaviest losses of the campaign. Sale of "E" Bonds Still Lagging Behind Quota for County

With the sale of "E" bonds still lagging in the county and the time growing short for the quota to be reached, the Bedford County Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a war bond auction to be held on Saturday, June 30, to boost the sales. The auction will take place on the courthouse steps at 7:30 p. m. and the people of the town and county are urged to give it all possible support.

There will be many valuable things to bid on, one grand prize being a bull, as in former auctions. Other articles to be sold for smaller war bond purchases will include homemade cakes.

The chamber of Commerce is confident that Bedford county will rise to the occasion and through this effort meet its quota of "E" bonds, which is $330,000. Only $180,522.90 "E" bond sales have been made to date, however. The quota on other individual sales has not been met, either, there having been $55,100 sales to date, with a quota of $85,000. Only the corporations have reached the goal, it was reported yesterday. The overall quota for the county is $565,000 in all types of bonds.

On Friday night, to give added impetus to the "E" bond sales, the Liberty Theatre is having another war bond premiere, "Hollywood Canteen," to which admission will be through the purchase of a war bond only.

Lieutenant Jarvis Back in States

15th ARMY AIR FORCE IN ITALY—After a tour of duty in Italy with the 15th AAF, First Lieutenant Harold W. Jarvis, 29, of 605 Peak St., Bedford, Va., bombardier on a B-24 Liberator Bomber, has returned to the United States for training and re-equipment, according to an announcement by Brig. Gen. Fay R. Upthegrove, of Olean, N. Y., his wing commander.

Since coming overseas, he has been assigned to the 456th Bombardment Group, commanded by Col. Thomas W. Stead, of Etowah, Tenn., a Liberator bomber group which has participated in numerous bombings of German-held targets throughout southern Europe and the Balkans, and one of the groups. Nazi leaders were referring to when they credited the group with the destruction of the Nazi underground.

The veteran unit is being returned to the States for a brief period of training and receipt of new equipment before being pumped into the battle against Japan. The training and additional equipment has been made necessary because of the changed tactical situations which ground and air men of the group will experience in the Pacific Theatre.

The group has flown 238 combat missions since entering the Mediterranean Theatre of Operations, having bombed such vital targets as Vienna, Austria; Wiesbaden, Germany; Munich, Germany; Ploesti, Roumania, coastal fortifications on southern France before D-Day; as well as numerous other targets. The group has dropped nearly 14,000 tons of bombs. Gunners destroyed 130 enemy airplanes, probably destroyed 53 and damaged 65 others.

The group has been authorized six battle participation stars, and was awarded the War Department Distinguished Unit Citation for its outstanding performance of duty in the Pacific Theatre. The group completed operations in the ETO with a perfect 100 per cent record. The group was based at Tarvisio Motor Transport Depot in northern Italy.

In all, the group bombed over 126 different targets, dropping nearly 14,000 tons of bombs. Gunners destroyed 130 enemy airplanes, probably destroyed 53 and damaged 65 others.

HELPING HANDS

The man with his "hand on the throttle," the conductor, the station agent, the track man — these are some of the folks who spell railroading to Mr. John Q. Public.

But behind the scenes, there are thousands of men and women who know little about driving locomotives, taking up tickets, keeping up track — but their work is vital to railroad operation. These are the office folks — the clerical forces with a special "Know How" in the varied and multitudinous paper work so necessary to keep the trains rolling day and night.

Theirs is the job of compiling and keeping an accurate, detailed record of everything the railroad does. They keep account of hundreds of thousands of shipments of freight and movements of passengers; of the millions of dollars that the railroad takes in and pays out; of thousands of purchases of railroad materials and supplies.

They check on the location of thousands of units of rolling stock; keep records of repairs; make up the pay rolls, issue vouchers, and so on and so on. But that isn't all. Governmental requirements must be complied with — a task that entails the keeping and filing of a multitude of forms and reports in connection with rulings and interpretations, investigations, bureaus and commissions.

The clerical employees of the Norfolk and Western Family, along with their co-workers, are keyed to the overall task of wartime railroading, and are successfully performing the biggest job in N. & W. history.

When final and complete Victory is won, this railroad and its employees, with unity of purpose and determination, will work to build a happier, more prosperous America and a sound and lasting peace.

