Silas Green's War Record

59. Glass,

Silas Green was born in Franklin County, Va. Records of his birthday were destroyed, and for this reason an exact date cannot be ascertained. When the war began between the North and South, he was about twenty or twenty-one years of age.

Soon after the war began, Silas joined a volunteer company that was organized in his vicinity. This company was composed of all whites, while Silas was the only colored. It was drilled under the leadership of Captain Holley, and after intense drilling it was ordered to Bedford City. Silas accompanied the company to this point, but had to return home because his owner protested bitterly against his remaining with the company.

About three weeks after the volunteer company had departed to fight, Silas himself under the advice of Capt. Henry Franklin organized a company of calvary-men, and again he was drilled under Capt. Franklin, but had to take charge of and look after the families of the soldiers who had gone with the company. He was given this position because he was a very trusted and valuable slave.

After a year's time he joined the Home Guards of Franklin County. This company was called to Roanoke, Va., and while there the company lodged at Trout's Hotel. A part of the Northern army came to a place out from Roanoke called Big Lick, but there was no fighting done as the Union soldiers went in another direction. The Home Guards then returned home.
