Anecdotal Information	Interview with William Bare on June 18, 2015: William Bare and his wife have lived in their home on Rivermont since September 2002 after beginning work at Randolph-Macon Woman's College (now Randolph College). The house had previously been made into two apartments with access stairs. It has since been converted back into a single family home and the outside stairs have been taken off. He and his son frequent Riverside Park which is just across the street.