CAMPAGNING FOR SAFETY

During the past ten years an average of approximately 40,000 Americans annually have met death through the wreckage of motor vehicles. The slaughter usually reaches its peak on July 4th, when from 400 to 600 people die on the nation's roads and streets. Pleas from many sources for a sane Fourth have failed to make the public safety conscious, and when the daily papers of July 5 recount the deaths of several hundred people on the previous day most of us will regard it as only the expected. It is a matter about which we have grown callous, are prone to regard it as no affair of ours if a lot of foolish people go out and get themselves killed.

The National Safety Council, with headquarters in Chicago, and 130 other national organizations, are conducting an extensive publicity campaign to make the observance of our greatest national holiday this year less costly in human life. Through every publicity agency within their command the American people are being urged to make a special effort to make the Fourth as free from accidents as possible. The result will be watched with a great deal of interest.

Ever since the advent of the motor car, the safety council, with branches in practically every locality, has been campaigning for a greater measure of safety on the nation's highways. Year in and year out it has sought to impress upon drivers the necessity of observing certain basic safety rules in handling cars and trucks. State and local units of government have enacted and sought to enforce laws designed to curb accidents on our roads and streets. Highway departments of all the states have progressively built to insure against accidents. Despite all this cooperative effort, the death toll has displayed a tendency to go higher each year. By some this is regarded as conclusive evidence that we face a condition that cannot be controlled and must, therefore, reconcile ourselves to acceptance of a certain number of fatalities each year. One has only to consider what the situation would be if no effort had been made by any of the agencies listed above to promote safety on our roads and streets. Had there been no preaching of the doctrine of safety, no restrictive laws, no safety rules in the building of the nation's network of improved roads the annual toll would be several times what it is.

We join with the National Safety Council and the supporting organizations for a sane observance of the Fourth this year. It would be a welcome and fitting tribute to the men in service risking their lives on foreign battlefields. It would evidence to them that we at home are so conscious of their danger that we take no chance of endangering our lives because to do so would hamper production of those things they need at the front. That in itself constitutes all the reason anyone should have for guarding against everything that might result in injury or death to himself or others.

But we should not rest with a special plea for a certain day. A solution of the problem must be found that will be effective on every day of the year. We do not believe this is impossible of attainment, though of course there is recognition of the fact that deaths from motor car wrecks cannot be wholly eliminated. The one effective remedy, in our judgment, is to be found, not in educational programs, not in laws prescribing punishment for those breaking the rules of safety, not in wider and straighter roads, though all of these have their place and use, but in the exercise of greater discretion as to who is to be allowed to sit in the driver's seat. Incompetence of one sort or another is at the bottom of most of the trouble. When people are killed in an automobile wreck we commonly refer to it as "accidental" death. That is the wrong word. Accident is not the cause except in rare instances. When wrecks, fatal or otherwise, occur the driver or drivers have erred in the handling of their car or cars. This error may result from drunkenness, inexperience, recklessness or natural inability to drive safely, but in any case it is human error. It is useless to hope for any great improvement in fatalities until the states act as a unit in weeding out these classes of drivers. If a railway engineer took his train out and sped up and down the tracks with the same disregard for safety displayed by so many people at the wheel of an automobile he would be immediately removed from the payroll of the road. The same rule the railways apply to their engineers must be applied by the states if the same measure of safety is to prevail on our streets and highways that the railroads have attained. There is, and never can be, any other solution to the problem.

WAR BONDS FOR EMERGENCIES

Too many farmers are keeping a large bank account just to be sure they will have cash to meet any emergency that might come along. Now it's good business to have liquid reserves to fall back on. But how much better it would be if these farmers would invest such funds in War Bonds.

Sixty days after issue a War Bond investment is just as liquid as a bank account. In any emergency bonds that have been held this long can be cashed at the bank just like a check. There is no delay. Redemption value is always as much or more than cost.

Now there is no reason for a farmer—or any person—keeping in cash or demand deposit any more money than is needed to conduct his ordinary business. All funds above this amount should be invested in War Bonds where the money will help win the war and draw interest.

Many a chap with a plump waistline swings himself into the day's activities more deftly than the average lean and lanky type. He has cultivated poise and balance.

EMPLOYMENT BILL DEFEATED

The Fair Employment Practices law was defeated, for the present at least, when the House Rules committee last week refused to send it to the floor of the House for a vote. This means that it will remain dead until some member of the committee changes his mind, which does not seem likely, or its supporters can override the committee by securing the signatures of a majority of the House membership. This also appears unlikely and no move in that direction is being made. The committee refused to report the bill despite support given the measure by President Truman. The bill sought to make permanent a rule regulating employment established by decree by the late President Roosevelt.

Not so strangely, we believe, the bill was opposed by many prominent Negro leaders, for the benefit of whose race it is supposed to be. They recognized the danger it held for their people and expressed the fear, well founded, that it was calculated to foster and intensify racial prejudice and would do a great deal more harm than good and defeat its own purpose by trying by enactment of law to break down any barrier that may exist between the two races.

It is our studied opinion that this fair employment practices proposal is strictly political in its nature, that its promoters have never deluded themselves that it could be enforced and never entertained the idea that any serious attempt would be made at enforcement should it get through Congress. It has the outward endorsement of leaders of both political parties and the truth is, both are bidding for the Negro vote, which holds the balance of power in a number of northern states.

Up to 1932 the Negro vote, both north and south, regularly went to the Republican candidate. By means of which the public is not aware, it swung overwhelmingly to the Democratic column in the year mentioned and the change played no inconsiderable part in the election of Roosevelt the first time he ran. In every election since that year, both parties have made strong bids for the Negro vote, the Democrats going the limit to hold it and the Republicans straining every nerve to regain that which they regard as rightly theirs. Each is trying to make the most attractive bid, with neither, in our opinion, caring very much for the Negro beyond his vote. This fair employment practices proposal is merely the last in the series of bids for Negro support and Democratic and Republican politicians are equally vociferous in urging its enactment into law. Their actions mark an all-time low in political trickery and deception.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

INTEGRITY IN VIRGINIA

Word that serious corruption has lately been unearthed in the Legislatures of New York and Michigan leads us to point out that this sort of thing has been unknown in the General Assembly of Virginia, certainly in this century. The Times-Dispatch, which frequently criticizes our State government and Legislature, is able to say, without smugness, that insofar as the honesty and integrity of its public servants is concerned, Virginia stands with the best of them.

In New York State "a grand jury merely chided the Legislature for what in private life would be called stealing and suggested that the practice be stopped," according to an editorial in the June National Municipal Review, while in Michigan "a grand jury indicted members of the State Legislature for bribery."

In Virginia there have been very few delinquencies in the past on the part of State officials, and among our hundreds of county officers there were some shortages before the present accounting system was installed. But the General Assembly has as clean a record as any legislature anywhere, insofar as we are acquainted with the facts.

This is the more remarkable when widespread reports as to legislatures in certain other States are considered. We have in mind a State where, according to common report, votes are bought and sold almost in view of the public. Persons who have an acquaintance with a good many legislatures in this part of the United States have said that the general level of ability, personality and character in the Virginia Assembly is higher than that which prevails in any of them.

What the explanation is, we do not know. We should like to believe that Virginians have a higher sense of public duty than citizens of other States, and more discrimination in choosing their representatives in the Legislature. The Virginia Democratic machine must be given part of the credit for this condition, since it is a major factor in the selection of most Virginia lawmakers. At all events, it is indisputable that Virginians do select men of substance and integrity for elective State offices, a fact for which all of us can be thankful.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

NOW FOR THE FINAL HEAVE!

Did you see that photograph the other day of a Japanese soldier, with his arms upraised, about to behead a blind-folded Allied flyer, while a group of grinning Japs stood in the background? Did you read the account given by Marine Private Edward A. Johnson, of New York City, of how he saw a marine lieutenant on Saipan who had been died by the Japs in the form of a cross and left to die? Johnson said: "His eyes were cut out, his fingers chopped off, and his belly was slit open and filled with sand. He was still alive when we got to him."

That, ladies and gentlemen, is the enemy we are fighting in the Pacific, the last enemy with whom we have to deal in this war. The Germans and the Italians have been liquidated, but the Japanese remain.

Those of us on the home front can do a great deal to hasten the final and utter defeat of that enemy. We can obey President Truman's injunction for work and more work, and we can also buy War Bonds in the great drive which opens today. Richmond and Virginia will do their part, as usual, but they will have to put forth greater effort than ever, for their E-Bond quota is over 60 per cent higher than last time. Such a quota cannot be achieved unless every Virginian does his or her utmost.

All together now, for the "final heave" which will overthrow Japan!—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The man who marries to have someone to tell his troubles to soon has plenty to talk about. It astounds us how much some people can write and say nothing.

In buying a horse and taking a wife, shut your eyes and throw yourself on the mercy of God.—Italian proverb.

Bedford Men in

Eighth Air Force

AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE STATION, ENGLAND.—Among the 185,000 men and women of the Eighth Air Force congratulated after VE-Day by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, their commander, were several from Bedford area, including 2nd Lt. John E. Catlin, 786 Peaks St., Bedford; Technical Sgt. George C. Lowry, II, of Bedford; Sgt. Paul J. Egolf, of Bedford; and Cpl. John R. Franklin of Montvale.

"I wish to extend my personal congratulations and my heartfelt appreciation to every one of you for the magnificent job you have done," Gen. Doolittle said in a message to all personnel.

"Each of you," he continued, "may be proud of your part in the defeat of Germany. I am proud of you. The world is proud of you." The Eighth Air Force was the world's mightiest strategic bombing force. Its personnel of 185,000 was the largest of 12 infantry divisions, and it could send 21,000 airmen in 2,000 four-engine bombers and 1,000 fighters over Germany at one time, a combat effort possible only through the support of tens of thousands of non-flying specialists.

It has been announced that the Eighth Air Force is now being transferred to the Pacific.

IN MEMORY

In memory of our grandfather Zachary T. Ellis who left us five years ago June 28, 1940.

Today brings sad memories of a loved one gone to rest. A happy home we once enjoyed. How sweet the memory still. But death has left a vacant place Which never can be filled.

Dear grandfather, how much we miss you

No one will ever know.

Many tears are shed in secret

While others are shed in sight.

We knew we had to part,

But you will always be in our hearts.

But we hope to meet in that better land

Where we will have to part no more.

Club Boys Get Pigs

The following ten 4-H club boys received pure bred sow pigs in the Sears Project this year. J. Q. Whorley, Jr., Billy Watson, Carl Holland, Wells, Buford Hogan, George Crowder, Bobby Stallard, Wayne Coleman, Richard Aldridge, Russell Markham and Mark Biggs.

AAA Suggestions

The Bedford County AAA committee has 30,000 pounds of rye grass seed in local storage in Bedford and are now issuing it to green manure and winter cover. This seed is charged against the farmers soil building payment similar to the lime and phosphate program. No initial payment is required for 20 pounds per acre or less.

W. B. Denton, chief clerk, wants farmers who have not already done so, to place their orders for both lime and phosphate immediately for July and August delivery. Orders may be filed by mail. Deliveries after August are uncertain. Be sure of your 1945 materials by ordering now.

CLUB MEETING NEXT WEEK

July 2: Bellevue H. D. club.
July 3: Lisbon Garden club.
July 4: Holiday.
July 5: Calvary H. D. club.
July 6: Hunting Creek H. D. club.
Calvary 4-H club: 8:00 p. m.

Honor Club Meeting

Friday night, June 22, the Bedford County Honor club met at the county demonstration room for a short business meeting at 7:30. Things discussed were: summer project work, new members, and plans were made for a picnic in August. A committee on arrangements was appointed. Following the business meeting, a social was held. 37 former and present honor club members, All-Stars, agents and visitors were present. Mrs. Ann Powell and Rose Moody Robinson had charge of the games. Mrs. Hattie Laffoon gave a humorous reading. A string band furnished music for the occasion. Recreation consisted of the Grand March, the Virginia Reel, Paul Jones, waltzes, etc. Light refreshments were served. Those attending contributed toward buying a piano for the room. An enjoyable evening was spent.

Club Members Leave for Camp

About 30 club members, leaders and home and assistant county agents will leave by bus next Monday morning, July 2, for a week of recreation, study and project work at Holiday Lake Camp. The counties of Bedford, Amherst, Nelson, Fluvanna and Buckingham will be represented at this camp.

New London H. D. Club.

"Family Relationships" was the topic of a most interesting talk by Mrs. Lela Atkinson when the club met on June 14 at the home of Mrs. J. J. Sibert. A discussion of community needs led to selection of definite work for the year of 1945. Plans were made for the club's annual picnic, to be held at New London Academy. Eleven club members, with their 13 children, and four visitors attended this meeting. A most humorous monologue by Mrs. Hattie Laffoon was greatly enjoyed by all during the social hour.

Cattle Feeders to Get

Beef Cattle Payments

As soon as it is announced by the county AAA committee that the necessary forms are available, cattle feeders in Bedford County can apply to the county AAA office for beef cattle production payments under the government's new program to increase production of meat and get the beef on the market. Feeders are encouraged to feed more cattle, including those they purchase and those they raise.

IN MEMORY

In memory of our son and brother, Sgt. Robert H. Anderson, who was killed in England two years ago today, June 29.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Hidden tears so often flow;
Memory keeps you always near us,
Although you left us two years ago.

In our home you are fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to your name.
Those who loved you in life sincerely,
Love in death just the same.

Though your smile is gone forever,
And your hand we cannot touch;
We shall never lose sweet memories
Of the one we loved so much.

Dear Robert, you are not forgotten
Thought on earth you are no more;
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

Until memory fades and life departs,
You will live forever in our hearts;
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Anderson and family.

to good and choice grades under the new program. The method of payments is similar to the dairy payment program also handled through the County AAA Office, according to County AAA Chairman, William R. Walker.

The beef cattle production payment amounts to 50 cents per hundredweight on good and choice cattle weighing 800 pounds or more and selling for at least the minimum stabilization price, which for sales in this county is $14.80. This is the first meat production payment made directly to the livestock feeder. The beef cattle production payments is available to all feeders, including slaughterers who also are feeders, provided their cattle meet the program requirements.

To be eligible, a feeder must certify on his application (1) that he owned the cattle at least 30 days before their sale, (2) that the cattle weighed at least 800 pounds when sold, (3) that the cattle brought not less than the minimum price for the good grade, and (4) that the cattle were sold for slaughter to an authorized slaughterer. An authorized slaughterer is any slaughterer who operates under Federal inspection or under an OPA permit at the time he slaughters the feeder cattle on which the payment has been made.

A feeder slaughterer is eligible to receive payment provided payment had not previously been made on his cattle. He may also receive payment on cattle he raised provided they are eligible under the program. To collect the payment he must substantiate the date of purchase, the prices he paid, and the weight at the time of purchase. He also must certify the grade and weight of the carcass after slaughter to determine further the eligibility of the cattle.

A feeder other than a feeder-slaughterer must present sales receipts, invoices, scale tickets, or other written evidence from the buyer to verify (1) date of sale, (2) the name of the buyer, (3) the point of sale, (4) the number of head, (5) the total liveweight, (6) the price received, and (7) the name of the legally authorized slaughterer to whom sold.

In addition, the feeder, if he did not raise the cattle, must show the status of the cattle at the time he purchased them by furnishing the name of the person from whom purchased, and the date of purchase. The feeder may also be required to furnish evidence that the payment had not been made previously on these cattle. Payments will be made from funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation of which $40,000,000 has been authorized.

CAN THE SURPLUS FROM YOUR Victory Garden

ANOTHER year of War and again it's a must—the need for food conservation. The threatened curtailment of commercially canned foods, the demands of lend-lease, of our armed forces and of the liberated peoples, all add up to the vital necessity for you to can the surplus.

Last year, thousands of women canned surplus food at home—additional thousands will do it this year. It's wise—it's economical—it's easy. We want to help you can and conserve your excess garden produce and have again issued a compact booklet containing essential information for the successful canning of fruits and vegetables.

Also keep in mind these basic rules for canning:

- Select only sound garden fresh fruits and vegetables.
- Follow jar manufacturer's instructions exactly for handling and sealing the particular style of jar used.
- Pack material loosely to allow heat circulation and leave sufficient space to allow for expansion without overflow.
- Do not subject jars to sudden temperature changes—do not open jars after cooking in jar starts.
- Boil all home-canned meats and non-acid vegetables 10 to 15 minutes before eating or even fasting.

Be sure to get your copy of our canning booklet. It is yours for the asking in our office.

NOW!

The War Production Board appeals for more pulpwood now for a very good reason: War with Japan demands record production for double wrapping of supplies sent to the Pacific. This is why pulpwood is on the Production Urgency List, along with planes and shells.

It's patriotic to cut and haul pulpwood. And it's profitable, also. There's good money in it, as many a farmer knows.

In order to reach the War Production Board goal of 16,000,000 cords in 1945, we need every stick of peeled wood you can cut.

Birthday Greetings
To my husband, Pfc. James Elery Falls, somewhere in Germany on his birthday, July 2.

Happy birthday darling. Though you're far away, I'm thinking of you always both night and day.

The stars that shine from heaven are a kiss from me to you, and the moon that shines from up above whispers I love you.

Happy birthday darling! Here's to the years to come: That we will be together and you'll be safely home.

My prayers in the twilight hours are for your quick return, and thanks to God in heaven for His tender love and care.

Happy birthday darling! And may your day be glad, for the trials and troubles have been terribly bad.

But here's to days ahead dear, when we can be together, and the worries and the cares of life that we bore alone.

God bless you, Eleanor.
